holders, nor have they anything to fear, so it is of no consequence to them. They vote and rejoice that the white man may have greater burdens placed upon them. They are a rule by the Republican ticket to show that they are antagonistic to the well being of the white man. There are numerous evils besides those enumerated that will be the result if Dockery be elected. The State election is therefore all important. While the national election—as has been proved by the election of Cleveland—gives us many blessings—that of the State comes nearer home to us, and we as individuals, will each feel its effects. While in the national, in an indirect way we feel the burden and will be hurt in all our achievements to become a prosperous people, if the Republicans get control. So in either, whether in State or National, our interests are affected. We have seen the results in each in the days of the past, and we have the power to continue in good government, let no man fail to do his duty. No true North Carolinian will, unless he is blind to his own interest or does so for the sake of disturbing the peace and tranquility of his neighbors, and thus sacrifice his own, or else for pecuniary benefit or political advancement. Patriotism or love of country, is for selfish ends, placed by all such, far in the background.

Is Death Painless? It is only necessary to see a person die to be convinced that so far from being a painful process, the act of death is rather pleasant than otherwise. The physical pangs of vitality from the body are often characterized by great suffering. There may be pain, suffocation due to the irregularity to the heart and lungs, and, above all, intense mental anguish. But when death begins all feeling of discomfort in mind and body disappear; pain, in whatever part it may be situated, ceases to be perceived; the heart may beat with still greater irregularity, the lungs fall still more notably to perform their functions; nothing has happened to dissipate the fear or remorse or sorrow that have harassed the dying person, but the preceptions, the intellect, the emotions, the will are blunted and no longer respond to the excitations that formerly vexed them. Death, as we see in persons who have suffered from a more or less protracted illness, is not generally an act that is accomplished in a few moments of time. It may even last for several hours, during which period the vital forces are extinguished little by little, so gradually in fact that we are not able to determine the exact instant at which life becomes extinct.—Dr. Hammond in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Why She Married a Poor Man. One of the greatest belles and belles in Philadelphia, and a beauty besides, married a rather good looking young man without a business or penny. She had been courted assiduously by one of the greatest beaux in town, a rich young man, with fortune, prestige, and everything back of him except that he was gay and had sown an immense crop of wild oats. He sent her the most exquisite presents which she could not except. Scores of influential men tried to help on his cause, and the most skillful diploma tried to induce her to discard the young man, who had nothing and no friends but herself. Her own family, with an exception did everything to induce her to prefer the rich suitor. Young as she was, with all society making a pet of her, who gave up everything, gave up society, gave up home, gave up every luxury and fascination that women are supposed to hold dear, and married the man of her choice. And she is happy—far happier than many who are in her swim. When some one said to her: "Why did you make the choice you did? Why refuse so much that most girls value dearly?" she replied: "I married for two things—character and morality. My husband had them both and the other didn't. I loved and respected one, the other I could not."

How Farmers are Protected. The farmer must suffer for the benefit of the manufacturers. They ought to be getting used to that. The duties imposed upon agricultural products by the tariff are mere show and semblance. The home-market theory, with which the Republicans strive to hoodwink farmers, is a delusion and a snare. They have been told that their crops would find purchasers in this country, who prosperity, resulting from a high tariff, would enable them to pay high prices for what they consumed; that they would not be obliged to compete with any but the other farmers of their own country, and that they would never be forced to accept prices which compensated the peasants of Russia and the ryots of India. Every intelligent person knows that this promise has been broken. During the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1887, the farmers sent abroad $23,078,798 of the products of agriculture. The price of wheat was fixed in London, and the American farmer, unnecessarily tax as he is for the enrichment

Some Reasons Why You Should Vote the Democratic Ticket. Fayetteville Observer. In the campaign now just fairly begun there are many reasons why the people of North Carolina should earnestly support the Democratic candidates. Upon the result of the State ticket, many things which will affect our personal condition are at stake, and all should be particularly concerned, and any man who thinks, will not hesitate how to vote. Let him read in the last Observer the article from the Charlotte Chronicle, "An Alarming Rumor," and if he is not satisfied that in the event of the election of Dockery that our State will be put to its severest test to pay the fraudulent tax bonds, now held by Levi P. Morton, the candidate for Vice President of the United States. Then he must be wilfully blind. Think of it, $24,000,000 to be paid by the State from which it has never derived one cent of benefit. Why the amount would so increase the taxes of the State, that it would become bankrupt, and the wheels of machinery in every line of business be so clogged with taxes that they could not turn. As the Charlotte Chronicle says: "How this power is to be wielded we must only infer from the corrupt usages exercised by this party when in power." That party is not one whit more pure to-day than it was in 1868. It is led by the same old tricksters and its followers are the same dark hued race. Can any sane man, who has the welfare of his country or his family dare even think of voting for such a party. Besides this great evil, there are others, that would prove eternal sores on the body politic, if Dockery is elected. He is chief of the negro party, and if they select him, he must see that they get what they especially desire—to rule in the eastern counties, and it is for their sakes he advocates a change in the county government, the election of magistrates and commissioners by the people. White men cannot suffer such humiliation, and if any really desire to see it let them vote that way and make it known that he is against his race. The election of Dockery will bode no good for North Carolina. He is an unscrupulous politician, and he and his clan would entail untold evils upon the State. Taxes are now high enough, but if you want to pay more, vote for Dockery. The negroes as a class are not property

A talent of gold was $13,800. A talent of silver was $533.35. A bin was one gallon and two pints. A shekel of silver was about 50 cents. Ezekiel's reed was nearly eleven feet. A cubit was nearly twenty two inches. A mite was less than a quarter of a cent. A piece of silver, or a penny was 13 cents. A Sabbath day's journey was about an English mile. An epha or bath contains seven gallons and five pints. A day's journey was about twenty-three and one-fifth miles. A hand's breadth is equal to three and five-eighths inches. A finger's breadth is equal to one inch.

Thoughts of Great Men. The greatest scholars are not the wisest men.—Rabelais. Praise unobdressed is satire in disguise.—Brodhurst. When a new book comes out I read an old one.—Rogers. Nothing is so uncertain as the minds of the multitude.—Livy. Be fit for more than the things you are now doing.—James A. Garfield. No man ever did a designed injury to another without doing a greater to himself.—Henry Home. The passionate are like aen standing on their head; they see all things the wrong way.—Plato. The manner of giving shows the character of the giver more than the gift itself.—E. P. Chapin. The pugnacity of pleasure is as transient as the foam that mingles around its brimming cup.—Henry Giles. Leibes of fashion starve their happiness to feed their vanity, and their love to feed their pride.—Colton. I've never had any pity for condescended people because I think they carry their comfort about with them.—George Eliot. Sacrifice being the essential basis of virtue, the most of her glorious virtues are those which are acquired with the greatest sacrifice.—Dr. Massey.

A Timely Appeal. The New York Herald has a wise way of stating facts in a paragraph says: "If the taxes are too high, lower them." In doing this, if you are compelled to take the tax off on clothing or on whisky, the party that chooses the clothing is the party's friend and the party that chooses the whisky is the people's enemy. It is better to have an overcoat than a glass of rum, then you know how to vote, but if you have any doubt whatsoever, look into the face of your wife and children that ought to settle it."

WORTH KNOWING. Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well and had had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures, as Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it.—Trial bottle free at Clifton's Drug Store.

DOCKERY AT DUNN. His Lies Branded as Such by a Gallant Knight of Democracy. The Dunn Signboard gives a good report of the speeches of Dockery and Devereaux at Dunn a few days since. It says of Dockery's speech: "It was rife and not very good against either of the same old 'Rad' doctrine that has been over and over reiterated on the campaign every where—that it is best for the masses to keep out of the country, all foreign products that by being kept out, will surely put money into the pockets of the capitalists, and add to the burdens of the poor. That same statement about Mrs. Cleveland and her chambermaid was repeated by Dockery. But there was no one to contradict it—none to say it was or was not false. But when the train came at 5:30 and 'Dockery and his shadow' left on it, the same brought C. B. Aycock Esq., who was on his way to Harriet Co., Court House; and when he touched the ground from the cars, and the eyes of the people looked upon, and saw included a bold defender of Democracy, faith in their very midst such a shout as went up from their hearts and voices is seldom heard in Dunn or anywhere. This ready platform orator was at once shown a stand, improvised in short order, and the eloquent speaker plunged forthwith into the fray, eager for the task. When informed that Devereaux had said Mrs. Cleveland kissed her nigger chamber maid he unhesitatingly pronounced the man who slandered her thus, to be a LIAR, and Dockery, too, was a liar, if he said it; and he wished they were present, and he would tell them to their faces that they lied in saying this of Mrs. Cleveland. Mr. Aycock was full of his subject, and the honest indignation of his heart burst forth in most eloquent and convincing logic as he hatched and mauled and flattened into the specious sophistries of Radicals and negro domination as set forth by the candidate of the Republican party.

Indianapolis Workingmen against Harrison. A large and significant mass meeting of laboring men was held in Indianapolis last week, and it split on a proposition to urge ex-Governor Porter to accept the Republican nomination for Governor. About 150 men went out to the Governor's house, where nothing significant passed except an interchange of courtesy and compliment. The remainder, about 2,000, passed the following resolutions: Under a call from the political

RENEWED YOUTH. Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, and have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years. could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own household work. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain."
