HELPFUL MAGAZINE for January contains an article written by the late ex-President Davis, which will doubtless attract wide attention. It is entitled "Andersonville and other Prisons," and is a complete refutation of the charges of cruelty to the Union soldiers in Confederate prisons. Instead he proves from the official figures that the mortality among the Union prisoners was not as great as among the Confederate prisoners. According to the reports of the United States War Department there were 370,000 Union soldiers in Confederate prisons and 220,000 Confederate soldiers in Federal prisons, and yet only 22,000 Union prisoners died, while there were 26,000 Confederates who died in Northern Prisons. So that the Confederates with an excess of 50,000 prisoners, had 4,000 fewer deaths. It must also be borne in mind that the Federal government was better able to provide for its prisoners than was the Confederate government. And especially must it be remembered that it was solely the fault of the Federal authorities that the prisoners were not exchanged and allowed to return to their homes. Time and again did the Confederate authorities urge an exchange of prisoners, but Grant thought it an unwise policy as it was easier to recruit the ranks of the Union army than of the Confederate army. Of course there was much suffering at Andersonville and other Southern prisons, but the Confederate government was not to be blamed for it. Every ex-Confederate soldier remembers full well that rations were very scarce in our army and that frequently we all suffered from hunger, and it was not to be expected then that the Confederate government could feed Union prisoners any better than its own soldiers.

Be true. No one but a coward lies.
De-Troud. A proud man cannot be mean.
Be bold. It is the only way to command confidence.
Accumulate. The more you own the more power you have.
Be quick. You can't use a minute but once—make the most of it.
Be clean. If your body and character are spotted nothing can shame you.
Who, then, is unconquerable? He whom the inevitable cannot overcome.
A beautiful yertion is like a fountain, watering the earth and spreading fertility; it is therefore more delightful and more honorable to give than to receive.
We shall never fail to endorse Dr.
Bull's Cough Syrup; for without it our paper would have been short of reading matter this week. We had a shocking cough and a fearful cold—Weekly Union.
Don't sigh with pains of buras or accidents.
But use Salivation Oil, the greatest remedy.
"Dashaway" all opium preparations and give only Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup to the babies. It is the only remedy which contains no opiates.
If you have been over-eating yourself, take a dose of Laxador before you have something worse. It is the best remedy in such cases. Price on 25 cents.
Sam Jones is to be invited to conduct a meeting in Richmond, next June.

Many people habitually endure a feeling of lassitude because they think they have to. If they would take Dr.
J. H. McLean's Sarsaparilla this feeling of weariness would give place to vigor and vitality.
No ailment is in better repute or more widely known than Dr. J. H.
McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment. It is a wonderful remedy.
Persons advanced in years feel younger and stronger, as well as freer from the infirmities of age, by taking Dr. J. H. McLean's Sarsaparilla.
One of Dr. J. H. McLean's Little Liver Pills, taken at night before going to bed, will move the bowels, the effect will astonish you.
Pimples, boils and other humors are liable to appear when the blood gets heated. The best remedy is Dr. J.
H. McLean's Sarsaparilla.
Sick headache is the bane of many lives. This annoying complaint may be cured and prevented by the occasional use of Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Pills (little pills.) Disease lies in ambush for the week; a feeble constitution is ill adapted to encounter a malarious atmosphere and sudden changes of temperature, and the least robust are usually the earliest victims. Dr. J. H.
McLean's Sarsaparilla will give tone, vitality and strength to the entire body.
Distress after eating, heartburn, sick headache, and indigestion are cured by Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Pills.
If you feel unable to do your work and have that tired feeling, take Dr.
J. H. McLean's Sarsaparilla; it will make you bright, active and vigorous.
The most popular liniment is the old reliable, Dr. J. H. McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment.

A Farmer Boy.

There has been a great deal of poetry written about him, says the Boston Times.
He has been made a hero, and an example of all that is bright and attractive.
His life has been idealized and glorified as the one perfect life.
Writers who have done this have not told the truth.
The farmer's boy would not recognize himself in the pictures drawn of him by poets.
He is honest, he is innocent, he is verdant, but he is no fool.
The nearest he approaches to being one, in nine cases out of ten, is when he leaves the country and comes to the city in order to prosper more rapidly.
It is far better for him to be honest, innocent and verdant, than to be dishonest, learned in all that is evil and corrupt.
But it cannot be wondered at that he grows restive. He rises with the sun, works from one to two hours before breakfast, and then in the field all day long, and finishes milking just before sunset. It is a hard day's work, and a man who can see poetry in it would soon revise his thoughts should he do such a day's work himself.
He knows that he is awkward in his movements, peculiar in his manner of speech, and not as well informed as the city boy.
But he has feelings, and is sensitive of all these, and gradually grows to feel that he is an object of mirth and derision for people from the city. He naturally resents this, and grows to feel hard toward such people.
His pleasures are few, and consist principally of going to the country store on Saturday evening, where he meets the other boys, very like himself in feelings and actions.
He is loud in his jokes and laughter, and boisterous in talk.
But he is honest.
He is also really bright, and people who would mock him out a clown frequently are themselves the ones to be laughed at.
His chief weakness is his desire to "show off." He seems to have a very strong feeling that he must show strangeness that he is well-informed in all things of the world, and that he is not as "green" as they think him.
He goes about this in a way full of figured indifference which is very amusing.
But is not this same weakness seen in people of the city, although not in quite the same form?
His life is a hard one and full of discouragements.
But it is also practically free from worry and excitement.
It is a simple life, but contains but little poetry, as said before.

Good Resolves.

Hell, we are told, is paved with good intentions, and New Year resolutions to turn over new leaves are made, like the crust and promises, to be broken.
The red-headed toper, hiding his bottle for a twelvemonth early in the morning, surprises his stomach by quashing Adam's ale, and at night is borne home on a window blind. The tobacco worm throws away his plug and buys a package of fine-cut at the next store he passes. The victim of the pipe, cigar, and cigarette puff away all his good resolutions in smoke before he has rinsed his mouth of the taste of nicotine.
The man of oaths swears off from swearing and swears right on. That is the way in which the satirists size up New Year resolutions. The pitior of the Topic, to be in the fashion, foreswears the credit system. Has he top taken a contract to furnish a block of aspah for the infernal boulevard? He swears—well, perhaps, he only affirms—not, and valiantly avows that he will never, no never, send the Topic on credit to anybody, not even to his grandmother. We shall see.
We only hope, for their good, that the toper, the victim of the tobacco habit and the profane swearer will stand as unflinchingly by their guns as the Topic will by its. "Coming down to this newspaper rule: It is the true solution of the problem that every newspaper in North Carolina is trying to solve. It will bring the papers that adopt it out of the wretched slough of despond into which nearly every newspaper in this State has mired up to its arm-pits.—Lemur Topic.

Sensational Preaching.

The man who makes a baboon or a bar-room humorist of himself in the pulpit for the sake of notoriety and cash ought to wear stripes, instead of being rewarded.
On the contrary, the preacher who ministers to his people from year to year, rejoicing in their gladness and weeping in their day of sorrow deserves far better reward than he receives at the hands of the average North Carolina community.
We are led to these remarks by the fact that Bill Fife, the drummer-evangelist raked in $300 during a two weeks "revival" in Reidsville, while the pastor of the church in which he preached receives only six hundred dollars per year and a few weeks before Fife went there, told his people that he actually didn't have money enough to buy a pair of shoes to cover his feet!
This same story has been repeated several times in North Carolina and will go on indefinitely until the people awake to the fact that it isn't common honesty to stave their horse minister while pouring gold into the pockets of a traveling religious mountebank.
Sam Jones may be all right and Bill Fife may be an humble follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, but they are language in the pulpit which if used in the parlor would cause them to be kicked out the street, and people go to hear them as they go to the circus to hear the spotted clown.
When we come to decide where our money should go, it should not take us long to decide that the local minister is the man we owe it to, rather than to the sensationalist. Stuck a pin right here, brethren, and don't forget it.—

Cheer Up.

For the benefit of any dependent person in this immediate section, we recommend a trip down the road towards Tarboro. The farmers are working like beavers. Having gathered a very short crop, they are taking advantage of the fine weather, and have put in the largest small grain crop ever before planted in this section.
There is more composts made, more land plowed, fences and houses repaired than ever before at this season of the year.
Talk no more of hard times. Let every one go to work, and this, the richest and best section of North Carolina, will soon again blossom as the rose. One short crop will not in the least discourage the men and the sons of men who lived on parched corn for weeks at a time during the late war without a murmur.
Farmers be patient with your tenants who have done their best. Pay your debts as far as you can, trust Providence for the balance and all will be well. We want and ask no help from outsiders. We can and will take care of ourselves and find help for others more unfortunate than we.

Contagious Blood Diseases.

Ulcers, sores, pimples, itch, salt rheum, etc., are evidences of contagious blood diseases. It is manifestly a duty to eradicate blood poison from the system by a use of B. B. B. (Bobbit's Blood Balm) thus enabling the sore places to heal, and thereby removing all possibility of other members of the family becoming likewise afflicted. Send to Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga., for book that will convince.
J. H. Outlaw, Mt. Olive, N. C., writes: "I had running sores on my shoulders and on my arms. One bottle of B. B. B. cured me entirely." John M. Belmont Station, Miss. writes: "B. B. B. has worked on me like a charm, my head and body was covered with sores, and my hair came out, but B. B. B. healed me quickly." W. J. Kinnin, Hutchens, Texas, writes: "B. B. B. has cured my wife of a large ulcer on her leg that doctors and all other medicines could not cure."
M. J. Gossman, a prominent marchant of Green-boro Ga., writes: "I knew of several cases of blood disease speedily cured by B. B. B. Two bottles cured a lady of ugly scrofulous skin sores."
W. O. Bichmore & Co., Maxey, Ga., writes: "B. B. B. in curing Mr.
Bobbit's blood poison effected one of the most wonderful cures that ever came to our knowledge."
