TRIFLES.

Many People Judged By Small Things.

Youth's Companion.]

John Wright was the son of a day-laborer, a man of dissipated life and coarse habits. John had no home teaching, no family traditions, no associations to lift him upward. But he had talent, great vigor of mind and body, and much ambition. He began as a newsboy, worked his way through school and into college.

In his Freshman year he wrote to a friend, "I can conquer any difficulty before me as a scholar. I am not afraid of mathematics or of languages dead or living, but to enter a room with a well-bred woman in it makes me tremble. I cannot eat a meal, I cannot meet an acquaintance in the street without committing what people call a breach of good manners.

"The thousand and one trifling rules of etiquette terrify me. I am resolved to disregard them. I will not be a slave to a code laid down by other men. I will be a scholar and an honest man, and brush aside those cobweb lines which hamper me."

John carried out his resolution. He was a moral man, earnest in his purpose to lead a pure and honorable life; he stood at the head of his class in college. But while the other men in the class were invited into the homes of the professors, and made friendships with educated men and gentlemen, which helped them throughout life, he was neglected.

"He may be a good Christian," said the wife of the President, "but I will not ask my table a man who puts his knife into the butter, and who keeps his hat on when I am speaking to him."

"I do not wish to know a woman who judges me by such trifles," said Wright, when this speech was repeated to him.

But the neglect hurt him. When he left College, too, and entered a professional life, he found that these "trifles" drove friends away from him wherever he went. His ability brought him clients, but his rudeness and coarse manners made him a subject of their contempt and ridicule.

He removed to a town in the far West, hoping to leave prejudice behind him, but his new acquaintances pronounced him vulgar after five minutes intercourse, and never offered to bring him to their homes or introduce him to their families.

Shut out from the society of the better class, he was forced to choose an uneducated wife. His children are as rude and ungente as himself.

"I should have taken rank," he said once, bitterly, "with gentlemen. But they judged me by my coat of manners, and mistook me for a footman."

If a gentleman voluntarily wears the livery of a footman, he should not complain if he is mistaken for one. Too many boys confident of their own high purposes in life, despise as petty the observances of good breeding. They forget that these observances are the language, the signs which gently lead people in all nations have devised to express their good purpose in life. They are the essence of common sense and kindly feeling.

A man cannot quote Greek or declaim poetry at a hotel table to establish his claim to education or refinement. But he can do it by his quiet voice, by his unobtrusive and simple bearing.

He cannot announce to a car full of people the kindly sympathy toward all mankind, which swells in his heart to bursting. But the smile with which he leaves his seat for an old black woman will express it without a word.

A gilt button on a cap is not a small matter if it shows the difference between a poor and a nobleman.

The Garden in the Fall.

To secure the best results from the garden it is very necessary that the best of care be given. With a number of crops earliness is quite an item, and much work can be done in the fall that will aid considerably in this respect. During the spring and summer it will be best to keep the ground occupied as nearly as possible with a growing crop of some kind. This will be found much better than to allow it to grow up in weeds, and to keep it naked.

After the crops have matured in the early part of the fall the garden should be cleaned up, and all the grass, weeds, stalks, and trash be gathered up, and either be added to the manure heap or burned to destroy the seeds. Pea brush, bean poles, tomato stakes, plant labels, and all this class of material should be carefully gathered up and be stored away. Then plow deep and thorough. There is little danger of plowing the garden too deep. To secure a quick, strong growth, a deep, rich, well-drained soil is necessary, and good plowing will be a help in this. In a majority of cases unless richer than the average, a good dressing of manure should be given. This should be thoroughly rotted and well fined so that it can be worked well into the soil. The harrow or cultivator can be used to a good advantage in doing this. Good drainage must be provided. If the garden is not well under-drained the furrows must be run out clear, so as to avoid any damage by washing.

This is my plan, and I find that the soil will dry out and warm up much earlier in the spring and be ready to work quicker than if left unplowed. The manure being applied in the fall has a better opportunity of getting the soluble portions taken up by the soil. And it is in a better condition to be taken up and used by the growing crops. No plowing will be needed in the spring, with an old garden, at least, stirring the surface thoroughly and working into a fine tilth being all that is necessary to prepare for the seed. And with onions, radishes, pease, lettuce, spinach, beets and this class of plants this will be quite an item. In addition to applying a good dressing of well rotted stable manure to the garden I find it profitable to save the poultry manure and wood ashes, and use as a top dressing in the spring, just before sowing the seeds, working well into the surface.

A Wonder Worker.

Mr. Frank Hoffman, a young man of Burlington, Ohio, states that he had been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be Consumption, and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and at that time was not able to walk across the street without resting. He found, before he had used half of a dollar bottle, that he was much better; he continued to use it and is today enjoying good health. If you have any throat, lung or chest trouble try it. We guarantee it. Trial bottle free at J. B. Clifton's drug store.

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special mention. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist, and it is guaranteed to do all that is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will remove pimples, boils, salt rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all malarial fevers. For cure of headache, constipation and indigestion try Electric Bitters.—Entire satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded.—Price 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at J. B. Clifton's drug store.

GOOD ADVICE.

WITH THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET AS IT IS PRINTED.

In his excellent speech last Friday, C. B. Aycock, Esq., urged upon his hearers to vote the straight ticket, and illustrated his point with the following anecdote: There was an old Baptist brother who believed he did everything by inspiration; who would read wherever his book would fall open. There was a bad boy in his congregation who caught on to this peculiarity of the old man's make up, and went one day and pasted a piece of poetry in his hymn book that did not belong there. On the next Sunday when the old brother arose to read out his hymn, the book opened at this place. He eyed it critically for some time and then removed his glasses and polished them and readjusted them and read: "Old Grimes is Dead." They stared and eyed it critically again, and removed his glasses and polished them again, he readjusted them and again read:

"Old Grimes is dead,
 'Tat good old man."

Then the third time he removed, polished and readjusted his glasses and read:

"Old Grimes is dead
 'Tat good old man."
 He always wore a long-tail coat
 'All buttoned down before."

The old brother stopped reading and addressing his congregation, said: "Brethren, I have been reading this book night on fifty years and I have never seen that hymn before, but by the grace of God we will sing it through." Now, fellow citizens, if there is something in the Democratic ticket which you have never seen before, by the grace of God vote the ticket through.

AN EXAMPLE IN TARIFF.

A prominent merchant of this city has placed before us a circular letter from a New York house which he has declining, announcing an advance of "at least 25 per cent." on all imported goods, and 10 per cent. on certain domestic goods.

The row given in the first instance is the larger duties charged in the McKinley bill, and in the other an advance in raw materials.

This shows how the tariff legislation operates practically. Importations of many articles are almost prohibited, and American manufacturers take advantage of the removal of this competition to demand higher prices.

We do not charge that this is or will be the plan of all our manufacturers. Some of them are too honest thus to fleece their customers, but others who are not controlled by principle or who are members of unscrupulous trusts will undoubtedly avail themselves of the temptation which Congress has placed before them. In all these cases the consumer will be the sufferer, and it will not often happen that the factory land is benefited.—Dispatch.

HOW THE APOSTLES DIED.

1. Peter was crucified in Rome with his head down, on a cross similar to that used in the execution of Jesus.
2. Andrew was bound to a cross and left to die from exhaustion.
3. St. James the Great was beheaded by order of Herod, at Jerusalem.
4. St. James the Less was thrown from a high pinnacle, then a second and finally killed with a soldier's club.
5. St. Phillip was bound and hanged against a pillar.
6. St. Bartholomew was flayed to death by a command of a barbarous king.
7. St. Matthew was killed with a halbert.
8. St. Thomas was shot by a shower of arrows while at prayer, and afterward run through the body with a lance.
9. St. Simon was crucified after the manner of Jesus.
10. St. Mark was dragged through the streets of Alexandria and he expired.
11. St. Luke was hanged on an olive tree in Greece.
12. St. John died a natural death.
13. St. Paul was beheaded by command of Nero.
14. Judas Iscariot and his bowie's gashed out.
15. St. Barnabas was stoned to death by Jews.

Why He Became a Democrat.

Robert G. Samuel is a prominent colored citizen of Arkansas who has been studying the situation and seems to have grasped the true inwardness of the relation of his race to the Republican party. As a result he has discovered that the "Republican party promised us everything and gives us nothing," and that it is neither well for him nor any other colored man to continue to support that party which does nothing for him, but make promises to be broken. He has therefore publicly announced his withdrawal from the Republican party, and gives among others the following reason for turning Democrat: "I have," he says, "turned Democrat for the simple reason that I believe the interests of the races in the South are identical. We have fought our neighbors long enough. Democracy may not give us anything, but when we vote that ticket we will have the consolation of knowing we are standing by our personal friends."

Will You Give Up?

The importance of the approaching election is daily impressing itself upon the minds of those who desire the success of the Democratic party.

On November the 4th the ballots will be deposited and the great Democratic party will win or lose. Every man should by aside his personal prejudices and make the chances for Democratic success doubly sure.

He who is not for us is against us and if you allow local differences and personal spite to fetter the Democratic party from keeping in line for the great conflict of '92, you are not made of the Democratic material we think you are. Don't waste your ammunition by a penniless shooting around.

The success of the Democratic ticket depends as much upon your vote as any other man. After the party has battled so long for civil liberty and constitutional rights, are you now going to desert the faith when in sight of a glorious victory?

Useful Hints.

It is not generally known that the easiest way to clean shoes or rubber overshoes which have become muddy is with vasoline.

Keep nickel, silver ornaments, and mounts bright by rubbing with woolen cloth saturated in spirits of ammonia.

Salt is a tooth powder is better than almost anything that can be bought. It keeps the teeth brilliantly white and the gums hard and firm.

To drive away ants, scrub the shelves or drawers that they frequent with strong carbolic soap, after which sprinkle red pepper in every crevice.

To renovate scratched furniture, dissolve beeswax in turpentine, making it of the consistency of molasses; apply with a woolen cloth, then rub briskly with a dry piece of flannel. The improvement is wonderful.

Why It is Foolscap.

It is often asked why a certain kind of paper is known by the name of "foolscap." When Oliver Cromwell became Protector, after the death of Charles I., he caused a stamp representing the cap of liberty to be placed upon the paper used by the government. Soon after the restoration of Charles II. he had occasion to use some paper for dispatches, when some of this paper was brought to him. On observing the stamp he asked its meaning, and, on being informed, he said: "Take it away; I will have nothing to do with a Fool's cap!"

Reading Hint.

Gen. Milton S. Littlefield, who became famous in North Carolina in reconstruction times, has again come before the notice of the public. He is now in the toms in New York city in default of $7,500 bond, and is as good as booked for the penitentiary for ten years. Littlefield and a doctor named W. M. Fleming, have been extorting money from a lady named Mrs. Staphan, under pretence of proving that her son who is a murderer, is insane. They got a big pile of money out of her, and when she saw through the swindle, she had them indicted by grand jury. Fleming's wife gave bail for him, but Littlefield went to prison. The penalty for the offence is ten years in the State prison.

The oppressed subjects of European governments turn to this country for free homes, free laws, and for the free use of Salvation Oil for their pains.

It is the slight cold irregularly contracted that finally underlies the system. Use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in the beginning stages and be cured.
