HIRAM AND BEULAH.

Down crept the sun; what should it see But Microbe's footstep getting tea. As, winking with its fiery eye, It watched her from the western sky. The homelike's sister saw roundabout, Her soft hand weighed the sweetmeats out. While many a sidelong glance she threw Down the beach-shaded avenue.

The moon rose up; but all it saw Was Hiram on a load of straw. As hungry, weary, fishy, and brown He jagged leaped from the western sky. The patient's team with right good will Bow'd their heads necks to plumb the hill. And now from every field and lane The thrush sent up its twilight strain.

The lamp glows forth; what did it see Hiram and Beulah drinking tea. The sure-white linen spread with care, Set out to tempt the night breeze. For wholesome jet, and sweet delay, And chiding finger raised in play. Where is the feast can equal this, Which Beulah seasons with a kiss.

—(D. R. Reed Goodale.

When the End of the World Comes.

The nebula in Orion, Saturn, and the moon are indeed suggestive of change-types, they may be called of the first stage, the middle, and the last that matter passes through in the long process of the evolution of worlds.

And, of all changes, that change has most interest for us which affects our own planet, the earth; it has reached a later stage than Saturn, though not so late a stage as the moon, but only in long ages and by minute effects will further changes be noticed.

Age hence it may be discovered that there is some slight change in the earth's orbit; or Mercury, yet nearer to the sun than we may be seen to pursue a smaller orbit than now, and the terrible fact may come home to man that we are drawing nearer to the sun. Time goes on, and the tropics become too hot for existence, and colder regions find a welcome change to warmth.

Age by age goes by, and the end is, visibly, no nearer; but the figures of astronomers only too surely tell their tale.

Now the tropics are an impassable desert, and all the life on the globe congregates around the poles. Spain has lost her vineyards, and the Alps their snow; England is a burning sea, and Greenland teems with the vegetation of the tropics; in smaller and smaller circles the inhabitants gather around the poles. "But," to quote the words of Mr. Keigley Miller, "the narrow limits of the habitable earth can no longer support this vast increase of population, and famine begins to mow down its victims by the millions."

"Now, indeed, the end of all life on earth draws us upon us. The heat and drought become more and more insupportable, rain and dew fall no longer. All springs of water fail, and the rivers dwindle down to streamlets, and trickle slowly over their sandy beds, and now scarcity of water is added to scarcity of food. Those who escape by the famine perish by the drought, and those who escape from the drought are re-captured for a fate more awful yet. For a dense Greenland teems with the vegetation of the tropics; in smaller and smaller circles the inhabitants gather around the poles. "But," to quote the words of Mr. Keigley Miller, "the narrow limits of the habitable earth can no longer support this vast increase of population, and famine begins to mow down its victims by the millions."

"But soon the sun scorches up these vapor banks, and dissipates them into space as fast as they can form. Then the fire shines out in unutterable splendor without the slightest cloud wreath to interpose between himself and his victims. Then the last denizens of the world are struck down and consumed; the last traces of organic life are blasted from its surface."—(Longman's Magazine.

Household Notes.

If clothes are scorched lightly in ironing, laying them in the sun will take the stain out.

A hot solution of salt and vinegar brightens copper and tinware, also zinc bath tubs.

To remove egg stains from spoons, take a little common salt between the thumb and forefinger and briskly rub the stains. They will immediately disappear.

Essa is a piece of chamois skin on the inside of the children's stockings at the knee and they will last twice as long. They can be washed without removing it.

Melasses will remove the grass stains so often found on the summer clothing of children. Rub the melasses on, as if it were soap, and then wash the garment in the usual way.

To clean and tighten cane seat chairs, turn up the chair bottom, and with hot water and a sponge wash the cane-work, so that it may be thoroughly soaked. Should it be dirty use a little soap. Let it dry in the air, and it will be as tight as when new.

Nothing is more unsightly about a house than old nail holes or broken places in a plastered wall, and nothing is easier to conceal. Take a tickle's worth of plaster of Paris, and reduce it to the consistency of thick cream by adding warm water, then with a knife press it into the holes, smoothing it over nicely. In a few minutes you cannot find the places.

THE GREAT SWEEP.

WHAT THE PRESS THINK OF THE GREAT DEMOCRATIC VICTORY.

N. Y. World: It is an on year for Democrats—on top. It is an off year for Republicans, because the people want war taxes taken off and hands that hold bayonets kept off the elections.

Norfolk Landmark: In 1892 the country will elect a Democratic President, and within six years the Senate will, we doubt not, have a Democratic majority. There must be a new directory in the management of the great business of the Government.

Philadelphia Record: The voting throughout the country shows that the impulse which carried Pennsylvania back into the Democratic column is not singular nor accidental. She still stands side by side with Massachusetts. The skies look very clear ahead.

Indianapolis Sentinel: It is indeed a splendid victory. It places Indiana in the front rank of the reform Commonwealths of the nation. It proclaims to the world that she stands on the solid rocks of equal taxation, local self-government and honest methods in politics.

New York Star: President Harrison had a good opportunity to find out how absolutely insignificant he is politically when there are no blocks of five in the scales with him. The verdict of the country upon his Administration must make him wince.

New York Herald: A thousand thanks to the Republicans of the Fifty-first Congress. They passed the McKinley bill just in time.

If they had had the reckless audacity to pass the Force bill also they would probably have been entirely wiped out in this election.

In the political history of this country no party ever received a sterner rebuke at the polls.

Richmond Times: The result of the Tuesday elections fully confirms the confidence which the thinking portion of the American public feel as to the perpetuity of the institutions of this country. If the success of the Republican party in the last Presidential election, through the employment of the most improper and criminal means, somewhat shook this confidence, the doubt has now been entirely removed.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Nov. 12, '90. Radam's Microbe Killer Co., Nashville, Tenn.

Gentlemen:—A member of my family has been afflicted with asthma for several years, the attacks recurring from time to time as is usual with this disease. In May or June of last year, 1889, these attacks became continuous, hardly a day or night passed without suffering from the distressing attacks until I became alarmed on account of the loss of sleep and the severity of the disease, fearing a general decline of the health. I consulted several eminent physicians in New York and in this city, but with no beneficial results from their prescriptions. About the first of September she commenced using the Microbe Killer, and since that time has never had a return of the paroxysms, and her general health has been correspondingly improved. I can cheerfully recommend the Microbe Killer to all asthmatic sufferers.

Yours, etc.,

How to Talk Well.

Learn to listen well, and very soon you will find yourself speaking the word in season and surprising yourself, as well as others, by the quickness with which your thought will be expressed.

Read the words of great writers, think them over and conclude in what way you differ from them. The woman who talks must have opinions—decided ones—but she must have them well in hand, as nothing is so disagreeable as an aggressive talker. Say what you have to say pleasantly; remember always that the best thing in life, dear, sweet love, has often been won by that delightful thing "a low voice."

Do not be too critical; remember that every blow given another woman is a boomerang which will return and hit you with double force. Take this into consideration—it is never worth while making a malicious remark, no matter how clever it may be.

Worth what while? Worth, my dear girl, the while here, which is, after all, so short, and the while hereafter, which is, after all, so long and sweet. It seems to me that when you and I stand before the good God it will be the little gossip, the petty talks about others, of which we will be most ashamed.

Never forget that mere idle talk is quite as bad as gossip, for nobody is gaining any good from it, and as no vacuum exists in Nature none can in every day life. Not to be a good talker, my dear girl, not to be an interesting woman, quick in your sympathy and ready always to give the word of gladness to those in joy, or speak your tender thought to one who is in affliction, is to be the most unpleasant of people—an unfeminine woman.—Ruth Ashmore, in Ladies Home Journal.

The Men for a Town.

The only men of worth to a town or community are those who forget their own selfish ends long enough, and who are liberal enough in their ideas, to encourage every public and private enterprise, to push all projects calculated to build up the town and enhance its importance. The enterprise and push of a community is in the foundation of its permanent success. A town may as well prepare for its funeral as to become indifferent to the enterprises in its midst.

Men who come to a town to make it their future home, who cannot look far enough before them to see that money placed judiciously in a public enterprise will be a hundred fold in the appreciation of their property are to be pitied. They are not the men to put their shoulder to the wheel and build up the town. They are the class who are ready to take all they can of some one else's building enterprise, but they are not willing to do anything themselves.

It Saved My Life.

After suffering for twelve years from contagious Blood Poison, and trying the best physicians attainable and all the patent medicines procurable, and steadily continuing to grow worse, I gave up all hopes of recovery, and the physicians pronounced the case incurable. Hoping against hope I tried S. S. S. I improved from the first bottle, and after taking twelve was cured, sound and well, and have had no return of the vile disease. As I owe my life to S. S. S. I send this testimony for publication.

Dr. Holmes on Tobacco.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes touches on the subject of tobacco and alcoholic stimulants in a recent contribution to the Atlantic. The older he grows, he says, the less use he makes of alcoholic drinks. Occasionally he takes a glass or two of champagne, which agrees with him better than any other drink containing alcohol. An old doctor whom he remembers, who lived to a hundred, used in moderation a mixture of water, cider and rum. Those who are aged require less food, especially animal food, but the doctor does not blame them for being dainty, since the pleasures of the palate are among the last gratifications of the senses allowed them. "What do I say as to smoking?" continued the doctor. "I cannot begrudge an old man his pipe, but I think tobacco often does a good deal of harm to the health—to the eyes especially, to the nervous system generally, producing headache, palpitation and trembling. I myself gave it up many years ago." Those who might fancy that the wise and penetrating old doctor offers any encouragement for the indulgence of dangerous habits get this parting shop from him: "Philosophically speaking, I think self-narcotization and self-alcoholization are rather ignoble substitutes for undisturbed self-consciousness and unfettered self-control."

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

According to the figures of the New York World, the Democrats would have a majority in the next House without the vote of the South. It places the Democratic majority at 141. Total number of Democrats, 236; Republicans 95. Of these 51 Democrats and 48 Republicans are from the East, 67 Democrats and 49 Republicans from the West, 116 Democrats and 3 Republicans from the South. This would give the Democrats from the East and West a majority of 23 over the Republicans without counting the South. A remarkable coincidence is found between the Democratic Representatives of the East and West, the number from the East and West being 118, precisely the same as from the South. It is likely that these figures will vary somewhat when the complete returns are in.
