Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

WHAT MAY BE AHEAD.
The following article is taken from the Southern Tobaccoist, of Richmond, Va., and is published to give our readers some idea of how things are moving, or are trying to move, in the tobacco world: Whoever can read the signs of the times will not fail to discern that great and important changes are about to eventuate in the tobacco world, as in other departments of life, and divisions of society in the commercial and scientific and geographical world. We are looking for surprises and radical changes daily in life in many and almost every direction; and there is no reason why tobacco should be an exception, being a simple product; as a peculiar luxury tobacco has passed through many vicissitudes. The Kings pay to day, the currency of the country to-morrow, the persons portion, a portion of which was applied to pay taxes, to buy a knife or wife. Tobacco in its history has belonged to classes and companies and companies and combinations before the present date. Worse than highway robbery, was never worse than in colonial times. In a certain sense tobacco buyers and manufacturers were a long privilege class. Every manufacturer and dealer would have been glad to control, to monopolize when he could, as a fact. Often in the history of our State has the control of the product been almost a monopoly. England and Germany at present dictate prices and terms and conditions. What wonder then that our own capitalists, after such experiences, should the more easily and completely by co-operation do the same thing now. In this meaning monopoly is nothing new in tobacco.
The planter and dealer and manufacturer have had alternate and simultaneous ups and downs for centuries in this very State. Look at our old inspection and State laws, prohibitions, restrictions and limitations even to that number of plants set out, but this was then the law of the land.
Mighty minds and many millions are at present at work how to control tobacco in this country, and there are millions of people that will sooner or later be arrayed on one or the other side, for it will ultimately be a matter of votes and legislation, as to who will be hurt or benefited by the controlling powers and possessors.
We have taken retrospective views, we will now take prospective ones. The great American Tobacco Co., has last begun to feel its power and greed for gain, and greater conquests governs its appetite. There will be many more amalgamated factories arrayed against the people and the planters, to benefit the money-makers. On the other hand, there will be some few, and those the largest factories singly now; who have been so far unpurchasable and uncontrollable with the American Tobacco Co. It is not unlikely then that these great factories, say the St. Louis set, the New York and New Jersey and Detroit and Middleton, O., men, may be forced, in self-defence, to form one or more combines amongst themselves, they are all the better prepared for it having battled so hard against each other singly. When this start is made, like a vast recruiting army, there will be bids for the common and smaller factories now left out in the cold. Then will come the battle of giants and sudden changes of tactics and revolutions, such as we have never seen. The control of crops will begin by sections and States. It may be St. Louis as a centre against Louisville or Cincinnati—a battle to control of leaf as well as plug.
Between such giants, every advantage will be fought for that brains, bank accounts, and experience can shape or devise. The hurley and the bright and the "buzzard" will have its boom day, as well as darks. The foreign field will come into play, for the agencies will compass the world. The cigarette and cigar stocks and plug and export grades will gradually be worked into the battle and up. It will be a big day of speculation—an amalgamation of tobacco armies. Things have reached a pass already to make the written words possible. There are many manufacturers on the fence now, some considering proposals from the present powers, others awaiting this issue. This is the period of great calm before the battle—remained in the people's public treasury after meeting all expenditures then by no means economical. This condition was presented to the American people as positive proof that their burden of taxation was unjust because unnecessary; and yet while the popular protest is still heard, the hurry of public extravagance devours the surplus and impudently calls upon its staggering victims to bring still larger supplies within the reach of its insatiate appetite. A few short years ago a pension roll amounting to fifty-three millions of dollars was willingly maintained by our patriotic citizens. To-day public extravagance exceeds that three times that sum shall be drawn from the people, under the pretext that its expenditure represents the popular love of the soldier. Not many years ago a river and harbor bill appropriating eleven millions of dollars gave rise to a loud popular protest. Now, public extravagance commands an appropriation of twenty-two millions for the same purpose and the people are silent. To-day millions are paid for barefaced subsidy, and this is approved or condoned at the behest of public extravagance and thus another new manure is turned loose, which, in company with its vicious tariff partner, bears piled-up benefit to the households of favored selfish interests. We need not prolong the details. Turn where we will we see the advance of this devouring and destructive creature."

Special Privileges.
Asheville Citizen.
If the Progressive Farmer, and other champions of the sub-Treasury scheme, will kick the "equal rights to all; special privileges to none" plank out of the Alliance platform, and declare that the only objection to the tariff is that it does not go far enough and embrace every class, it would be more consistent and slightly more picturesque silly. The tariff for protection is wrong in principle and practice because it gives "special privileges" to the favored few; it is the government doing something for which it was never intended, i. e., paying a royalty to one man for engaging in a certain business, and taxing other men to raise the money to pay that royalty. The sub-Treasury bill proposes to take money out of the national treasury and loan it to men at a rate of interest at which the government itself, with all its credit, cannot and never has borrowed it. It is simply the "special privilege" idea reduced to down right idioy.

The Progress of Education in this State.
Charlotte Chronicle.
On last Monday the towns of Wilson, Statesville, Concord and one or two other towns whose names are not in mind, voted in favor of establishing public graded schools. Asheboro voted an additional appropriation of $25,000 to its public schools. Durham also voted more money to its schools. Gram-ham voted a $20,000 appropriation for establishing the normal school there for girls.

SPECIMEN CASES.
S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.
Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, his leg is sound and well.
John Speaker, Catawba, O., had a large fever sore on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by Louisburg drug stores.

Public Extravagance.
The following is an extract from a recent speech by Ex-President Cleveland: "I believe the most threatening figure which to-day stands in the way of the safety of our government and the happiness of our people is reckless and wicked extravagance in our expenditures. It is the most fatal of all the deadly brood born of governmental perversion. It hides beneath its wings the betrayal of the people's trust, and holds powerless in its fascinating glance the people's will and conscience. It brazenly exhibits to-day a billion dollar surplus

Of the 11,000,000 square miles of Africa only 2,500,000 remains in the hands of the native rulers.

HE IS ONLY A PRINTER.

He is only a printer. Such was the sneering remark of a leader in a circle of aristocracy—the codfish quality. Who was the earl of Stanhope? He was only a printer.
What was Prince Edward Williams and the Prince Napoleon?
Proud to call themselves printers.
The present Czar of Russia, the Crown Prince of Prussia and the Duke of Battenburg are printers and the Emperor of China works in his private printing office almost every day. Wm. Caxton, the father of English literature, was a practical printer. What were J. P.
Morris, James Gales, Chas. Richardson, Jas. Harper, Chas. Dickens, Jas. Buchanan and Schuyler Colfax? Printers all, and practical ones. Mark Twain, Amos Cummings and Opie Reed, as plain, practical printers, as was artemus Ward, Petroleum V. Nas-by, and But Lovingood. Senator Plumb, of Kansas, and James S.
Hogg, of Texas, are both printers; and the leader of science and philosophy in his day, made it his boast that he was a "jour" printer.
In fact thousands of the most brilliant minds in this country are found to be toilers in the publishing houses of large cities and towns. It isn't everybody that can be a printer—brains are absolutely necessary.—The Century.

A Tall of Two Chairs.

Elijah on his Lizzie calls When chores are done and evening falls.
Elijah's bashful, Lizzy's shy, But then her parents sit near by.
"Good night, Elijah—Liz, good night."
And paw and maw, by candle light, Go off to bed, and leave to bliss Their daughter, and her beau, with chairs arranged like this:
Elijah 'lows "This weather'll do Fur hayin'" Lizzie thinks so too.
"Went coonin'" long with John last night."
"Get any coons?" "No, moon wa'n't bright."
And so thy court; naught goes amiss,
And Lige and Liz have aimed respective chairs like this:

With spartan will to do or die Elijah seems to grow less shy, And chairs become bewitched, I wis
They hitch and hitch and hitch until they stand like this:

"D'you like me, Liz?" "Oh, Lige," Then round gets in round, and chairs resemble this:

HUMAN INSTINCT.

So powerful is human instinct, that some of its suggestions become embodied in social and household customs. The people know and feel that at the beginning of the spring season the system needs an alterative and purifying tonic and stimulant. In all parts of the country it is a custom for the housewife to dose her brood with sassafras tea. Among the simple remedies that our ancestors employed, this decoction has continued to hold its own.
The demand for a spring alterative and tonic, however, is filled more effectually by S. S. which is itself as simple as nature's remedial medicine should be. It purifies the blood, cleanses and strengthens the system, and prepares the human machine to stand the wear and tear of the summer months.

He Was Pushing Business.

From the N. Y. Sun.
A dilapidated-looking old man, who was chewing sassafras root with great energy, suddenly appeared in the waiting room of the Erie depot across the river, and as he approached a man who was waiting for a Western train he pulled a bottle of liquid from an old satchel in his hand and said:
"My friend, you are looking yellow about the eyes, which is a sure sign that your blood is in a bad state. One bottle of my blood purifier will restore you to health and vigor."
"Don't want it, sir!" was the curt reply.
"All right, mister, all right. If a fellow wants to keep on looking yellow about the eyes when a pan-ny-year is at hand, that's his own business. Long 'bout the middle of April you'll be on your back with a spell of bellious fever, but you needn't lay it up agin me." The next passenger approached was a severe looking woman about 35 years of age, who was probably an old maid.
"Them yellow streaks at the corner of your mouth denote a torpid liver, ma'am," said the man, as he gave the bottle a shake. "Sathin' right here to improve your looks fifty per cent. in two weeks."
"Sir!" she demanded, in icy tones.
"Only fifty cents a bottle, ma'am, and made right in my own house, from herbs and roots gathered by my own hand. Just opened the spring campaign, and the price is only fifty cents a bottle."
"Go away, sir!" she commanded, loudly.
"Don't want any, he?"
"No, sir!"
"All right, ma'am—all right.
Torpid liver may be a good thing to have about the house, but I don't think so. Here's your pannacear, and if you don't want it I can't compel you to buy it." The third person was a man with marked redness of nose and rough spots on his face. He was busy with a newspaper when the old man approached and said:
"One bottle will cure that nose, or money refunded."
"What! What's that?" demanded the man.
"And the second bottle will cause every rough spot to disappear, though it would be safe for you to take a third. Three bottles for $1.25, or 50 cents for a single bottle. I war—"
"Look a here you old reprobate.
What are you driving at?" exclaimed the patient, as he stood up.
"I am selling a blood purifier made of roots and herbs. It's a little early, perhaps, but I want to get the start of the buckwheat scratches. Are you a drinking man?"
"Do you mean to insult me to my face sir? Why, I'll punch your head for a cent!"
"Wouldn't do no good, mister.
Here's the only genuine blood pu-rifier in market, and last year I sold 7,000 bottles of it. Invigorates the liver, tones up the blood, and if I can't cure that nose of yours I don't want a cent!"
"I'll purify you, you old assasin!" shouted the man, and he was peeling off his overcoat to do it when the depot policeman came up and told the old man he must go out.
"And not sell a bottle of my blood purifier in this crowd?" he asked.
"Come, out you go!"
"And you don't want a bottle for yourself? You've got a jandico look, and this 'ere stuff will knock jandico into a cooked hat in just five doses."

He was lead out and told not to re-enter the depot; but he stood at the door and said to the policeman through the glass window:
"All right, officer; all right. If the people don't want my blood purifier they needn't have it. It's the season to purify, but I never go agin the law; and if there's rampage of billious fever next spring don't say I wasn't around with my pannacea at regular price."
