The ladies in charge of the entertainment at the Opera House on Thursday night of last week, desire the Times to return thanks to those who so liberally patronized the festival, and so kindly interested themselves in making the occasion both pleasant and profitable.

Bear in mind that you will have a delightful time if you go on the excursion which leaves Louisburg for Norfolk on next Tuesday. Arrangements have been made with steamers at Norfolk to take passengers to Washington City and return at a greatly reduced rate.

It is now nearly July, and those prize houses should be going up. At least four are very much needed, and if the buyers who wish to come here are to be accommodated, they must be had. It is more important now than ever, for our business and moneyed men to pull together in this matter.

We just want to remark again, that it is amazing how some men, who stand "high" in the world and who claim to be religious, can swear falsely in giving in their taxes. As soon as the list is completed the Times proposes to publish some comparisons just to show up to the public how some people stand on this line. The tax list is public property, and no one can complain at us (and we don't care a snap if they do) for giving them a free notice in the Times.

As an exchange says, the man who has the welfare of the community in which he lives at heart is the kind of citizen we desire to have. Such a man as this will not be selfish enough to take no interest in a movement which may not rebound entirely to his benefit and to the exclusive advancement of his interests; he is glad to assist in any enterprise, which may promote the welfare of the whole community and is glad to see each of his friends receive a share of the sunshine of prosperity. The man who withdraws himself into the shell of his selfishness and refuses to come out unless you wax him with promises of good to himself alone is not the kind of citizen which, when taken in the aggregate, makes a community of harmonious workers for the general weal.

Little Mary, daughter of Dr. J. E. Malone, was very badly hurt on Sunday last by the falling of a book case upon her. She received a severe cut on her face and her nose was broken. She is getting on very well, under the circumstances, and we hope that little Mary will outgrow the wounds, so that her face may not be disfigured.

Special arrangements for ladies. Special cars for both races. Positively no drunkenness will be allowed on this train. Col. A. B. Andrews is getting a great deal of newspaper praise on the report of his promotion to the position of First Vice-President of the Richmond & Danville. All this is highly deserved and more too; and should be increased when it is known that he declined the great honor and larger emoluments because it involved his removal to New York City. He would not sever his associations with North Carolina. He is too proud of his State, and her people; too much wrapped up in the development of North Carolina to be tempted away. There are not many men who have state pride to such an extent.—Greensboro North Star.

Mrs. Margaret Hayes, widow of Geo. W. Hayes, died in this place on Saturday night last of consumption. She had been a sufferer for a long while, and often expressed herself as wanting to die, in order that she might be relieved of her sufferings. All during her afflictions she was well looked after and cared for by the charitable people of the community. She was about 43 years of age and leaves three children, a son and two daughters, the oldest being 15 years of age. The funeral services took place in the Wesleyan church, of which she was a member, on Sunday evening, conducted by Rev. J. B. Hurley, and the remains were interred in the cemetery. The following were the pall-bearers: D. C. High, D. F. Cooke, W. H. Mason, J. C. Conway, H. B. Frazier and Ed. Thomas.

Do Cotton Factories Pay? It is a well known fact, often remarked upon, that the manufacture of cotton is steadily gravitating southward. It will not be long before the cotton mills of New England will be a thing of the past, and the busy staple will be manufactured in sight of the fields where it is grown. Nearly every town in North Carolina either has, or is erecting a building a cotton factory, and in view of these facts, a pertinent question just at this time is, "Do Cotton Factories Pay?"

In answer to this question we desire to say, and we have it upon the very best authority, that a cotton mill, in a neighboring town, has paid 30 per cent. for the past three years, and its stock is not for sale at any price.

In further answer to this question the following from an exchange is interesting reading: "In fifteen years the Tryon cotton mill at Rome, Ga., has returned in dividends to the stockholders an amount equal to the par value of the shares and five dollars per share over, and from the undivided profits has been erected another mill much larger than the original one, all of which is paid for. It is questionable whether any cotton mill in New England can present results to surpass these."

The list of cotton factories that pay, and pay handsomely, might be extended ad infinitum, but the above illustrations are enough for our purpose, and the Times publishes the above facts, and the Times publishes the names of those of our citizens who have been talking of establishing a cotton factory at Louisburg. There is no better point in the South than Louisburg for such a factory, and the Times does not believe that there is a place in the State that would be more benefited by having a successful factory in operation within its borders.
