The original and only genuine Compound Oxygen Treatment, that of Drs. Starkey & Pelen, is a scientific adjustment of the elements of Oxygen and Nitrogen magnetized; and the compound is so condensed and made portable that it is sent all over the world. It has been in use for over twenty years; thousands of patients have been treated, and over one thousand physicians have used it and recommended it as a very significant fact. "Compound Oxygen—Its Mode of Action and Results," is the title of a book of 200 pages, published by Drs. Starkey & Pelen, which gives to all inquirers full information as to this remarkable curative agent and a good record of surprising cures in a wide range of chronic cases—many of them after being abandoned to die by other physicians. SENATOR VANCE INTERVIEWED.

Senator Vance has spent last week in Raleigh. Though very gray—the snow that never melts having fallen on his head—he is looking well, and talks with his old-time cheerfulness. He says of himself, "I am not quite well yet, but so near it that I can say now that I am all right again." While in Raleigh a reporter of the Chronicle interviewed him. He does not see the necessity for an extra session of Congress, the provision in the Constitution for calling an extra session relates to extraordinary emergencies. The Senator does not think that there are now "extraordinary emergencies" unless the Republicans leave the government without money. We quote from the interview:

THE THIRD PARTY.
"The Third party has seen its culmination," said Senator Vance. "It will grow weaker, especially in the South."

WORK FOR CONGRESS.
"Will you please state what, in your opinion, is the chief legislation which ought to be enacted by the next Congress?" The reply was:

"First, to repeal the law authorizing the employment of United States marshals at elections, and absolutely wipe out all vestiges of national interference with State elections.

"Second, There is urgent need for restraining by all means the jurisdiction of the Federal courts, under which they now interfere with the police power of the States.

"Third, Another important duty which Congress should discharge is the enactment of laws for purifying the pension lists and cutting off the abominable and scandalous frauds which now exist in the pension department.

"Fourth, The most important, perhaps, of all the work to be done is the thorough and radical revision of the tariff. The duty should be greatly reduced on wool and woollens and the metals, with special reference to putting the very lowest duties consistent with revenue upon the necessities of life. Many things on the free list should be transferred to the dutiable list. A glance at the free list will show any one several hundred articles upon which there is no sort of reason duties should not be levied and compensation made by a reduction on articles of most common use."

CIVIL SERVICE.

"My civil service views are well known," said the Senator. "I am opposed to civil service, out and out, especially to the way in which it has been applied. It is well known that when the law was applied by the Republican administration before it went into effect almost every office in the gift of the government was filled by a Republican. In no case have the offices been divided between the parties, and whenever any department of the government has been transferred to what is known as the 'classified service,' in order to be subjected to civil service rules, preliminary thereto the same process of Republican cramming has been resorted to. Notably this has been so in the case of the railway mail service. It has always been my disposition to give the fodder to the horse which pull the plow. Awkward as it may sound, I prefer as a politic party man, to adopt the motto, 'to the victors belong the spoils,' rather than the converse, that the spoils belong to the vanquished. If the men who win the fight are not entitled to the offices it is neither justice nor common sense nor ordinary decency to say that they shall be held by those who lost the fight."

FREE AND UNLIMITED COINAGE.
"You ask my views as to the silver question," continued the Senator. "You know I voted against the Sherman silver bill. I would vote for its repeal, but see no solution of the silver question save that of free and unlimited coinage. As to finance and tariff questions the fusionists in Congress will vote with the Democrats."

THE THIRD PARTY AGAIN.

The Senator brought up anew the matter of the Third party, and said: "This party has attained its strength in the South, especially in North Carolina. Now what will become of it is a question important to its members and to us. Its leaders, who have shown themselves unworthy of our confidence or respect, will naturally find a home in the Republican party. We do not wish them to come back to Democracy. But the great bulk of those who sustained Waver in this State we do desire to have return. The most of them were honest in their views. They were once our fellow Democrats and stood with us bravely and firmly in redeeming our State from all the evils of negro and Republican rule. I have nothing but good feeling for them. They were misled by designing men and the grievances under which the Farmer's Alliance was originally formed were many and great. The mistake of these men consisted in not sooner perceiving the folly of drifting away from their friends and following the lead of men who could give them no relief and who had only their own ambitious ends to serve. An analysis of the recent vote in North Carolina shows it to be quite possible for the Democratic party to be beaten by a harmonious combination between the Third party and Republicans. It is worse than folly, then, for the Democrats, by hostile action or speech, to do anything calculated to drive these men into the Republican party."

THE SKIES BRIGHT.

"In conclusion," said the Senator, "I wish to say that I have never known the skies so bright for the Democratic party, if it is only faithful to its promises and wise in their execution. By prompt and efficient action in the direction of carrying out its long declared purposes and principle, it can inaugurate an era of prosperity for our people which will insure Democratic supremacy for a longer period than we have endured Republican administration. Under this prosperity the Republican party will gradually disintegrate far more surely than it could be destroyed by any mere defeat at the polls."

Revise the Pension List—By All Means.

New York Times.
It is evident that before the Fifty-third Congress can take up the question of an extensive revision of the revenue laws there must be more trustworthy knowledge than is at present available as to the needs of the government, "economically administered." Somebody will have to be in the Treasury Department who will clearly ascertain and honestly state its actual condition. It will take him some time to get at the facts and to prepare them clearly for the consideration of Congress. There will also need to be some close inquiry into the expenditures of the government, and especially into the enormous disbursements of the Pension Bureau under the act of the Fifty-first Congress. The administration of the bureau under Gen. Raum seems to have been conducted upon the principle of distributing as much as possible of the public money among the "old soldiers," and it is believed that thousands upon thousands of names have been put upon the pension rolls which are not entitled to be there even under the very liberal provisions of the disability act. These rolls ought to be investigated and purged of fraudulent claimants. There are those who declare that one-third of the list is fraudulent, and at least $50,000,000 a year is squandered upon persons who have no legitimate claim upon the government.

Good, Bad and Indifferent.

"Bab" in St. Louis Republic.
A woman can be so nasty and she can be so nice! She is seldom between.
She is nasty all the way through when she worries a man with her petty jealousies and mean insinuations.
She is nice all the way through when she gives him a word of encouragement for his good deeds, and in this way induces him to do better.
She is mean all the way through when, because of her own extreme vanity, she makes another woman suffer.
She is nice all the way through when out of the goodness of her heart she gives another woman joy.
She is mean all the way through when hospitality is a trouble and courteous words a bore.
She is nice all the way through when she speaks pleasant words every day, and finds no trouble in being gracious.
She is mean all the way through when she holds up her husband or her children to ridicule.
She is nice all the way through when she finds out the best that is in them, and encourages it and them until they are better than good.
Sometimes she is a combination of meanness and niceness, and the one that comes to the surface will crowd out the other. That's what we women want to pray for. To lose all the meanness and be as nice as we possibly can. At least that's the desire of Bab.

STATE PRESS.

The friends of Col. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, would be glad to see him Postmaster General in President Cleveland's cabinet. This appointment would meet with general approval in the South, and we hope Mr. Cleveland will make it.—Orange County Observer.

Political leaders are concerned, about the formation of the Cabinet but people at large give it no harassing thought. They have unbounded confidence in Mr. Cleveland, and with him at the helm they can sleep in the midst of a tempest. Mr. Cleveland will enter upon the administration of the government enreached in the affections of the American people.—New Berns Journal.

It is said that S. Otho Wilson will be indicted for the very conspicuous part he took in organizing the Gideon's Band in North Carolina. Secret political societies endanger the liberties of the people and cannot be tolerated. The people said by their action at the polls that no secret organization could live and prosper in conservative North Carolina. Now let the Grand Gideon be arraigned before the bar of justice.—Sanford Express.

It was not long ago that the late lamented Mr. Ingalls, of the United States Senate, but who is now decapitated, said, in a frolicsome way:

"Let them wave their red bandanae—fit emblems of the rebel flag they are—under which no brave soldier fought and which no virtuous woman loved."

It may be all right for a now retired Senator from the sun-flower State to talk about the virtue of the Southern women. We are holding no ante-mortem examination of subjects at the West because it seemed that the whole business had been purified and that the Democracy was in the saddle. But we, representing the South, desire to make one broad and wholesome proposition, and it is the effect that when Mr. Ingalls proposed or professed that no virtuous woman ever loved the stars and bars, he then became a common liar.—Durham Globe.

Printers often say very pointed things, as witness the following: Whenever a "fellow" forsakes the avocation of a coal heaver and attempts to run a newspaper, his first business is to attack his contemporaries, and in a filthy mess of slush try to pass himself off upon the public as a veteran with the pencil.

How to Revise the Pension List.

State Chronicle.
The person who merits a pension ought to receive it, and it should be of sufficient amount to enable the pensioner to live comfortably. But there are many undeserving names on the pension list. Justice demands a revision of the list and that these be stricken off. In revising the pension list justice should be the first consideration, and justice can be done by considering policy also. We mean this: Suppose A and B are pensioners, each drawing from the Federal treasury $20 per month, and that A is a pensioner by real merit, while B is not. Then justice will say strike B's name from the list, and here policy might be considered, without violating justice, by increasing A's pension by $5 or $10, thus saving a fourth or half to the government. In this way much of the $200,000,000 which the government will have to pay to pensioners soon can be saved, and as the Republicans rely upon the vote of pensioners it is probable that their reliance may fall them to a great extent if the line of legislation indicated be followed. The deserving pensioner would hardly regard as unfriendly to him the party that increased his pension and emphasized the honor of his services.

The greatest of all pain cures, Salvation Oil, may be confidently relied on to speedily heal eczema and burns. It is recommended by many prominent housekeepers and cooks as a curative that "just fills the bill." Its effect is magical.

The official vote of Indiana shows Cleveland's plurality to be 7,085.

It is positively without a peer. Mr. Walter Brewer, Vinton, Iowa, says: "I had a very bad cough and a few doses of Dr. Ball's Cough Syrup gave relief and effected a cure. I would not be without it in my family."

Cleveland's plurality over Harrison in Virginia is 50,841.
