

SENSIBLE TALK.

Capt. Ashe, of the News-Observ- er, after taking a few days rest during the holidays, gathers him- self together and pens the follow- ing very sensible article for his paper:

The administration should re- ceive from every Democrat loyal support as far as we may be able to give it. In some matters a great many Democrats at the South can not cordially sustain its measures or its methods; but on other sub- jects, even where a warm approv- al cannot be given, we should seek to stand by those who are charged with the duty of administration. Their situation is not an easy one. They are beset by difficulties. They have to regard the condition of the treasury, while endeavor- ing to give effect to the wishes of the people. They have also to note the drift of opinion at the North and West as well as at the South. That difference exist be- tween the sections, and that the people have different lines of thought is very evident, and the administration seeks to look over the entire field. And so we may not have the will of the people in this locality given effect so entire- ly as if unanimity prevailed throughout the Union.

Wherever we observed a diver- gence, between the administration and Southern thought, we should therefore be temperate in our judg- ment and not hasty. As we have said, the condition of the Treasury itself hampers the administration and also our friends in Congress. The Government is bound to have money to meet its expenses. The Republican Con- gress saddled on the Treasury heavy expenses from which there is now no escape.

The burdens have to be borne. The two sources of revenue are the internal taxes and the tariff. The administration proposes a heavy cut in the tariff. It proposes to increase the receipts of the internal revenue, by imposing a tax on incomes in some shape or other.

These changes may not go to the full extent some may desire, but they are in the right direc- tion. The tariff is to be consid- erably reduced, and the people will derive a still greater benefit from the removal of duties on raw ma- terial, so that the cost of many ar- ticles of prime necessity, now man- ufactured in this country, will be greatly lowered. We will not pay such heavy tribute to the manu- facturers as formerly. That is an important point gained. Hardly less important is the first step which is to be taken towards mak- ing those in receipt of large in- comes contribute somewhat from their annual gains to the payment of the pension rolls.

Rome was not built in a day. We are breaking ground on the right line; and everybody knows that after the ground is once broken the ploughing becomes easier each year. The measures now brought forward are not a final- ity; but improvements will be made from time to time as circumstances permit. Let us then stand close to the administration in all mea- sures that we can, and not be hasty in judgment as to those matters in which we cannot fully concur with the men specially charged to con- sider them and to take action in regard to them.

The Washington correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch says, that the name of Mr. Josephus Daniels is being prominently men- tioned for Public Printer at Wash- ington. The jury by whom Prendergast was tried in Chicago for the mur- der of Mayor Harrison of that city has found the murderer guilty, and recommended that he be hanged. A very righteous ver- dict.

The Washington correspondent of the Richmond Dispatch says: Collector Kope Elias, of North Carolina, has written a letter to the President in which he says that rather than prove a disturbing ele- ment in the Democratic party of North Carolina he will step aside, and he expresses the hope that Mr. Cleveland will at once nominate his successor. He adds that he has always made it a rule to subordi- nate his personal interests to those of his party, and after thanking the President for the manner in which he has stood by him, takes occasion to pay a high compliment to Collector Simmons, who, he says is a splendid Democrat and a gen- tleman who deserves well of his party. He hopes the President will stand by Mr. Simmons.

Mr. M. E. Carter, of Asheville, will probably succeed Mr. Elias.

HOME MAKING.

As the Progressive South says, the art of making a home is one that is not readily learned; at least such is a fair deduction based up- on the many blighted hopes. Home is not merely an eating and lodging place; ties and associa- tions are there formed that man- ifest themselves in after years. There is much sad sentiment in the question, "Where is my boy to-night?" Many mothers wonder why their boys find so many attractions away from home, yet the real cause is with these moth- ers. The boys are noisy, a reprimand follows. Their juvenile companions are mischievous and make more or less dirt, hence they are debarred the privilege of the parlor, and the yard or street is the best entertainment that is to be granted. Games are too often banished, and it is as natural to youth to seek amusement, when not allowed to do so at home other places are early discovered. The taste for getting away from res- traint is thus indulged, it may be- selyly at first, and soon grows to seriousness.

Home is what it is made. If at- tractive, the boys are not apt to wander. We lately met an old school friend and expressed our surprise that he had not married. His reply was that perhaps had he been less pleasantly situated at home he would have married. In this is the secret, make home pleas- ant and those who leave will carry pleasing memories that will aid them in establishing a similar home. This is not always a cause, but it is a rule, that youths will not brook too much imposition so far as even boyish privileges may be concerned. Our girls are given a parlor furnished with music and other attractions, where they en- tertain their friends, but to the "horrid," noisy boys it is forbid- den fruit unless allowed its use as a rare privilege. The boys may oftentimes leave it in a less tidy condition than girls but give them more opportunities to display their taste and make use of the parlors, libraries and sitting rooms and they will in a majority of instances require the extra trouble by ap- preciation.

Boys may be bad by nature, but some of them make most excellent men and probably more would do so if advantages were not denied them. Again the most perverse being may be led unconsciously by influences, when he could not be driven by human power. We must remember that men are only boys grown older and to produce a race of gentlemen we must educate our children to be gentle boys. In- culcating habits in youth is mould- ing the future man, and no parent does its whole duty who fails to study the child's disposition and directs effort to leading and not driving children into the way they should go. Good principles instilled through love are more likely to become permanently rooted than those inspired by fear, for when the rod of fear becomes broken, then naught may hold the native contraries in bond, which when freedom from the restraint has been gained, manifest them- selves with redoubled force.

THE Ways and Means commit- tee of the House has decided by a strict party vote in favor of a tax on incomes, and now the New York Herald is howling because that great big State which con- tains so many great big men, fi- nancially speaking, will have to pay their part in running this Government. The committee re- commends that all incomes of $4,000 and upward be taxed 2 per cent. and it is estimated that this will raise about $80,000,000.

J. ARNER HARRELL, proprietor of Harrell's Printing House at Weldon, died of heart disease at his home in Henderson, last Wed- nesday morning about 4 o'clock. The Roanoke News says of him: He was a man of great energy and push and was a prominent candidate for Government printer, having over 17,000 endorsements. He started his business here in a small way and after twenty years of unceasing labors he had succeed- ed in establishing a large busi- ness which reaches into nearly ev- ery part of the United States. His age was 55.

PATRONIZE FRAZIER (1st Gent.)—And after all you didn't get left? (2d Gent.)—No, but for your advice I would have been left. (1st Gent.)—Why? advice does not keep the time. (2d Gent.)—That's all true, but I took the advice, went directly to Frazier's and bought a new watch that never varies a single second, and then I got to the train in plenty time. (1st Gent.)—Have you seen his Christmas assortment of jewelry? It is perfectly lovely, and I think my best girl only engaged herself to me in order to wear one of those lovely rings at Frazier's. (2d Gent.)—Old boy do you think that had any effect on your girl? If so, I must hurry and patronize him some myself as my best girl is just about to go back on me. (1st Gent.)—Go to Frazier's quick and get a ring for her, and the sight will help I have no doubt. (2d Gent.)—I'm off for Frazier's Jewelry store and will let you know next week how the plan has acted.

ELLIS' Furniture - Store.

(Caller)—Well done, Florence, I am truly sorry I ever spoke of Ellis's Furniture Store to Uncle. Thanksgiving over and we all have a handsome piece of furni- ture, but yet he is not satisfied that he has patronized Sid Ellis enough. (Florence)—What in Christ- dom can you need in that line now? (Caller)—Well, Brother is mar- ried Christmas day, and morn- ing will do, but he must have one of those lovely suites of Oak Furniture at Ellis's, and I must aid in selecting it. Changing the subject rather abruptly, how does your new bed lounge act? (Florence)—It is perfectly grand, acts like a charm—and is not a sham (as some are) but truly an excellent piece of furni- ture, while the upholstery seem- ingly would cost the price charged. The springs and all the rest are equally as good. We have learned to be wise and al- ways patronize Sid Ellis in the furniture line.
