COME FROM BEHIND THE DOOR

The Fayetteville Observer, and possibly one or two other papers of the State have recently contained insinuations that charges have been preferred at Washington by Senator Vance, which aftect the character of Collector Simmons. As will be seen by an article published in the TIMES this week, taken from the News-Observer. Senator Ransom states that the only charges on file against Collector Simmons are of a political nature, and that they were made by Republicans, Populists and one John B. Hussey, a man who was caught during the last campaign "dickering" with the Republicans, and at the same time claiming to be a Democrat. He is now in Washington, and, it is understood, writes the week- he as a "newspaper man" was ly articles in the Caucasian and present when you, Auditor Furthinks that it is time for those come from behind the door and show their hands. The Charlotte Observer of a recent date contains the following very sensible article upon this subject:

The bold, frank statement made yesterday by Collector Simmons to our Raleigh correspondent, is entirely creditable to him. He is "out in the open," and his candor is an invitation to everybody else to come from under cover. As to the charges filed against him, as stated to him by Senator Ransom, it is clear that they originated with the gifted Mr. Settle. As to the statement of Democratic papers that they have authority for saying that Senator Vance has filed charges, it is due the Democratic party and the public that they now give the source of ery County Democratic Executive

THE CHARGES FILED AGAINST CULLECTOR SIMMONS.

Statement from Senator Ranson Which Shows that there is Absolutely Nothing in Them.

It being stated in some of the papers that some charges had been filed before the Finance Committee against Collector Simmons, that gentleman at once wrote to Senator Ransom asking him to ascertain if any charges had been filed against him, and if so, what they were.

In answer to this request, Collector Simmons has received from Senator Ransom the following statement, dated January 23rd

"There is positively nothing here touching your honor. Some charges have been presented to the Finance Committee to try and excine Republicau prejudice against you.

"They consist of an affidavit of John B. Hussey, to the effect that Winston Republican, signed man and Judge Avery fixed up Jonathan Edwards. Now, isn't the "Secret Circular;" of an affihe a pretty fellow to make charges davit each from one Wray and against any one? There is charges-nothing whatever."

Secret Burdens.

How true it is that every heart knoweth its own bitterness There are many burdens that are carried in secret, many afflictions that are endured in silence. The world knows not of them. Those who are readiest to talk of their trials are not always the most heavily burdened. Some hearts' retire within themselves in time of trouble. Their griefs are too sacred to be handed around from one to another, or they are of such kind that others cannot enon their way heavily buildened and without much sympathy and . comfort from their fellow-men. Or perhaps their load is increased by some one saying, "I envy your condition in life. You have not the trouble that I have." But for all such there is this precious depths of their griefs; One whose great work is to give rest to those that are heavy laden and to cheer the lonely heart. It may not do you much good to tell your troubles to the world, but tell them to Jesus. Men may not understand, but Jesus can. Men may not sympathize, but Jesus will. Open literally nothing-nothing in the up your sore hearts, not to the world, but to Him that he may pour in His own healing oil and

THE TEMPERAMENTS.

The Fourfeld Classification That Was Made It is interesting to find that so thoroughly scientific a man as Professor William Preyer has adopted the fourfold classification of temperaments people ought to know it. Then made nearly 2,000 years ago namely. the cholerie, sanguine, melancholy and lymphatic. The existence of one or the other of these temperaments may be discerned, he says in his work on "The Infant Mind," very early in the great majority of children-in the second quarter of the first year, beyond a doubt. Nearly every one who has written about temperaments has got up a classification of his own. Galen had nine, Haycock gave six, Graham Brown seven, and others have got down as low as two. Modern writers use the word nervous for choleric, and bilious for melancholic temperament. With these verbal modifications, the old classification seems to answer all practical purposes, and individuals can build up combinations as needed. Hutchinson defines temperament as the sum of the physical peculiarities of a man exclusive of his tendency to disease. This is not very satisfactory, though perhaps temperament is a thing a little too vague to be satisfactorily defined. In modern terms it may be said to be the peculiar way in which the individual reacts to the stimuli of his environment. There is no doubt ter into them. And thus they got that one class of persons reacts quickly and easily, expending emergy profusely and often needlessly in their life work; others react hopefully and work buoyantly, yet with less waste. We can thus distinguish the nervous, the sanguine, the melancholic, etc. A capacity to recognize and appreciate the importance of temperament used to be considered part of a sound medical trainthought. There is One who fully ing. It has been too much neglected in understands the nature of their our pursuit of minutize with microtrials; One who can enter into the scopes and test tubes. Table Manners In Argentina. "We encamped near a swamp," says a gentleman, describing a meal he had with some cart drivers in South America, "and supped on sliced pumpkins boiled with bits of meat and seasoned with salt. The meal was served in genuine pampa fashion. One iron spoon and two cow's horns split in halves were passed around the group, the members of which squatted upon their haunches and freely helped themselves "Those that are broken in their heart, from the kettle. Even in this most uncivilized form of satisfying hunger there is a peculiar etiquette which the most lowly person invariably observes. Each member of the company in turn dips his spoon, or horn, into the center of the stew and draws it in a direct line toward him, never allowing it to deviate to the right or left. By observing this rule each person eats without interfering with his neighbor. Being ignorant of this custom, I dipped my born into the mess at random and fished about for some of the nice bits. My companions regarded this horrid breach of politeness with scowls of impatience. They declared with some warmth to the cook the foreigners did not know bow to eat. I apologized as well as I could and endeavored thereafter to est according to gatcho etiquette. "- New York World.

> Curios About Respiration. In each respiration an adult of the human species inhales one pint of air. A healthy man will respire 16 to 20 times per minute, or, say, 20,000 times a day; a child, 25 to 35 times per minute. While standing, the adult average respiration is 22 times per minute; lying down, 13 times. The superficial area of the lungs-that is, of their alveolar pace-averages 200 square yards. The amount of air respired each day is about 10,000 quarts. The amount of oxygen absorbed in the same length of time is 500 liters, or about 744 grams. The amount of carbonic acid expired in 24 hours is estimated at 511.5 grams. Two-thirds of the oxygen absorbed in 24 hours is taken in during the 12 hours from 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. three-fifths of the total being thrown off during the day. While this is going on the pulmonary surface is throwing off 150 grams of water in the shape of vapor. The heart sends 800 quarts of blood through the lungs every hour, or about 5,000 quarts daily. The duration of inspiration is fivetwelfths, of expiration seven-twelfths, of the whole respiratory act. -St. Louis Republic.

THOUGHTLESS MINISTERS.

The Cheeky Drummer Catches Two D vines on a Simple Proposition. Abashed at nothing, a commercial traveler in the south once propounded a question to a couple of clergymen, whom he encountered on a railroad train, which illustrates how easily s man may be tripped on a simple little catch problem. The drummer entered into a conversation with the ministers and entertained them amazingly with his brilliant conversation, touching men and affairs. Graddaily the topics changed, until at last the talk was of Dr. Valmage and his visit to the Holy Lard.

'Speaking of the Holy Land," said the graceless commercial man, "I was guite interested to read in a New York paper recently that a party of explorers in Palestine had discovered a huge heap of bones, which, from their size and quantity, are supposed to be of the children which Herod ordered killed. They were found in a cave, which had been closed for centuries, which accounts for their preservation.

"Indeed!" replied one of the clergymen, much interested. "I had not heard of it. It is certainly a surpris- a hunch. ing discovery.'

"Yes." continued the drummer. and, oddly enough, while nearly half of the bones were bleached white, the rest were as black as ebony. "Remarkable," ejaculated the clergyman who had already spoken, while the other looked at the drummer suspiciously. "What is your theory?" he contin-"Do you think it possible that the bleached bones could be of males and the black of females?"

"Possibly," replied the more communicative clergyman, "I am not an anatomist, however, and can't say what effects long exposure has on the bone of the sexes.

"And you," persisted the drummer to the other. "What is your opinion? Do you think it possible that the white bones belong to male infants and the black to female, or vice versa? That is the problem that now excites the dis-

"Really," replied the other, "I don't know; but, possibly, as you first put it, the white bones may be of the male children, and the black of the female.' Shortly after this the clergymen reached their destination and left the train. Just as it was about moving off the drummer, who had been chuckling to himself the meanwhile, thrust into the hand of one a card, upon which was written the words: "Excuse me if I suggest that you read your Bibles hereafter with greater care. Had you done so in the past, you would have known that boy babies only were ordered slain by Herod."-New York Herald.

Ivory Carving In China and Japan. In China and Japan ivory has been carved, the ivory balls inclosed inside one another being specially noted. Many theories have been formed as to bow these balls have been cut. Perhaps a probable one is that a ball of ivory was taken, around the upper and lower ends of which four small boles were carved ont, gradually diminishing in size toward the center until the axis of the one hole met the axis of the other or lower one at right angles in the center of the ball, and that then small tools were inserted, and a thin layer of ivory, forming a part of a circle from one hole to its lower corresponding one, was cut and loosened from the whole mass.
