A Novel Test of Hypnotism.

The latest diversion for these mid summer days is found in a new plan for the practical test of supremacy between hypnotism and Christian science. The pioneers in the new department are Paul Goldsbury, who claims to be something of a hypnotist, and Mrs. Weisner, a very attractive representative of the Christian science theory—both of them from Chicago. The scene is laid at Warwick, Mass. A dispute arose as to the respective powers of hypnotism and Christian science, and the fair apostle of Mary Eddy challenged the Illinois Svengali to a unique test. They were to clasp hands, gaze into each other's eyes, and the one who yielded last, the one whose power could circumvent the power of the other, was to be declared the victor. The story is told in its details in dispatches sent broadcast from the little Massachusetts town. Eighteen hours this handclasp continued. For some unexplained reason the host at the hotel, where the contestants were stopping, objected after eighteen hours, and together they wandered out to the common, each apparently as determined as ever to conquer the spirit of the other. Friends protested and tried to stop the contest, but to no avail. Finally main force was resorted to and the magic clasp was broken. After the contest had been broken Goldsbury showed signs of mental unbalance and he had to be taken home and tied. The fair scientist, however, came out of the contest unscathed.

Commenting upon the incident the Atlanta Constitution remarks: The example set is one likely to be followed. There have been traditions of similar episodes at seaside and mountain resorts, but never heretofore have they assumed the dignity of contests for supremacy between the black art and the power which is destined—so its followers say—to keep the world from falling under the hypnotic spell. It now becomes plain duty of the summer girl to break the eighteen hour record.—Ex.

Chicago's Confederate Monument. Speaking of the dedication of the monument to the Confederate dead in Chicago, the Chicago Inter Ocean [Rep.] says: "They were brave and true to the cause they had been persuaded was right, and why should not their children and the comrades that survive them erect a monument to them and scatter flowers on their lonely graves, so far from the homes they left when they responded to the bugle call to arms? Considered in that light, is there a man who wore the blue in the early sixties who would say they may? Besides the war is over. It has been over nearly thirty years. There are no living "confederates." North and South stand side by side as loyal in devotion to the stars and stripes, and alike believe in the "indestructible union." It is all right about the camp fires, and in the homes to revive the memories of the war and tell the stories of the bravery of those who followed the flag "to glory and the grave." All these things are good to stir the blood and inculcate in the youth the spirit of patriotism. But it is neither wise nor right to stir up the animosities and bitter feelings of thirty years ago. These have grown less and less with every year, and, happily for the country will soon be entirely things of the past."

This is the right kind of talk. It is sensible, charitable, and has the genuine American ring. When the Republican newspapers and ex-Union soldiers talk in this strain about their Southern brethren, they are building up a sentiment which will wipe out sectionalism and make this a united country for all time to come. Henceforth the blue and the gray will march shoulder to shoulder with no shadow of the past across their pathway.—Atlanta Constitution.

IS IT LEGAL.

The Question Raised Concerning the Marriage of a Citizen of Raleigh to a Young Indian Woman.

The other day Mr. A. G. Bauer, a well-known young architect of Raleigh, and a young Indian woman, Miss Rachel Blythe, who has for several years lived in Raleigh, went to Washington City together and were married there. The reason given for their going to Washington to have marriage ceremony performed was that under the laws of North Carolina the union would not be binding if the ceremony was performed in the state. Mr. and Mrs. Bauer went on from Washington after the ceremony for a tour of the Northern cities and it is their expectation upon their return to make Raleigh their home. In the mean time, however, the startling development has come to light that the same law applies in this state to the inter-marriage of white people and Indian as that which prohibits the inter-marriage of the white and colored races, and the marriage above referred to will be null and void in case the contracting parties return to the state and attempt to live in the state. Among other things our laws declare (Sec. 1810 of the Code) that "all marriages between a white person and a negro or Indian or between a white person and a person of negro or Indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, shall be void." Under our laws such a marriage, although it took place outside the state, will not only be invalid but the parties will be subject to indictment in the courts should they return to the state and live together as man and wife. The parties are both well known and highly esteemed in Raleigh. The bride is an attractive, pretty and accomplished young Indian woman, well educated and of unusual brightness of mind and personal attraction. She is a native Cherokee Indian and was educated at the Oxford Orphan Asylum and the Thomasville Orphanage. She has been in Raleigh for several years engaged in work as stenographer and type writer and was a ward of the late Maj. Jno. B. Weatherly. She was the official stenographer of the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly and has from time to time done reportorial work for the Raleigh newspapers. Her education is thorough and she refined and modest in manner. Mr. Bauer is a well known architect and has for several years had an established reputation in Raleigh and over the State. He designed the new deaf and dumb school at Morganton. There is great interest among the friends of both to know what will be the outcome of their return to Raleigh.

A True Bill.

Whenever you hear a man finding fault with a paper, open it, and ten to one he has no advertisement in it; five to one he never gives it a job of printing to do; three to one he does not take the paper; two to one he is delinquent if a subscriber; even odds that he never does anything that will assist the publisher to run the paper and four to one he has never succeeded at anything.

The Laziest Mule on Record.
Atlanta Constitution.
The laziest mule in Georgia eats grass in Houston county. The mule recently fell from the top of a barn but before he reached the ground some one cried "Whoa!" and the intelligent animal paused while he was yet ten feet from terra firma.

Some men always prefer hard work to a light job. They would rather hold a 150 pound girl than a 15 pound baby.

A MOTHER'S GRIEF.

Court Scene When Her Son Was Sentenced To Be Hung.

PARIS, TEX., June 22.—One of the most dramatic scenes ever enacted was witnessed here in the Federal court-room to-day, while Judge Bryant was sentencing John Stevenson, who had been convicted of the murder of Deputy Marshall Joe Gann, at Paul's valley, in August, 1893, the court-room was densely packed with people, all craning their necks to see and hear.

Stevenson was asked if he had anything to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced upon him. He arose and walked within a few feet of the Judge's stand and talked for about 30 minutes. He insisted that he had not had a fair trial and reviewed the case at length. He told of his former career, and declared that he had lived an honest life and, while he had his faults, had never wronged any person. There was so much earnestness and pathos in his manner that every heart was moved to pity and tears glistened in every eye when he had concluded. Judge Bryant said that he was not actuated by any malice, and that he had no choice in the matter and was only performing a disagreeable duty.

"The sentence is," said the court, "that the Marshall of the Eastern District of Texas is directed to take you to the Paris Jail, and to keep you safely there until Friday, September 13, when between the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 p. m."

At this point a piercing cry rang through the room. Stevenson's mother who sat a few feet back of him, rose to her feet and shrieked:

"Oh, my God! How can I bear that after praying over my boy ever since he was a baby!"

Stevenson turned and motioned to his mother to sit down and, in a voice choking with emotion, had her be quiet. Marshal Williams hurried to her side and managed to calm her with words of sympathy. Suppressed sobs were heard from many spectators. After a moment's silence Stevenson walked up to the Judge's stand and leaned against it, when Judge Bryant finished in a lower tone of voice, saying:

"He shall hang you by the neck until you are dead."

When Stevenson sat down his mother clasped him in her arms as if he were a babe, crying and calling him endearing names. His attorneys gave notice of appeal.

Stevens, State Com.—Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at Aycocke & Co's. Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.

He Jest Wants the Yearth.

Washington Post.

We were all complaining of hard times and low wages, and pretty much everything else on earth. "That reminds," said the returned tourist, "that I had occasion to hire a man down in North Carolina the other day. He traveled 'cross the country with me all day and told the history of every man we met. There was one—a certain Bill Ham Somebody or other—who he pointed out as the laziest man in the country. " "Lazzy?" said he. "Hub! Why Bill Hen, he won't do a lick o' work fer less'n 35 cents a day. He jest wants the yearth."

Why Some Women Do Not Marry.
One such woman was used to attack a new science or language every year, and failing, from her lack of teacher or companion, would pile the text books in heaps until walls of dusty volumes shut in every room of the house. She fell at last into a state of semi-idioty, and wandered like a ghost around the village, jabbering scraps of foreign tongues, which she did not understand.

It is a hereditary habit in certain families for the women who have a grief to shut themselves into a single room and remain there for 10, 20 or 30 years. Nor are the morbid fancies of these women always gloomy and sad. They live sometimes in an enchanted land of their own.

One whom I know, a woman of sensuous temperament and motherly instincts, refused to marry a man whom she loved because he had gone to live in another town and she would be forced to leave the old home and half-acre which were the centre of the world to her. The courtship went on for 40 years, but she was true to the house!

Another drove her lover away on the day of the wedding because she could not bring herself to change the name of Wouson for any other. He was rich and she was poor: he remained faithful and ready as long as she lived. She died at 70, a maiden Wouson still. Could pride of blood go further?

Sam Jones got a very pretty Roland for his Oliver the other day out in Omaha. He wanted the man who had never said a cross word to his wife to stand up. A good-looking, good-natured man arose. "Thank the Lord," said Sam, "there is one man who never said a cross word to his wife." "I was never married," quietly responded the man, and thereupon Rev. Sam was so taken aback that he was speechless.

The man who will not stoop low enough to help those who need his help, cannot reach high enough to pluck fruit from the tree of life.
