MAGISTRATES WITHOUT BOOKS.

One of the worst of the many bad things done by the last Legislature was the election of nearly four thousand new magistrates, when the Legislature knew there were no books for them, and without providing a way for them to get books.

Before these men were elected the Secretary of State informed the Committee on Magistrates, and really informed the Legislature itself, that there were only one hundred and twenty copies of the Code in his office. The members of the Legislature borrowed one hundred of them, and of the hundred returned only twenty, and when the election of magistrates came on there were only forty copies of the Code available with which to supply any new ones appointed. There were only a few copies of the Acts of 1885; 1887, 1889, 1891 and 1893. These books are all out of print, and no considerable number can be bought of them; only a copy now and then can be found. No new copies will be printed. The Legislature knew all this, but it did not hesitate to create about four thousand new magistrates, who ought to have these books and must have them before they can have an idea of their duties. The men appointed are charged with the execution of the law in their townships. They occupy responsible positions, and many of them are farmers who have not pretended to study the law. They must for six years administer justice between man and man. They are under the sanction of their oaths, and they are responsible for their acts. They must enforce the law, and they must observe and conform to the law. The law is contained in the Code, and the acts passed since the adoption of the Code, to-wit, in the Acts of 1885-'87-'89-'91-'93-'95—six volumes besides the Code. These magistrates are sworn to execute this law, and then the Legislature does not provide them with the means of knowing the law. It is true that the act creating the new magistrates (three to every township) provides that they shall be furnished books, but it makes no appropriation, and even if it did the books could not be bought if they did not exist. They are not for sale. There are none except those in use, and none could be obtained unless the State were to print them. It has not done this.

Worse still, the Legislature not only did not print any new volumes of the Code and four acts since 1883, but it made no provision for any more of the Acts of 1895 to be printed than heretofore; that is, it deliberately contemplated that its new magistrates should have no books.

Caligula, the Roman despot, sought to entrap his people into violations of the law and thus enable him to punish them. He had the laws inscribed in small characters and pasted high up on the pillar in the Forum, thinking that few people would trouble to climb up and read the law. This Legislature does worse; it creates four thousand officers, many of them ignorant men, swears them to execute the law, and makes no provision whatever for giving them information of the laws which they are sworn to obey and execute. There never has been any Legislature on the face of the earth but our last which would do such an act.

The men appointed ought to be good men. Many of them are good men. They would do their duty if they knew it. They would like to know what their duties are but many of the men appointed have but little experience and but limited knowledge of the law. Without books they cannot properly execute these duties.

HELP YOURSELF.

Fight your own battles. Hoe your own row. Ask no favors of any one, and you will succeed a thousand times better than one who is always beseeching some one's influence and patronage. No one will help you as you help yourself, because no one is so heartily interested in your affairs.

The first step will be such a long one, perhaps; but, carving your way up the mountain, you make each one lead to another, and stand firm while you chop still another out. Men who have made fortunes are not those who have had five or six thousand dollars given them to start with, but boys who have started with a well earned dollar or two.

Men who acquire fame have never been thrust into popularity by puffs begged or paid for, or given in public spirit. They have outstretched their own hands and touched the public heart. Men who win love do their own wooing; and I never knew a man to fail so signally as one who induced his affectionate grandmother to speak a good word for him. Whether you work for fame, for love, for money, or for anything else, work with your hands and heart, and brain. Say, "I will," and some day you will conquer. Never let any man have to say, "I have dragged you up." Too many friends sometimes hurt a man more than none.

A Physician's Last Resort.

"My doctor is a real joker," said a Lewiston lady. "I didn't know that my talking bothered him when he was writing prescriptions until yesterday. He never mentioned it, and I always asked him all sorts of questions while he was writing them out."

Yesterday he examined me and sat down to write something. I kept talking. Suddenly he looked up and said: "Hold out your tongue." I put out that member and he began to write. He wrote and I held out my tongue, and when he got through he said: "That will do." "But," said I, "you haven't looked at it." "No," said he, "I didn't care to. I only wanted to keep it still while I wrote the prescription."

Vice Versa.

The Man Who Never Buys—I have half a notion to brace up an quit drinking.

The Man Who Bought—Would it not be a good idea at the present time for you to drink up and quit bracing?—Cincinnati Tribune.

There are thousands of men who would never be happy without somebody at a distance to abuse.—Galveston News.

In the case of Cahoon v. Speed and others, Jones' Law, Vol. 2, page 182, our Supreme Court found that the magistrate, Speed, had wrongfully issued a search warrant for a runaway negro, and that the constable and others executed the search warrant honestly believing he had the right to issue it in that case, and all his intentions were good, and that the constable in serving it thought he was only doing his duty. But the Court further held that these acts made the magistrate and constable liable in damages to Cahoon, and sustained a verdict of damages awarded by the jury to Cahoon against them.

In the case of State v. Sneed, 84 N. C., 816, our Supreme Court holds Sneed, a magistrate, criminally liable for wrongful acts done as Justice of the Peace and upholds a verdict of guilty and judgment against him.

The conduct of the Legislature in making so many new Justices and failing to provide them with books, and leaving them surrounded with such stringent laws, has the appearance of being utter folly or wanton cruelty.

It is not surprising that a great number refused to qualify. Many of those who have qualified will regret having done so before their term expires.

FREE PILLS.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy on the stomach and are particularly effective in the cure of Constipation and Sick Headache. For Malaria and Liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to the stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c. per box. Sold by Aycocke & Co., Druggists.
