Dear Sir: I have used Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil for Saddle and Collar Galls, Scratches and Barb Wire Cuts with perfect success, and I heartily recommend it to all Livery and Stockmen. C. B. IRVINE, Livery and Feed Stable, BABY BURNED.

Gentlemen—I am pleased to read a word for Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil. My baby was burned a few months ago, and after trying all other remedies I applied your "Oil" and the first application gave relief, and in a few days the oil was well. I also used the oil on my stock and find that it is the best remedy for the purpose that I have ever used. Yours truly, C. T. LEWIS, Paris, Tenn., January 20, 1894.

"Jones Pays 1-2 The Freight."

In this case it is on the "Page Woven Wire Fence," which is the best fence manufactured, and is sold on its merits. Being made of galvanized steel wire, it will last a life time, the coil in it (like a rubber band,) will keep it erect and taut under any temperature, any one wishing a fence of any kind will find it to their interest to correspond with the agent of the "Page Woven Wire Fence Co." before building.

This fence is cheaper than wood or any other material. E. C. JONES, Agent, Laurel, N. C.

Satan's Drawing Room. G. S. Perhacs, who was a lieutenant in the German army and is now an artist in Brooklyn, with a studio on Liberty street, has been engaged for the last six months in transferring to canvass his own ideas of the appearance and surroundings of the entrance to the infernal regions.

Mr. Perhacs says his painting will be marked by one feature at least which will be entirely original.

The picture is 10 by 14 feet in dimensions and will contain 100 figures. The two which will stand out most prominently will be Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll and "the prince of Darkness," otherwise satan. The artist proposes to put his production before the public under the suggestive title of "Ingersoll in the Drawing Room of Hell."

It is said that a letter was received from Colonel Ingersoll saying he had no objection to the use of the title.—New York World.

Why He Wept.

A hard looking tough was on trial in the court of general sessions. Judge Cowing was on the bench. Lawyer Howe, in a voice full of emotion, addressed the jury:

"Gentlemen, my client is a poor man. He was driven by hunger and want to take a small sum of money. All that he wanted was sufficient to buy bread, for it is in evidence that he did not take the pocketbook containing $300 that was in the same bureau drawer." The eloquent attorney for the accused was interrupted by the convulsive sobs of his client.

"Why do you weep?" asked Judge Cowing of the doomed man.

"Because I didn't see der pocketbook in de drawer." Everybody laughed except Howe, the attorney for the careless burglar.—Texas Siftings.

The Ruling Passion.

The truth of that old saying about the ruling passion strong in death was exemplified the other night when a manufacturer of a certain well known patent medicine accidentally fell out of the window of a large apartment house near central park. The man was picked up in an unconscious condition, and the doctors worked with him some time before he revived. As he opened his eyes and realized that a physician was bending over him he said feebly:

"Doctor hays you—ever—used our—pills?"—New York Sun.

An Artful Little Girl.

A little boy and a little girl had a plate given them on which were two strawberries of very different sizes. There was silence and deep thought for a minute. At length the little girl said to the little boy, "Is you greedy?"

With indignation and quite unconscious of the pit into which he was falling, the little boy replied, "No, I'se not."

"Then you choose!" the little maid said.

How About the Aldermen?

Stranger (looking down Wabash avenue)—It's a bloody shame to let an elevated railroad spoil a fine street like this without having to pay something for the privilege.

Citizen—yon misunderstand. I did not say the railway company paid nothing for the privilege. I said the city got nothing for it.

Stranger—Oh!—Chicago Tribune.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J.
