SUNDAY BREAKFASTS.

They Are Used as an Evangelical Agent in Philadelphia—How the Good Work Is Performed.

A unique evangelical organization in Philadelphia is known by the curious name of the Sunday Breakfast association. It was organized Nov. 6, 1878, by 20 reformed men. Their purpose was, by giving a free breakfast, to help poor unfortunate men, found in their own previous condition, into a better way of living. None of the original founders is now directly or actively connected with the association.

Its Objects.
The association was reorganized in November, 1883, and incorporated in 1884, the following being declared its objects:

"The objects of this association are the promotion of Christianity and temperance and the amelioration of the condition of the poor and of fallen humanity by giving a free breakfast on Sunday morning, the holding of religious services and the use of such other means as from time to time it may be considered wise to adopt." This is article 2 of the charter, which gives the association full power to adopt any means along its line of work and usefulness for the welfare and elevation of mankind.

The original board of trustees contained the names of some of Philadelphia's best known citizens—William G. Warden, John Wanamaker, George D. McCroskey, Thomas May Pierce, John B. Stetson, Lewis H. Redner, Daniel Bangh, ex-Governor James Pollock (deceased), Richard Wood, William M. Shoemaker, Dr. A. H. Henderson and Lewis U. Ben.

A Means of Grace.
Hundreds of thousands of unfortunate men have been brought under the influence of the gospel by the giving of a plain meal—a breakfast on Sunday morning of four corned beef sandwiches and three cups of coffee during the six months ending April 30, and a supper every Sunday evening during the entire year, consisting of four rusks and three cups of coffee, while in hot weather ice tea is substituted for the coffee. In addition to these Sunday meetings there are Bible school services Sunday afternoons from November to April, meetings of the Apollon Union for Redeemed Men Mondays, Christian Endeavor meetings Fridays and special meetings every night but Saturday during the winter.

Meats That Are Cheap.
The average attendance of beneficiaries at the breakfasts last year was 790 and at the teas 860. The summer attendance on the tea services averages 595. The breakfast costs 4-6-10 cents and the supper 3-4 cents, and the association, in its requests for aid, shows that $100 will supply breakfast to 1,087 persons and tea to 1,500 more.

It is a curious idea—appealing to man's moral nature through his stomach—but the results, according to Dr. Henderson, the treasurer of the association, justify the plan. As Dr. Henderson says, "Perhaps the breakfast or supper is the only means of getting this class of people under the influence of the gospel." JAMES R. SANDERSON, Philadelphia.

A Beast of Unparalleled Ferocity.
A beast more ferocious, more fiendish or one less likely to be tamed than the Tasmanian "devil" is not to be found. "Devil" is the terse and appropriate name by which it is known in its habitat. The "devil" is about the size of a large bulldog. Its head is one-third the length of its body and is flat, broad and hideous. Its feet resemble those of the badger, with big claws, while its tail sticks out stiffly. Its coat looks like wool rubbed the wrong way, and the general appearance of the beast is of a kind that makes avoidance appear the wisest policy.

The creature becomes a veritable fiend when disturbed ever so slightly. He attacks everything before him, dead or living, and in his mad rage flies at a mastiff or a dog with equal ferocity. He always fights to the finish, knowing none is a shred of flesh to tear or a bone to shatter he clings to his foe, and, unmindful of the injury he may receive, he plies his powerful jaws until his strength fails.

A "devil" that was captured when quite young and kept solely as a curiosity never changed a bit when in captivity. He was surlily and ferocious throughout and ultimately killed himself in a mad struggle with the bars of his cage. He has been known to rush at a solid stone wall in a paroxysm of fury, uttering growls and barks and beating the air the while.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Greatest Fire.
The Chicago fire of 1871, whether considered with regard to the area of land covered, the number of lives lost or the value of the property destroyed, ranks as the greatest of history. Over 18,000 buildings were destroyed, of which 2,400 were stores, shops or factories, and about 100,000 people were rendered homeless by the burning of their houses. The district over which the conflagration swept was 8 1/2 miles in length by more than a mile wide, covering the most densely peopled portion of the city. It is said that 250 lives were lost by accidents during the progress of the fire, and the total value of the property destroyed was estimated at $124,000,000, this estimate not including over $4,000,000 allowed for salvage on foundations and the like. Scores of fire insurance companies were forced by the wall by this terrible calamity, their losses being so great as to drive the companies into bankruptcy. The cash contributions for the benefit of the sufferers of the Chicago fire amounted, within a month after the disaster, to $4,200,000, and the contributions in the way of supplies, food, clothing and other necessities to perhaps as much more.

SHORT NEWS STORIES.

They Have Much to Learn—A Quaker Society—How Carlisle Bought His Home—Tried by Telephone.

Two students from Massachusetts spent several weeks camping out on the shore of a lake in the wilderness section of northern Aroostook. A native of that section has a small farm near the lake and also acts as guide for fishing and hunting parties.

Late one afternoon the students called upon the native and requested the loan of a certain article. While there they stated that they intended to go "moose calling" that evening.
Just as the shades of evening were falling the native had occasion to visit the lake, and he was surprised to hear, coming over the water, the cooing voice of one of the young men, calling out, "Moose-o, moose-o!"
Then he heard the other student say: "You don't call loud enough. Let me try it."

And again arose a voice, louder and still more coaxing in sound, calling out, "Moose-o, moose-o!" This call was repeated time after time, while the amused listener remained on the beach.

The native finally became tired listening to the almost pathetic voices of the young men as they attempted in vain to coax the lordly moose from his retreat in the woods and returned home. The next day he asked the young men what luck they had, and they replied, "We called until 11 o'clock, but no moose appeared."—Caribou (Me.) Republican.

A Quaker Society.
New York has organized a Society For the Promotion of Domestic Happiness. Of course the president of the society is a woman, and authorities differ as to whether she has been divorced three times or four.

The organization announces that it hopes to attain its end by legislation which shall do away with present marriage laws and substitute therefor a four year marriage contract or lease.

This notion certainly is up to date, even if it be not ahead of the times. But the idea is not entirely original with New York. A brawny Swede visited "Marriage Clerk Salmonson's" office in Chicago the other day and inquired the price of a license. He was informed that the precious document would cost him $1. Drawing from his pocket a sock, he slowly counted out in nickels, dimes and pennies $2 and pushed the pile of coins across the counter.

"You've made a mistake here," said Clerk Salmonson, "and given me too much money. The license costs only $1."
"Dot's all right," replied the Swede complacently. "Ay tank Ay know Christina put' well. Ay tak may chances two year anyhow."—Chicago Times-Herald.

How Carlisle Bought His Home.
Colonel James M. Arnold, a brother of Colonel Brent Arnold, is one of the warmest friends the secretary has in Kentucky. Colonel Arnold, in talking of the secretary's purchase of a home in Washington, said:

"I happen to know where he secured the money with which to buy this home that they charge Mr. Carlisle with not being able to buy on his salary. Congressman Draper of Massachusetts admires Mr. Carlisle very much and had him write a very important brief for him. It required just 5 1/2 hours to do the work. Draper is wealthy, and the brief pleased him highly. No bill of charges was filed by Mr. Carlisle, but the congressman sent his check for just $25,000. Mr. Carlisle was taken back by the excessive fee, but took $23,000 of the amount and bought his home. This is how he got the money."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Champion Fisherman.
Alvin Holes of Curvesville is probably the greatest fisherman in Clearfield county. This year he presents a record that cannot be beaten along the Susquehanna anywhere.

During the trout season he secured 1,500 speckled beauties; 800 he caught in Bear run, Greenwood township, and 700 in Heiner run. He has on exhibition 150 eelskins, the result of this year's catch, and has caught 135 bass, all of which were secured in a distance of one-fourth of a mile from Curvesville dam to a point below the Susquehanna House.

Forty-four bass were caught while standing on one stone, and 6 of these 44 were over 19 inches long. This is no fish story, but can be verified by Curvesville citizens, whom nobody dare challenge for truth and veracity.—Raftsmen's Journal.

Tried and Fined by Telephone.
Hugh Gallagher of Mount Clair is a very busy man. What with running his large flour and feed business and looking after his campaign for freeholder on the Republican ticket, he had not much time to spare.

Friday when the hour came for him to appear before Recorder Ames to answer to a charge of blockading the sidewalk, Mr. Gallagher called up the recorder on the telephone and said: "Hello, Mr. Recorder! I plead guilty to that charge."
"Fined $10," answered the recorder over the 'phone.
"All right. I'll send up the money right away. Goodby!"
The only thing Mr. Gallagher regrets is that there was no way of paying the money by telephone.—Chicago Tribune.

Her Punishment.
"Oh, Harold! Last night I dreamed I died and went to purgatory, and how do you suppose I was punished?"
"My dear little wife has never done anything deserving of punishment," replied the gallant Harold. "But what did you dream?"
"I was made to do all the things I had ever told my acquaintances I would do if I were in their place. Oh, it was too horrible to think of!"—London Fun.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Domestic Heating Practically Presented. To Close Up a Superfluous Door—Celery Sauce.

The heating of living and work rooms is briefly and practically considered by Good Housekeeping. Where the occupants are actively engaged each room, it is stated, should have a thermometrical register ranging between 62 and 68 degrees; for sedentary habits, from 64 to 70 degrees; bathrooms, 72 to 76 degrees; these records to be varied at different hours of the day or night, with due consideration to the given amount of sunshine or shade bearing upon the rooms.

Students of hygiene quite generally maintain that coal containing any considerable amount of sulphur contaminates the air offensively and unhealthfully.

A thin layer of coal on stove or furnace grate bars gives better results than when unduly overloaded.

A small stove or furnace crowded to overheating is not as economical of fuel or as considerate of health as are larger heating facilities and a less use of fuel.

Open grate fires, while they furnish an element of good cheer, are not as economical of fuel as are appliances of the close heating appliances. For purposes of ventilation, the open methods of heating have a decided advantage over the closed ones.

Self feeding heaters are generally considered as mediums demanding less attention and less fuel than those "brought up by hand."

All warmed rooms in winter should have arrangements for the use of good quantities of fresh water basins daily.

Ordinary steam house heating apparatus should have a register pressure of not more than five pounds of steam to the square inch.

Radiators neither take in nor drive out bad air and have no elements of ventilation whatever. A vessel of water holding prominent place in rooms heated by radiators is always desirable.

Hot water heating gives a moister tone to the air of the room than dry air systems of heating, generally speaking.

How to Sew on Buttons.
Buttons should be sewed on with silk even on wash garments, says The Standard Designer. The hole should be made first, and then the places marked for the buttons with a thread or chalk. Coat buttons should not be sewed through to the wrong side, but the needle slipped between the goods and the lining. Sometimes, when a shank button is used, a hole is made with a stiletto through to the wrong side, and brass rings, similar to small key rings, are run through the shank, holding the button firmly and preventing the breaking of the shank. If the goods are soft woolen and the buttons heavy, sometimes the fastening pulls out, cloth and all. To prevent this sew a small button on the wrong side opposite the holes of the large button. Bring the thread through the eye of the small button as well as through those of the large one and the cloth, and it will be found that the fastening holds firmly and neatly.

Floral Decorations.
The chrysanthemum afford a variety of color for the autumn and winter tables. At present dinners and suppers can be decorated with scarlet and gold, scarlet and pale green, or even scarlet and white. The former is almost indispensable at this time of year, though the bright russet chrysanthemum can be used with great advantage to ring a pleasant change. For more special occasions, and where expense is no object, Neapolitan violets, with pink roses or pink carnations arranged in sprays and sections, etc., produce a most charming effect.

Glazed Sweet Potatoes.
Select potatoes of uniform size. Pare and cut into long, oval shape. Cook in boiling salted water until nearly tender. Mix one-fourth cupful of sugar with one-fourth cupful of butter, and melt in one-half cupful of hot water. Arrange the potatoes in a graniteware pan. Moisten with the sugar mixture. Set them into the oven and baste often with this sirup. Cook until they are covered with a rich brown glaze, but do not let them burn.—Mrs. Lincoln.

To Close Up a Superfluous Door.
The Japanese porch curtain serves well to close up a door which destroys the harmony of a room, remarks The Decorator and Furnisher. It acts as a decoration, and besides gives to the apartment a picturesque effect. A good drapery of any kind can also be used, provided it is simple in design. Small gilt rods with ends as better than heavy walnut poles on which to hang a curtain, especially where a closet or door is concerned.

Celery Sauce.
Celery makes an excellent hot sauce to serve with boiled poultry. Wash 2 heads of celery, cut them into pieces an inch long and steep them in a pint of water and a teaspoonful of salt until the celery is tender. Rub a large tablespoonful of butter and a spoonful of flour well together. Stir this into a pint of cream, put in the celery and let it boil up once.

Scalloped Squash.
Boil and mash the squash in the customary way and let it cool. Beat the yolks of 2 eggs, and when the squash is nearly cold whip these into it, with 2 tablespoonfuls of milk, 1 of butter rolled in flour and melted into the milk. Pepper and salt to taste. Pour into a buttered baking dish, cover with fine crumbs and bake to a light brown in a quick oven.

Exactly overhead, strange as it may seem, on the highest spring of the arch of Virginia's natural bridge, is a figure of a gigantic vreed eagle proudly perched in the very position in which it is seen on the American coat of arms.
