A CAUCASIAN LADY DRAGGED BEFORE AN AFRICAN Raleigh Press-Visitor MAGISTRATE.

By an African Constable and Prose cuted by an African Attorney in an African Barber Shop,

Negro constable, negro lawyer, negro magistrate, negro loafers. The odors that are reculiar to the race thick and dense, and all this in a negro barber shop away up in Five Points. Over the floor in knotted heaps were countless creep with strange sensations. Everything essentially "niggery." must be maintained, but the dignity of this court could not be admitted except the mind struggled the negro constable. A pure-minded Caucasian lady of refinement and delicacy charged by the negro lawyer and his negro clients with abducting and harboring a little negro girl, and only so charged because she had so resented the officious impertinence in her own home of the negro lawyer and negro clientsthis frail lady of refinement was summoned to appear before that negro court in Five Points yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The husband of the lady was also warranted. He appeared but his wife did not. Thank God for that! "Law and order," and "respect for the court" could not, under the peculiar conditions and circumstances drag this white woman of refined sensibilites into this negro barber shop before the crowd of negro loafers and negro magis-

There is no need to enter into Loss of Allied Armies the grimmy details of the case, or to elaborate the proposition that defendants were entirely guiltless E. F. YARBOROUGH, of the brazen, brutal charge. As a matter of spite the case was born of the spite and maliciousness of the African attorney-a mark to home due a man "of the cloth"so he took his revenge.

The african dispenser of immaculate justice could not read the warrant, so this was done by the respect "the court"-even if it cannot read its own decree!

The defendants, through counsel, waived examination, and were each placed by the intelligent court under a one hundred dollar justified bond. The crowd of negroes looked on in awe and silence. What dreams of splendid powers reposed in their race must have swept through their minds! What victories yet to be won! A white man-and his wife!-bending low to a frizzle-headed magistrate!forced to hear the lashing froth of a frizzle-headed lawyer!-dragged into a frizzle-headed court by a splendid victories were theirs!
