TOM SETTLE.

Some of His Republican Friends Says He is Heading for Democracy.

Mr. I. E. Avery, correspondent The Charlotte Observer, Raleigh Post and other papers, has been interviewing Hon. Thomas Settle, ex Congressman from this district in which he says he will support the constitutional amendment next year. He further says he will not be a candidate for any office within the gift of his party, adding that he could not do so by reason of being at variance with the rank and file on the amendment question, or words to that effect.

This morning a prominent and well known Republician-and it was no Tyre Glenn, either-was seen just after reading the interview.

"What do you think of it?" he asked. "Tom is getting ready to flop; he will be a Democrat in good standing before many moons," was the answer. Continuing, he said:

"Truth is, and you know it as well in the beautiful castle of Miramar as I do, that Mr. Settle has been somewhat shaky for some time. Last year and accomplished Carlotta, daughhe came very near deserting us. In ter of King Leopold the First, of fact, you people had him down at the Belgium. What Right?

If a person is charged with a crime, be or she has a right to a fair, legal trial. The counsel for such person should endeavor to ob tain a fair trial for the accused, but should not seek to defeat the ends of justice by screening or barboring the guilty . A lawyer should not seek to brow-beat witnesses, nor deceive juries; nor should a man who is opposed to capital punishment sit on a jury. He should state to the court that be is unfit to sit on a jury because he is opposed to the law which says a murderer shall be hung. Such a man has no right to sit on a jury and if he is honest be will tell the court he is opposed to capital punishment.

When one is legally convicted of a crime then his duty is to sufferto pay the penalty. He has no right to refuse to suffer.

It is the duty of every man to protect the innocent, and equally the duty of every man to see that ples which, after long study, be those guilty of crime should be legally punished. That is the way has adopted as his guide. He to protect the innocent. does not prejudge through bias or
