CORRESPONDENT WRITES INTERESTINGLY.

BRIEF SKETCH OF HIS LIFE FROM MEMOIR PUBLISHED BY E. J. HALE

Some time ago one of our members | the Cloud': asked for information about Edwin W. Fuller, author of "Sea Gift," a novel. As no one has given it, I will condense a memoir from a fuller one published by E. J. Hale & Son, in 1881, as a will prove all we say. Everything preface to his long poem, "The Angel in the Cloud," I was speaking once to a friend whose literary opinions I value, on the lack of general appreciation of our Southern writers, when he remarked, "I had a classmate, who would have commanded attention had he lived longer." As a result of this conversation "The Angel in the Cloud" came into my possession. Edwin Wiley Fuller was the only was born in Louisburg, N. C., November 30, 1847, and died April 21, 1876.

We find he came of a family whose ded to the membership of the next men were brave and women fair, and House about 56 members, making the he upheld this reputation. "Those total membership 413. Aside from young men of East Tennessee, North the difficulty of doing business in a Georgia, and Southwestern Virginia, who were students of the University of Virginia during the term of 1867-8, will readily recall a youth of fragile frame and somewhat diminutive statue, who came among us at the opening of the term, whose eagle eye attracted the attention, while his gentle, winsome manners won our hearts They will remember how soon we bowed in heartfelt homage before the splendid intellect of him who seemed only a boy of tender years, and they will readily concede him to have been the leading spirit of the band with whom he was almost an idol. His versatility of talents, his modest, retiring nature, his chivalric sense of honor, his calm, deliberate judgment, his high-souled integrity of purpose, his boundless ambition, his devotion as a friend, his exalted manhood, all all these rise fresh before the minds of all who knew him at the University, and even more vividly will they recall the pure, unsullied character he bore. The tailure of his father's health at this time compelled him to lay aside his literary pursuits and assume the burden of his father's business. However, he commenced to revise and enlarge his 'Angel in the Cloud,' which was first printed in the Univer sity Magazine as a short prem of only a few pages. His father died before the poem was completed and its dedication of it reads: "To the hallowed memory of my Father, who, even while I was gazing upon the golden city, passed within its walls, this little volume is inscribed with tears."

In the summer of 1891, it was pub lished in book-form, When the manuscript was almost ready for the publisher's hands, Mr. wards became his wife. CONGRESSIONAL APPOINTMENT UNDER THE NEW CENSUS.

When Congress takes up the quesion of reapportionment of Represen tatives it will be brought face to face with the problem of increasing the number of representatives or of the ratio of representation. Already the House has 357 members and is an unwieldy body. The basis of represenson of Jones and Anna L. Fuller, and tation is at present one member for 173,000 constituents. Should this ratio be maintained there will be adbody of such proportions, there will be the greatest difficulty in seating 56 more members in the present chamber. There is room for a hundred more than now sit in the chamber, but it will be impossible to add fifty seats, with desks, without taking up all the space and leaving no room for passage behind the railing. As each member is entitled to $5,000 a year salary, $1,200 for a clerk, $250 for stationary and his mileage, the addition of 56 members would increase the expenses of the House about $350,00 per annum, to say nothing of their additional cost > of carrying their franked matter in the On the other hand, to increase the ratio of representation to 200,000 which would leave the membership about 336, or almost the present figures, might endanger the representation of some States in the House and would certainly shift the lines some Congress districts so as in many cases to throw two members of the present House in the same district. It has always been the custom to fix he representation so as not to reduce he representation of any State. Another serious question in connecwith the House is the reducof the representation of those Southern States, which have disfranchised the negroes. The census reinhabitants of a voting age, and comparison with the election returns will number of voters disfranchised .- Cor. Washington Springfield Republican.

The action of the Indianapolis con rention is one of the signs of an tellectual and moral movement which is to the advantage of the Democratic candidate.

There is a great contrast between the situation to-day and that of four years ago. In 1896 the independents were practically all for Mr. McKinley, thi year many of them are for Mr. Bryan. Any change indeed must have been favorable to the Democratic candidate. The mere allayment of excitement, the indecision of some conservative men him down in the hey-day of his great in choosing their candidate, the willinguess of many more who supported Mr. McKinley in 1896 to consider in the concluding lines of his Angel in calmly the issues and the candidates of this year, show that something has driven from Mr. McKinley some of the most intelligent, the most unselfish and the most patriotic of his support ers of four years ago. The men who have turned away from him are intellectually among the strongest, men of an exceptional class of citizens. They are the leaders of those who put their country above their party. Some of them were the glory and strength of the Republican cause in 1896. They are now to be the glory and strength of the Bryan

Call the roll of the Indianapolis convention and mark the striking loss n intellect and character which Mr. McKinley has sustained and the resultant gain to Mr. Bryan. Mr. Schurz is now against the Republican candidate, and no one knows better than Mr. McKinley trimself that here he has lost and Mr. Bryan has gained the most eloquent and potent orator who spoke for the Republican candidate in 1896 If any other speaker approached Mr. Schurz in interest and effectiveness it was Mr. Bourke Cockran. He is for Mr. Bryan because, as he says in his letter to the Indianapolis convention, he believes that Mr. Bryan's election of itself would put a quietus on the imperalistic adventure, while it the Republican party succeeds, "at the end of four years imperialism will be so firmly imbeded in our political life that it can never be expelled.' The venerable George 5. Boutwell, ex-Senator and ex-Secretary, says: "In my age, I leave the Republican party now that it has surrendered itself to despotic and tyranical motives." Moorfield Storey, Charles Sumner's private secretary and biographer, de clares against Mr. McKinley. Ed ward M. Shepard, one of the ablest o the gold Democrats of New York, and one of Mr. McKinley's ardent supporters four years ago, announces that he will work and vote for Mr. Bryan John B. are expressing. What is the meaning of the change ! Primarily it is due to Mr. McKinley himself. He has deceived and disappointed and angered many of the men who four years ago deemed it the duty of all patriotic and honest men to vote for him. Now they regard him as a menace to Republican institutions. They are still gold standard men. They have not changed their principles. They have counted the cost of electing Mr. Bryan. They are willing to pay it, whatever it may be, in order to ris the country of McKinleyism and its dangers. They are against imperialism, against the denial of the principles of the Declaration of Independence, against executive or legislative rule outside of the constitution, against the greed which surrounds the country with that atmosphere of corruption which is inseparable from money-seek-
