Is a proverb whose wisdom is illus trated in the case of William A. Ro-denberg, late a representative in con-gress from the East St. Louis (Ills.) district. He is one of the Republi who "fell outside the breastworks" "the melancholy days of November Consequently he is one of those who the Washington Post facetiously dulis "McKinley's lame congr Rodenberg applied for one of the Lor siana Purchase exposition commis nerships. As he is y some, intelligent and prepossussing and had done yeoman service in securing that $5,000,000 appropriation, it appeared eminently proper that he be appointed. But Mr. McKinley thought therwise and bestowed that particular um elsewhere. Rodenberg's indorse nents, however, had so impressed the resident that he gave him a civil service commissionership, a four years' term, with a $5,000 salary. Now, that's not bad. Individually I congratulate Rodenberg. He is a tiptop, good man, barring his execrable politics. He was educated in my district. Now that he has gone into a quasi reform office perhaps he may reform indeed and join the Democrats. While the Better Rend Esop. If Hon. George D. Melklejohn, late representative in congress for Nebrasks and later assistant secretary of war, had read Æsop carefully and had remembered what he read, he would not now be a statesman out of a job The particular creation of Æsop to which I would call my old colleague's attention is the story of the silly dog which, with a good, juicy bone betwixt his teeth, was crossing a stream. Seeing the shadow of the bone in the water, he concluded that it was another and better bone, which he needed in determined to lasso one for his own use. While he was chasing assiduously President McKinley cruelly took away his war berth, the Nebraska legisla-ture turned him down, and now he is outside in the cold, cold world, where there is weeping and walling and gnashing of teeth and perhaps a little profaulty. Æsop had a great head!

Republican Fraud. Late developments as to the way the census figures were padded by Repub-lican partisan officials in Maryland for political purposes have shown such coossal frauds as to render them entirely worthless for any useful purpose. Conequently Governor Smith, Democrat s greatly praised because he is about o have a state census taken upon the result of which some reliance may be placed. The principal reason for the padding appears to be that a certain Republican congressman who has an eye on a seat in the United States senate was being boosted by the padding on the principle, "More people, more representation in the legislature and more votes for senator." Of course It is known of all men that the Republicans are the apostles of sweetness, purity, light and goodness and are peculiarly the guardians of the ballot box. Consequently it is heartrending to see one of their leaders caught redbanded in padding the census preparatory to stuffing the ballot box and fraudu lently enlarging the legislature, The fact that a fraudulent congressman and a fraudulent presidential elector also result from this padding of the census is very disquieting.
