A New Map of the World Needed. From time to time geographers issue new maps of the world on which the possessions of each nation are printed a some peculiar color for purposes of dentification. The British color leads all the rest. One of the most gorgeous sentences that ever fell from human lips is that of Daniel Webster about England's drumbeat encircling the globe. At the present writing ours does the same, but if J. Pierpont Morgan keeps on making conquests a new map of the world will soon be necessary with a Morgan color to indicate the Morgan possessions. Indeed, he is rapidly forging to the front as one of
