[Special Washington Letter.]

Far and away the most important ut-

erance of any public man this year, perhaps in this generation, is that of President McKinley touching the third term matter. "Words fitly spoken," says King Solomon, "are like apples of gold in pictures of silver." That Mr. McKinley's were fitly spoken there can be no question, "I say now, once for all, expressing a long settled conviction, that I not only am not and will not be a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it if it were tendered me." That sentence opportunely published confounds his enemies, rejoices his true friends, personal and political; relieves many genuine patriots of a great fear and increases vastly his stature as an American statesman. It does more than all this. It adds the weight of another Illustrious name to the precedent set by ign regard for him, and both for his joy that he has settled the third term dlocy for another generation at least. I can say with some pride, "I told you so," for I never doubted that his common sense would in due time put an effectual stopper on those sycophants who were endeavoring to lure him into a course which would have jeopardized his popularity and would perhaps have ended in Ignominious defeat, a sad ending to such a triumphant career. Standing today on the topmost pinnacle of human power, having sounded all the shoals and depths of honor, he can render his country at least one take advantage of his tremendous influence to secure an amendment to the constitution limiting the presidency to one term of six years and making the incumbent forever after ineligible to earth has to bestow. If he can do this, future generations will call him bless-

Mr. McKinley's performance reminds ne of a story. Out in Pike county, Mo., there once lived a great wag named Sid Shaw, who occasionally bearded and bucked the tiger in his lair. Early one morning a friend found Sid leaning against a lamppost in St. Louis, looking exceedingly disconsolate. He kindly inquired, "Sid, what's the trouble?" Sid replied with tearful voice, "I played faro all night, lost my last cent and feel that I have been acting the fool with nothing to show for it!" It seems that Senator Chauncey Mitchell Depew and General Charles Henry Grosvenor must feel much as did Sid Shaw. Depew may get out of his predicament by declaring that it was all a huge joke, but General Grosvenor cannot escape so easily from the well merited derision of mankind which he has brought upon himself by advocating an un-American nistory and with the genius of our inburn more than they tickle. He was in have been. The most charitable view that can be taken of his performance is that his affection for the president

Then I was denounced as a bad citizen by men who had accepted a retainer from the sugar kings and who had their ill gotten gains jingling in their pockets. Now, strange to say, an elaborate news dispatch has been sent out from Washington as a feeler to prepare the way for the free admission of Chinese coolies into those leprous islands primarily and into the rest of our territory finally. The meaty part of the aforesaid dispatch runs as follows:

The great problem which will shortly confront the people of the island of Hawaii and threaten future development is that presented by the lack of laborers, according to a treasury department official, who has just returned from Honolulu, where he went with orders to pay off the public debt of the island. He says also that the imporit is Mark's-of mental telegraphy. Since annexation the ie communication-like the Irishman wanted the doctor to give him his whisky, "unbeknownst to himself"and I may have imbibed his idea-that is, if we do imbibe ideas, of which I am handle the sugar crops. Since amexation the acreage has increased to a surprising extent, and the planters have been obliged to look elsewhere for laborers. Experiments show that the negro from the United States is not adapted to the work, and the Porto Ricans were taken as another experiment. Now it appears they have not come up to expectations. Amende Honorable. Not long since, when my brilliant and eloquent friend, Senator Carmack of Tennessee, in his speech at a presidential banquet opportunely asserted that he was weary of the gush about a reunited country as though it were a brand new fact and declared boldly and with great good sense that the country had been thoroughly reunited for a generation, certain newspapers represented that my other brilliant and from him the idea at least, whereupon I preferred my claim of priority over both, setting forth that I made similar sade against the trusts.
