The Republican legislature in the abode of the blessed. Situated as last winter corrymandered the state in this republic is, and it is a situation the responsibility for which is on both par-ties, we are bound to fight the Moros. Here is the way in which the St. Louis Globe-Democrat puts the case: "The latest killing of American sentries by the Moros was deliberately intended to provoke a war. General Chaffee will see that the hostilities rendered necessary are of the kind that hurts the savages." The Springfield Republican, looking at the case from the anti-imperial stand-point, puts it thus: "The expected campaign against the Moros which General Chaffee foreshad-ows will certainly be in line with our history in the archipelago. If the Republican loaders in the Fifty-sigth and Fifth-seventh congresses had directed all their energies to the task of avoiding any interference with the trusts, their record of success in that endeavor could not have been more complete than it is "The party that attacks trusts" Did-em the Globe-Democrat use that phrase as a challenge to ridicule? It would answer that purpose admirably if the subject were less serious.

That is a strong criticism of the G.-D.'s idlocy or mendacity. What will be the effect on the G-D.1 NU-pre-

Of course the G.-D. knows better. It is simply trying to boodwink its readers. Any port is good in a storm. In the foregoing article the Post indicates how to bust the trusts-by cutting down the tariff on articles on which trusts run up prices.

One on Governor Deckery.

This story is being told on Governor Dockery of Missouri: A few days ago he started to walk from the executive mansion to a hotel in Jefferson City. On the way he passed two lemonads stands which had been started up by youthful residents of the capital. He paused to observe them more particularly, and the boys began vehemently to solicit his trade. One informed him that his lemonade was 5 cents a glass, the other that his was only 3 cents. The governor, thinking to give them an object lesson in both business and politics, bought a glass of the three now Mason has induced many of them cent decoction.
