forever the animosities of the civil war, but the Republican orators will not have it so. Will they find a favorable response among the people in their efforts to once more stir up sectional strife? Hardly. At the end they will have the mortification of knowing that they did a monstrous thing only to increase the Democratic majority. This campaign is to be fought out on live issues, and no amount of demagogy will suffice to turn back the hands of the clock twoscore years. The overshadowing question before the Amer-what we will do with the Philippines, the issues of this contest are purely business matters-the tariff, trusts and economy in the public expense that thought of the American people cannot be diverted from considering these questions by wild harangues about sein that part of the country is better for the Democrats than it has been for years, beginning in 1894. The Repub-

In Michigan Republican factional fights it goes to him who has the largest barrel and uses its contents most lavish-It may possibly be that in the fierce combat betwirt the multimillionaires Hon. William Alden Smith will find his opportunity to bound into the senate. That able Democrat, Mr. Lucking of Detroit, appears to be certain of re-election to the house, a fact upon which the country is to be most heartily congratulated. There is also hope of picking up another Democratic congressman or two in Michigan.

In Wisconsin the signs of the times ndicate that Parker and Davis will receive the electoral vote and that the Democrats will elect the entire state ticket and capture a United States senatorship. Hon. William S. Cowherd of Missouri, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, is reaching out for balf a dozen Democratic congressmen from Wisconsin. That brilliant and ambitious young man has the temerity to go after the scalp of Mr. Babcock, chairman of the cession and African slavery. For these Republican congressional campaign

Judge Parker's Speech.

All sorts of folks have expressed all sorts of opinions about Judge Parker's speech. Democrats pronounce it to be a great speech, a winning campaign document: Republicans do not appear to like it, but no two give the same reason for disliking it. The real reason is that they believe it has increased his prospects of election very much.

The impression made on those who heard it is that Judge Parker is a great intellectual force. While he read it from manuscript, the great orators and judges of oratory who heard him concluded that should be take the stump would create a profound sensation reason of his luminous style and great nervous energy. Whether he will take the stump is not known. Stephen Douglas began the presidential stumping plan, and it has been much in vogue in later days. Judge Parker is a handsome man, commanding presence and of cordial manners. None of his pictures does him justice. When I was a child back in the hill country of Kentucky I heard an old fashioned rough and ready counwith 1,500 Democratic majority, had been part of that district for a long time, making it fighting ground, with try doctor say that he judged people by their "flesh marks," which was his way of declaring he believed in physiogno my. Judged by that standard, Judge Parker measures up to the presidential standard. He looks fit. Individually I am glad that he has red hair, for I recall that Thomas Jefferson; the greatest statesman that ever lived, bar none, who possessed the most exquisite brain ever housed in a human skull, was redheaded. If there is any connection between the color of man's hair and the character of his deeds, the country is to be congratulated on the fact that Judge Parker's capillary adornments are of the Titian-

His delicate sense of honor in resign ing his great judicial office, with a large salary and a long term to run, appeala strongly to the American people. In fact, his conduct from the first day his name was mentioned for the presidency has constantly won him friends.

His discussion of the issues was clear pold and conservative. His firm and unequivocal declaration as to a single term will win him many votes, because it is right. There is a growing sentiment in favor of a constitutional amend ment fixing the presidential term at six years and making a president forever ineligible after serving one term. If Judge Parker is elected and adheres to his admirable declaration - which he undoubtedly will do-he will give a great impetus to the movement in favor of the adoption of that amendment.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat rises to remark that the Texas Republicans are going to make a bard fight this year, Of course they are. They always do. They can't make any other sort. They always find Jordan a hard road to travel. The Globe-Democrat is minently correct. It hit the bullseye pefore an election, it proudly remarked The Republicans of Texas will be able to reduce the Democratic majority to less than 200-000," but that was the year in which the Democrats split and ran two candidates for governor-Hogg
