CONDENSED STORIES.
Wondrous Things in Boston and in Haye, France.
Lazare Weiller, who came to this country on behalf of the French government to study industrial conditions, speaking to the chamber of commerce at a few days ago made an unusually happy speech in reference to the kindness with which he had been treated in America in the course of which he said:
"I was at that New England society dinner where the speaker, after eulogizing Boston, told of meeting a New York friend, who asked: 'What talk me a Bostonian what is the most wonderful thing you have in Boston?' And he replied: 'The $30 strain for New York.'
"Well, gentlemen, taking my thoughts across the seas that separate France from America, I have this impression: The most attractive thing in our French port Haye that I shall find hereafter is the ship which will take me again to America."
He Had a "Frank."
One of the "children" of Chicago is Inspector Max Heidleman of the police force. Max, or "The Burgomaster," as he is called, is a stocky little Lawrenceville man.
Full Blooded Indian Babies Born.
The present generation of full blooded Indian babies is interesting from many points of view. In the first place, there will be no more full blooded Indians born, as men and women of pure Indian blood are rapidly marrying either white persons or Indian whose blood is largely mixed with that of the whites. Moreover, these pure blooded children inherit in many cases large sums from the sale of lands to the government or own valuable reservation property, so that many of them have more suitors than Penelope.
It is only on the reservations of the far southwest that the curious little Indian babies are to be found. There are now among the twenty tribes only 8,000 full blooded Indian children. In these same tribes there are more than 20,000 children through whose veins courses a strain of white blood. They are healthy, fat youngsters and, despite their rough usage, grow up to be strong men and women—Cosmopolitan.
The Giddy Young Thing!
Mrs. Gilbert's eightieth birthday, which was celebrated recently at St. Louis with a flower-hung dressing room and a serenade by the orchestra, which played "Audef Lang Syne" on the stage after the performance, occurred just before an illness which necessitated a short rest. When she returned to the east at the Lyceum theater in New York, one reason after another was advanced as to the cause of her indisposition. In that vibrant voice of hers that has retained its mellow strength through these many years, she denied in turn each one of the causes ascribed. "I'll tell you what it was," she said finally and with a twinkle in her eye. "I had too much birthday."
That makes a difference.
"Oh, don't let me put you down! I know who I am." The Empress doesn't know who I am. I'm an Empress!" Max Heidleman. "I'll show you what it was," she said finally and with a twinkle in her eye. "I had too much birthday."
Drop Out a Dime.
"Vot's dot?" said the inspector. "Put in a ten cent piece."
"Dots a yoke, aid id? I put me no money in. I'm on de police force."
That makes a difference.
"Oh, don't let me put you down! I know who I am. I'm an Empress!" Max Heidleman. "I'll show you what it was," she said finally and with a twinkle in her eye. "I had too much birthday."
Precautions for the Care of the Child.
No nihilist will ever get a chance at the court of Russia with a razor, at least in the guise of a barber. The autocrat has his beard carefully trimmed, but with scissors. Even this is created as a responsible and important function, and of the four grand masters of the court, as they are called, one always attends the czar when his majesty is under the barbers' care. Not that any doubt is cast as to the fidelity of the tonsorial artist. The family of the Guelakovski have been barbers to the imperial house of Romanov from the time of Czar Paul.
The Miller's Thumb.
It is by the thumb the miller tests the character and qualities of the grain he grinds. Spreading the sample over the fingers by a peculiar movement of the thumb, he gauges its value by the thumb itself. Continuous action in this way makes the thumb assume a shape resembling the wide flattened head of the bulldog, or Tommy Loope, a fat prevalent in mill streams, which in consequence is popularly known as the miller's thumb.—Chambers' Journal.
A Test For Big Stores.
The Rev. Dr. P. S. Henson, who was recently called from Chicago to Brooklyn, was met by a friend in one of the big department stores while doing some shopping.
"Good day, doctor! What are you doing here?" he asked.
Dr. Henson, who had been delayed for some time, replied, "I can best answer your question with the words of the text Job xiv, 14: 'All the fangs of death have come.'"
The former asked, "When do you think the war will be over?"
"Oh," replied the other, "when you people are able to catch a horse with an ox wagon, not before."
A Law For Husband.
At Ulzen, in Hanover, the authorities have passed a law which is more popular with the fair than the sterner sex. Husbands must be home by 11 o'clock. A fine equal to 10 shillings is the penalty for infringing this regulation, half of which goes to the person—presumably the wife—who brings and proves the accusation.
No More Suffering.
If you are troubled with indigestion get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and see how quickly it will cure you. Gen. A. Thomson, of Spencer, Ind., says: "My doctor recommended DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which was recommended and I used a few bottles of it, and it is the only thing that has relieved me. Would not recommend it, however, to any physician, with the exception of Dr. DeWitt, who has the only remedy that has done me any good, and I heartily recommend it. Every person suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia should use it." Sold by Aycock's Drug Co.
Beware of Counterfeits.
'DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve,' writes J. L. Tucker, of Centre, Ala. "I have used it many times for piles, cuts and burns for years and my doctor recommended it. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve was recommended and I used a few bottles of it, and it is the only thing that has relieved me. Would not recommend it, however, to any physician, with the exception of Dr. DeWitt, who has the only remedy that has done me any good, and I heartily recommend it. Every person suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia should use it." Sold by Aycock's Drug Co.

The Way to Make Oatmeal Biscuit Griddlecake.

To make buckwheat griddlecakes mix together four cups of buckwheat flour with one scant cupful of cornmeal and an even tablespoonful of salt. Sift these ingredients together. To moisten them use a cupful of lukewarm water or three cupfuls of milk. The milk is used to give the rich brown color preferred by most people. To accompany this many housewives use all water and add two tablespoonsfuls of molasses. The milk, however, makes the cake more delicate. Dissolve a compressed yeast cake in a half cupful of lukewarm water; add it to the other liquid. Then add the liquid gradually to the dry ingredients, beating hard meanwhile. Pour the batter into a pan that适合 for the purpose and let it rise over night. In the morning just before baking the cakes stir a level teaspoonful of soda into a quarter of a cupful of lukewarm water and beat it into the batter until it foams. Then fry a test cake on a hot griddle, and if it is too thick add more water or milk to the batter. At least a pint of the batter should be left for the next baking; to use in place of the yeast. To renew the batter add the ingredients in the same proportion as the first time.

Care of Hot Water-Bags.

Do not put boiling water into the bag. Fill the bag only about half full or a little more, then lay it in your lap before putting in the stopper and carefully press out the steam.

This makes the bag softer, as it is relieved of the pressure the steam makes if left in it. When not using the bag, drain out the water, let it hang bottom side up for a little while, then take it down and with the mouth blow a little air into it, just enough to keep the inside from coming together, as it will often do if there is no air in it, in which case the bag is quite sure to be ruined by pulling it apart.

If you have a bag that is stuck together, put into it some hot water with a few drops of ammonia, let it remain a few minutes, then with a thin, dull edge piece of wood try to separate the inside very carefully. Never fold a rubber bag after it has been once used. A funnel bag for covering the rubber bag is very useful.—Philadelphia Press.

A Household Necessity.

A family medicine chest is one of the necessities in the household, and every housewife should understand how to use its contents. There should be a place for keeping all the bottles and packages together so that the combined goodness of the world is put all they have and written together, and, when this is done, the usefulness of the poetry in the book of David.

Now during our recent residence in North Carolina, Bishop Clarence Browning of Tennessee wrote: You never heard of a David chest or a Paul chest or a Mark chest. I say the combined goodness of the world is put all they have and written together, and, when this is done, the usefulness of the poetry in the book of David.

Now I want to say seriously, that your chest and bell jar and all the rest of the contents of the house should be put into a David chest.

—"Oh, your tasteless and your foolish," exclaimed Bishop Duncan in a burst of sarcasm.

"As long as you have sport giving functions you need not be surprised if the men become like and join the chest."

The Bishop then told of the evil of card playing and wine drinking at these "functions" and illustrated with the story of a gambler who had died drunk and who had first learned to gamble in his mother's parlor by playing for a cut-glass vase and who had first learned to drink at a "function" given by his mother.

"You call it a cut-glass function?

You want to," said the Bishop, "but the devil calls it gambling."

Curtains and Draperies.

Few things give so great an air of comfort to a home as pretty curtains and draperies, and they are useful for many purposes. Besides their decorative aspect, they shut out draft and exclude dust. The curtains, for instance, used in lieu of a door to the bedroom wardrobe protect the dresses within from soil, while giving charm to the appearance of the bedroom.

There are many women whose first task when house moving is to arrange the window draperies, because, as they say, when once these are completed the house will begin to look like home, whereas the finished room devoid of blinds and curtains looks bare and cold.

The fashionable draperies for heavy curtains are plain and simple, and brocades, velvets, tapestries and brocades for the sitting room, while for the bedroom art linen is preferred or fancy curtains.

Optimum Beer.

Bennet Burleigh, the noted English war correspondent, reports a suggestive conversation between a British officer and a Boer field commander under a flag of truce.

The former asked, "When do you think the war will be over?"

"Oh," replied the other, "when you people are able to catch a horse with an ox wagon, not before."

A Law For Husband.

A fine equal to 10 shillings is the penalty for infringing this regulation, half of which goes to the person—presumably the wife—who brings and proves the accusation.

Be Wary of Counterfeits.

"DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve," writes J. L. Tucker, of Centre, Ala. "I have used it many times for piles, cuts and burns for years and my doctor recommended it. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve was recommended and I used a few bottles of it, and it is the only thing that has relieved me. Would not recommend it, however, to any physician, with the exception of Dr. DeWitt, who has the only remedy that has done me any good, and I heartily recommend it. Every person suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia should use it." Sold by Aycock's Drug Co.

A good debauch maketh a bad credit.

Mother's Day Care.

In the health of your children, look for signs of giddiness and when you see such a symptom, take a dose of Moxie Cough Cure which is the best remedy. It is a wonderful relief." DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures without leaving a trace. Sold by Aycock's Drug Co.
