ROOSEVELT TO MOTHERS.

Every year the President sends a message to Congress which treats of the important political problems of the hour. This message is published in thousands and thousands of newspapers throughout the country, and yet, is read by a comparatively few people. Some time ago President Roosevelt delivered a message to the mothers of this country, and, for the vigorous, inspiring and uplifting thoughts, should be read by every lover of home in America. Here is an extract; read it:

"In our modern industrial civilization there are many and grave dangers to counterbalance the splendors and the triumphs. Far more important than the question of the occupation of our citizens is the question of how their family life is conducted. No matter what that occupation may be, as there is a real home and as long as those who make up that home do their duty to one another, to their neighbors and to the State, it is of minor consequence whether the man's trade is pined in the country or the city, whether it calls for the work of the hands or for the work of the head.

But the nation is in a bad way if there is no real home, if the family is not of the right kind; if the man is not a good husband, and if the woman has lost her sense of duty, if she is sunk in rapid self-indulgence or has let her nature be twisted so that she prefers a sterile pseudo-intellectuality to that great and beautiful development of character which comes only to those whose lives know the fullness of duty done, of effort made and self-sacrifice undergone.

In the last analysis the welfare of the State depends absolutely upon whether or not the average family, the average man and woman and their children, represent the kind of citizenship fit for the foundation of a great nation; and if we fail to appreciate the root morality upon which all healthy civilization is based.

The most honorable and desirable task which can be set any woman is to be a good and wise mother in a home marked by self-respect and mutual forbearance, by willingness to perform duty, and by refusal to sink into self-indulgence or avoid that which entails effort and self-sacrifice! Of course there are exceptional men and exceptional women who can do and ought to do much more than this, who can lead and ought to lead great careers of usefulness in addition to—not as substitutes for—their home work; but I am not speaking of exceptions; I am speaking of the average citizen, the average men and women who make up the nation.

No mother has an easy time, and most mothers have very hard times; and yet what true mother would barter her experience of joy and sorrow in exchange for a life of cold selfishness, which insists upon perpetual amusement and the avoidance of care?

If either a race or an individual prefers the pleasures of mere effortless ease, of self-indulgence, to the infinitely deeper, the infinitely higher pleasures that come to those who know the toil and the weariness, but also the joy, of hard duty well done, why, that race or individual must inevitably, in the end, pay the penalty of leading a life both rapid and ignominious. No man or woman really worthy of the name can care for the life spent solely or chiefly in the avoidance of risk and trouble and labor. Save in exceptional cases, the prizes worth having in life must be paid for, and the life worth living must be a life of work for a worthy end, and ordinarily of work more for others than for one's self.

The man is, but a poor creature whose effort is not rather for the betterment of his wife and children than for himself; and as for the mother, her very name stands for living unselfishness and self-abnegation, and in any society fit to exist, is fraught with associations which render it holy.

The woman's task is not easy—no task worth doing is easy—but in doing it, and when she has done it, there shall come to her the highest and holiest joy known to mankind; and having done it she shall have the reward prophesied in the scriptures; for her husband and her children, yes, and all people who realize that her work lies at the foundation of all national happiness and greatness, shall rise up and call her blessed."

TWO HONEST MEN.

To hear the average man talk one is led to believe he is not afraid of anything. He makes all manner of fun of his wife if she intimates that she is afraid to remain alone at home at night, or even till 10 or 11 o'clock; he shames her and laughs at her.

But all is not gold that glitters. Last night two well known gentlemen, whose wives are out of town, were swapping yarns about being alone. Some one came in and said a storm was coming up.

"Hope it won't," said one; "I'm afraid of storms and when my wife is away I am worse. Truth is I am scared at night anyway when I am alone and every little noise makes me jump. When I started up town to-night I saw that every door was securely locked and every window fastened down; then I lighted the ball lamp and left it burning. When I go back I'll look under every bed before I lay me down, but I wouldn't have my wife know this for fifty dollars."

The friend to whom he was talking jumped up and said, "Flesh to flesh; that's my fix exactly; when my wife's away I hear lots of queer noises and a mouse will shake the whole house as he canters around. I take no chances; I leave the light in my room burning all night when I am alone, but like you, I wouldn't have my wife know it for fifty man."

One of these gentlemen travels all over the country, while the other has been in hundreds of situations requiring the greatest courage and bravery, yet they told the truth about being afraid when at home alone. What is more, it is a rare thing that either gets home at night before 10 o'clock. They have business up street every night.—Greensboro Record.

The matter with men—women. Most women love the man they think their husbands are.

When the bill collector comes in at the window, love flies through the transom.

The girl with the longest switch has the most to say about blondes.

If we understood women better, perhaps we would not love them so much.

FORGET IT.

There is a wide and deep philology contained in that phraseology of the street—"Forget it." It is as important to forget as to remember. One is as difficult as the other. And ability along one line is as hard as to acquire as the other. Both must be cultivated.

It is impossible to become an optimist without learning how to forget. Disagreeable things are bound to happen and one must train one's self to wipe them off the mind as the boy wipes the figures from his slate. Having erased the ugly memories, it is easier to write the pleasant things on the slate of the memory.

The man who considers himself a pessimist, who treasures up a wrong, who nurses an injury, who lets ignoble hatreds fester in his heart, cannot be a happy man. His soul is like a crouched tiger ready to spring upon the victim of his wrath. Learn how to forget.

If it is easier for you to put or record in your memory personal grievances and to hug an ugly feeling, it is because you have chosen to do so. If you hard up in your mind the unhappy episodes of life, it is because you have formed the habit of doing so.

To persist in that habit of mind will make you miserable and a confirmed groaner. There is nothing noble in the disposition to remember. Learn to forget.

Let go the uninspiring, the depressing and weakening grievance. Hold on to the memories that cheer and brighten. There is not room for both. Wipe out the resentments. Write in the place of your hatreds the things that are pure and just and lovely and of good report. Let no mean thing ruffle the serenity of your soul.

Forget it.

Tired out, worn out, women cannot sleep, eat or work, seems as if she would fly to pieces. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes strong nerves and rich red blood. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets.—B. A. Bobbitt & Co.

If all men were as wives believe them to be, there would be no need of schools.

Quality vs Quantity.
Hard muscles and strong body do not depend on the quantity of food you eat, but on its perfect digestion and proper assimilation. When you take Kodol's Dyspepsia Cure your system gets all the nutriment out of all the food you eat. It digests what you eat, regardless of the stomach and conveys the nutrient properties to the blood and tissues. This builds up and strengthens the entire system, overcomes and cures indigestion, dyspepsia, belching, etc. Dyspepsia is destined to eventually work a wonderful and lasting benefit to sufferers from this distressing and ever recurring condition. Billions Bill is getting bloated. And his tongue was mostly coated. Patients "holler" would they kill him. Complaints would not let them sleep. All his friends were badly frightened. But their spirits soon were lifted. For Bill said—and they believed him. Bill's fiber broke through his fat. The famous Little Pills "Early Blears" cure constipation, stick heads, biliousness, etc. by their "toilet effect" on the liver. They never grip or sicken, but impart early rising energy.
