HOLD YOUR COTTON.

FARMERS, LET NO ONE DECEIVE YOU NOW.

Harvie Jordan Warns the Farmers Not to Sell Under 11 Cents, Nor Lend Their Cotton.

ATLANTA, GA., Oct. 25.—Farmers and merchants of the South are warned against cotton buyers who are now busy at many interior points trying to induce spot holders to sell their cotton at market prices and agreeing to pay any additional advance that may accrue within the next ten days. If you deliver up your cotton on that basis and the buyers get enough of the staple in their hands to fill their orders, there is but little chance for the market to advance. The only way to force an advance quickly is to refuse to part with the cotton until satisfactory prices are offered. No middling cotton should be sold at interior points for less than eleven cents per pound. The crop is short and all who hold will be rewarded as they should be.

Again, don't lend your cotton to local mills on the promise of settlement at any time within the next few months. With the staple in the hands of the spinners prices can never advance.

Again, notify warehousemen to whom you ship your cotton for storage that under no circumstances must your cotton be loaned or sold to exporters or buyers on any sort of trade or contract until you are ready to sell it. All kinds of tricks and devices are being resorted to now by buyers and spinners to induce farmers to part with their cotton. Every man who is led into any of these trades is unwittingly playing into the hands of the buyers and against his own interest and that of his neighbor.

Hold your cotton like grim death. Tie up the spot market, and stand firm for higher prices and the victory will soon be yours and the continued prosperity of the South assured.

Yours truly,
HARVIE JORDAN,
Pres. Southern Cotton Association.

WRITES FROM PHILIPPINES.

A Baltimorean Sends Humorous Impressions of the Islands

In a letter received by Mr. Otto Grove, of Washington, D. C., from a Baltimorean in the Philippines, Harry Brandenburg, first-class fireman, United States flag ship, Rainbow, at Cavite, P. I., some very humorous comments upon the islands and their inhabitants are given. His idea is that the islands are "nothing more than a bunch of trouble, gathered together off the western horizon of civilization." Continuing, the letter reads:

They are bounded on the north by rocks, on the east by typhoons and monsoons, on the south by cannibals and earthquakes, and on the west by sharks and smugglers, smuggling being the chief industry.

The interior of the islands is made up principally of mud and mountains and jungles. The population is about 8,000,000 of people, of this number 8,000,000 are your friends—providing you carry a gun. The climate is pleasant for consumptives who wish to die quickly; also for mosquitoes, fleas, bats, ants, snakes, lizards and bugs, the humbug being the largest in the islands. It makes its abode under your pillow and only attacks you at night with startling effect. The soil is very rich, its chief products being mangoes, bugs and ill-smelling odors.

The beautiful Philippine flowers that one hears spoken of small badly enough to drive a man to a glue factory for a change of odor. The sun is hot enough to melt pigiron. The beautiful ferns have thorns about the size of porcupine quills and give one a sensation of falling on an upright hay fork.

The pretty, waving palms look more like a dilapidated umbrella with half its ribs broken. The charming bamboo forests, filled with gay-colored and sweet-singing birds, is a jungle of entangling vines and weeds, where one steps on a lizard about three feet long, flees to escape and faces a snake about 20 feet long dangling from a tree, hissing and wagging its tongue, as though it would like to drain some of the bad blood from your veins.

But when a bunch of wild hogs that have got the Arkansas razor-backs faded to a whisper get behind it is time to get behind a two-inch gun and do business. The natives are very industrious, their chief occupations being fishing, stealing, gambling and cock fighting. Their principal diet is fish and rice and rice and fish. Chickens may be had at the best restaurants on Mondays, as on Sundays the cock fights are held. Beno is the native drink. It looks like alcohol and tastes like the business end of a live wire. It costs 10 cents a gallon, and a gallon is guaranteed to keep a man drunk for a month.

The clothing adopted by the women is very becoming. The skirt looks more like a grain bag thrown over a hitching post than anything else. They are cut at high tide. The waists are very low-necked, and if cloth is plentiful are made to come about four inches from the skirt. Only women with a family are supposed to wear shoes, and these are used to toughen the kids. The men wear a pair of old pantaloons, a shirt of ochee-cloth, and some of them high-stocked collars. Children under 12 don't come in for any clothing at all, and those at 16 years only wear a shirt. The mosquitoes are very strong and large, and more suited for carrying messages than carrier pigeons.

CREAM OF THE PRESS.

President Roosevelt's address to the students at Tuskegee Institute shows that he has become well informed on general conditions affecting the races in the South.—Charlotte Observer.

The Ohio woman who is suing for a divorce because her husband has not bathed in twenty one years should be privileged to say everything dirty about him.—Wilmington Dispatch.

We never heard of a sheriff or constable raiding a moonshine outfit in the name of the Watts law. If it were not for the activity of revenue officers that blooming specimen of moral legislation would be so near a dead letter that nobody would know the difference.—Industrial News.

Miss Alice Roosevelt is probably one woman who realizes what the tariff question really is. Many a good wife has patiently sat and listened at her husband's discourse on that subject. Of course her opinion of his knowledge of things momentous grew, likewise her bewilderment in proportion, but there's at least one woman in America who is up against the real thing.—Charlotte News.

Both the Charlotte Observer and Chronicle are favorable to a suggestion that the state fair which has always been held at Raleigh be taken to some other city, alternating from year to year. The complaint that the state fair does not measure up to what it should be is well founded but we are convinced that the state capital is the place for this fair. The Concord Tribune makes the point, which is well taken that it is not the location but the quality of the shows and the inferiority of exhibits which deserves criticism. When the state fair management eliminates the horde of gamblers and Bowery attractions and becomes more concerned about the display this talk of moving the fair will end, but not before then.—Salisbury Post.

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS FOR FARMERS.

How much do you suppose it costs you a year to repair your wagons and harness on account of bad roads? How much does it cost you a year for shoes and clothing that are ruined by your children wading through the mud to school? How much does it cost you a year for medicine to cure your children's colds contracted in wading through the mud to church and school? How much of a damage a year to you is the mud that prevents your children from attending school, or damage to them, rather in the loss of an education? How much damage to you is our bad roads in preventing your reaching market with your produce? You are perfectly willing to spend plenty of money in the buying of reapers and mowers and other farm machinery. You are willing to purchase fine carriages and harness. At the price potatoes are today one load would be the average farmer's tax for ten years for good roads, at the end of that time the roads would be good and you could vote to rescind the law if you wanted to, and you would have good roads and no tax for thirty or forty years, the balance of your life.

Herb W. Edwards injured.

Herb W. Edwards, of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on an icy walk. Less with it, spraining his wrist and bruising his knee. The next day, he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed. But I rubbed them with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications all aches and pains disappeared." For sale by all druggists.

DON'T GET MAD WHEN YOU ARE DUNNED.

There is one class of people who should not ask for credit, who should never owe a red cent and that is the class that get mad when a statement of their account is sent to them. It is a very rare thing now that a man gets mad and chews the rag when a statement of account is sent him, but occasionally some fellow who has not paid his bill, and shows no inclination to pay it, paws and snarls and merrily says because he is "dunned." The modern business man sends at stated times statements to all who owe him and the business world acknowledges that as good business and no one but a fool number one or a fool number two gets mad when he receives such a statement. If a dun is odious to you just keep your name off of account books pay cash as you go and you will pass through life and never receive a single dun. But if you transact business with a business man and ask him to credit you and you do not pay him at the appointed time you are sure to get a dun. That's just plain business and it is nothing to ruffle feelings. But ninety nine times out of a hundred the fellow who gets mad because he never gets mad enough to pay the account promptly. He wants to pay in getting mad and playing the fool about it. And you may bet your bottom dollar that the fellow who loses his temper when he receives a statement of account is never lax when it comes to collecting his own debts. Why, if a man owed him and was three days behind in paying the account he would sell the poor debtor out and body to collect the debt. But this class is growing beautifully small. May their tribe continue to decrease.—Monroe Enquirer.

MODERN METHOD OF REVENGE.

Is there any hope of relief from the promoters of suits for damage? The trend in recent years is alarming in this respect. It seems to have come to pass that designing men, urged on by conscienceless attorneys, are willing to hale the best of men before the courts on the most absurd complaints, and there is no method by which one may escape the annoyance and expense of appearing for defense. Thus the sorriest sort of a man can worry and annoy the best citizen and subject him to a lot of expense, and this has come to be a common method of revenge. It is now reported that a preacher who was located by the St. Louis Conference has sued Bishop Hendrix for damages, holding that statements made by the bishop caused the Conference to vote as it did. Notwithstanding the absurdity of the contention, this will be sufficient to drag the good bishop before the court, and have him tried and possibly condemned and pilloried by some news papers, always too ready to make up cases and draw conclusions by the dictates of pure prejudice. Ought such men be allowed to find a way into the courts with their grievances? This man had abandoned his charge, and the Conference, doubtless, visited a moderate penalty by reducing him to the local ranks.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

To Those Who Owe Me:

It is settling time and I would appreciate it if you will call at once and settle. It is unpleasant to send or receive dues by mail and expensive too. I do not have time to look after every person that owes me and unless you call and pay up promptly it will necessitate me employing a collector, the cost of which is unfair to me as I have charged only cash prices. To those who wait for my collector to call on them 20 per cent will be added to their accounts.

DIXON AND OGDEN.

Tom Dixon represents one school of thought on the race question, and Mr. Ogdin, of Wanamaker's store another. Dixon looks the darkey from his head to his heels; Ogdin knows nothing about him except from hearsay. The knowledge of one is practical; that of the other entirely theoretical. Dixon thinks that education will not solve the problem, but will rather make the negro more discontented and harder to manage than ever. Ogdin sees, or thinks he sees, in the uplift of the negro race by education, a panacea for all our woes, Dixon lives, right among the negroes and employs them; Ogdin lives in New York, and we dare say, would not have them about his place. For our part, we will take Dixon's judgment every time upon this question in preference to Ogdin's. Both are honest men. Mr. Ogdin is a sincere and honest Christian and really desires to help matters in the South, but he is disqualified by reason of his total lack of information. He believes Booker Washington, who boasted recently that the negro race has shown itself superior to the latins in the progress it has made within the past forty years. Mr. Ogdin does not know that the negro has made no real progress at all except by imitation of the white people about him. They write no books, make no discoveries, or do anything else that requires original thinking. They are at their very best as field hands where they serve an admirable purpose. The only trouble with Mr. Ogdin is that he thinks he knows and do doesn't, while Tom Dixon knows that he does know.—Charity and Children.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

We do not believe that North Carolina will ever take her rightful place until the legislature enacts a law compelling parents who are too stupid to avail themselves of the free school advantages to send their children, whether they wish to do so or not. Perhaps the time has not yet fully come for so drastic a measure in view of the fact that the public school system is not what it ought to be, but of one thing we are sure: there are people in North Carolina who simply will not send their children to school because they do not want them to receive the blessings of an education. They do not believe in it, and would prefer to keep their children illiterate. We have them in Thomasville.

AN ELECTRICIAN IS ALWAYS POSTED ON CURRENT TOPICS.

When You Have a Bad Cold. You want a remedy that will not only give quick relief but effect a permanent cure. You want a remedy that will relieve the lungs and keep expectoration easy. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets all of these requirements and for the speedy and permanent cure of bad colds stands without a peer. For sale by all druggists.

IMPOVERISHED SOIL.

Impoverished soil, like impoverished blood, needs a proper fertilizer. A chemist by analyzing the soil can tell you what fertilizer to use for different products.

If your blood is impoverished your doctor will tell you what you need to fertilize it and give it the rich, red corpuscles that are lacking in it. It may be you need a tonic, but more likely you need a concentrated fat food, and fat is the element lacking in your system.

There is no fat food that is so easily digested and assimilated as

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil

It will nourish and strengthen the body when milk and cream fail to do it. Scott's Emulsion is always the same; always palatable and always beneficial where the body is wasting from any cause, either in children or adults.

We will send you 3 sample free.
