THE HELPING HAND.

TIMELY ASSISTANCE SAVES MANY A MAN.

The Story of a Young Man Who Went Astray—Every Man His "Brother's Keeper."

Several years ago New York newspapers told of a young man who, after years of faithful service to his employers, abandoned with a considerable sum of money. That was the young man's first misstep, and the employers caused to be inserted in the newspapers an advertisement calling upon the young man to return and promising that he would not be prosecuted, but would be helped out of his difficulties. The young man read the advertisement, returned to his home, made a clean breast of his error, was forgiven by the man whom he had wronged, reinstated in his position and given every possible encouragement to recover his lost ground. It developed that the young man was in financial distress, and in a moment of desperation had used his employer's money. This incident occurred three years ago, and since then this young man has, at least to the satisfaction of his employer, justified the magnanimity which that employer showed.

It will not, of course, do for it to become a matter of general understanding that a man may embezzle and be forgiven; yet there have been, unquestionably, many cases in which the methods used by this New York employer could have been used with advantage by other employers.

The doctrine, "I am not my brother's keeper," is not the doctrine for thoughtful men. The man who persistently cultivates the notion that he is concerned solely in his own welfare and that he owes no duties to his fellows has not even begun to learn that life is worth living.

On a tablet in the First Methodist church in the city of Omaha, Nebraska, is engraved the memory of a fine Methodist preacher, the best and highest tribute that could be paid to a human being. It is said of this man: "He was a helper of men."

Incidentally it may be said that those who happen to have had the pleasure of this Methodist preacher's acquaintance well know that the tribute is entirely deserved, and that the man to whose memory that tribute is paid proved himself a helper of men whenever he came in contact with a human being who needed aid.

It is true that half the world does not know how the other half lives. A very large number of people are free from serious trouble, and many of these are entirely ignorant of the burdens borne frequently by their own neighbors. It is indeed strange that so much of the trouble, the sorrow and grief that exist in this busy world is concealed from the view of many men. But the man who is willing to lend a sympathetic ear and extend a helping hand very soon comes in touch with his troubled fellows and very soon learns of the sorrow and grief, concerning which less sympathetic remain in ignorance. While it is not an easy task to comply with the injunction, "Bear ye one another's burdens," the man who does his best to obey that rule obtains from life a great deal more than the one who utterly ignores that rule. "The drying up of a single tear has more honest fame than shedding seas of gore," and the world is full of tears; some of them are coursing down furrowed cheeks; some of them fill eyes that are rapidly growing dim; many of them are unshed and invisible. But if every tear may not be dried, if every wounded heart may not be healed, a word of sympathy and kindness will do much to assuage the grief which finds expression in the tear and the sob.

Kindness, like mercy, "is twice blest; it blesses him that gives and him that takes," and is, indeed, "an attribute of God himself." The one whose every act showed love and sympathy and kindness for men said: "And whosoever shall give to drink unto these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you he shall in no wise lose his reward." There is in this world today an opportunity for every human being to give the cup of cold water; and there is no waiting for the reward to be bestowed. The moment the cup is extended, that moment the reward is obtained.

A man bowed with grief because of the death of his beloved wife is given the warm hand clasp that needs no words to explain what it means. That's the cup of cold water.

A woman, broken-hearted, yet woman-like, strong even in the presence of the greatest sorrow, is the beneficiary of those little neighborly services which, while they have no voice, speak volumes in sympathy and love. That's the cup of cold water.

A merchant, staggering under adverse conditions, honest, although unfortunate, and striving to save the remnants of his business, is given a little extra patronage by appreciative customers and a little unusual encouragement by merciful creditors. That's the cup of cold water.

A man struggling against the power of an overwhelming appetite and sinking sometimes even to the gutter, is urged to try again and save himself from social oblivion. That's the cup of cold water.

The sisters of the Good Shepherd, devoting their lives to the rescue of fallen women. That's the cup of cold water.

The good sisters and the faithful nurses at the hospitals—all devoting their energies toward relieving pain—none of them with proper recompense in the way of money, many of them without any financial recompense whatever. That's the cup of cold water.

The noble work done at the orphan homes in caring for the little ones who but for that work would be homeless. That's the cup of cold water.

The man who, thrown from a position through no fault of his own, finds assistance in obtaining means of a livelihood, through the intercession of some busy yet sympathetic neighbor. That's the cup of cold water.

The little garments that are sent to cover the nakedness of some child of the poor. That's the cup of cold water.

The contribution to the empty ladder of the destitute, the supply of medicine to the poor and sick. That's the cup of cold water.

The visits to the sick and injured. That's the cup of cold water.

The word of cheer to the stupid or thoughtless lad who finds the greatest problem of life to be the mastery of his simple studies. That's the cup of cold water.

The mending of the broken toy provides comfort to the little lad, and the repairing of the tattered doll cheeks the sobs of the little girl; and that's the cup of cold water.

In this day some of us may be too proud to remember, and certainly many of us are too dignified to repeat that little jingle so familiar to our childhood days: "Little drops of water, little grains of sand, make the mighty ocean and the pleasant land; little deeds of kindness, little words of love, help to make earth happy like the heaven above." Yet would not the world be considerably better if that simple little verse were placed over every desk in every counting room in the land, so that he who runs may read and he who reads may profit for himself and give profit to his fellows?

Someone has said: "The best portions of a good man's life is the little nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love." Every tear that falls in sympathy with another's woes, every handclasp that is meant to assuage another's grief, every word that is given to provide encouragement to one who stumbles and falters on the way, every smile and every cheer and every sigh and every tear that is the product of our loving kindness contributes to the progress of the world, to the advantage of humanity and to the upbuilding of our own precious selves.

A man will obtain the best in life when he strives for that condition where thoughtlessness gives way to thoughtfulness, where love for one's self is well-balanced with love for one's fellows, where men are not too dignified to mingle their tears with the tears of a grief-stricken neighbor, where the word of comfort is ever ready for the benefit of "these little ones," for the relief of the despairing and the help of the disconsolate. Then, whatever creeds and doctrines may say, the bearer of the cup of cold water, writing "finis" to his life's work, may, without fear and without trembling, face the Great Unknown with: "Now lettest thou thy servant in peace, according to thy word, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation."

Herb W. Edwards Injured.

Herb W. Edwards, of Des Moines, Iowa, got a fall on a city walk last week, spraining his wrist and bruising his knee. "The next day," he says, "they were so sore and stiff I was afraid I would have to stay in bed, but I rubbed them with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications all soreness had disappeared." For sale by all druggists.

THANKSGIVING.

Proclamation by the President of the United States.

The President of the United States has named November 30th as a day of thanksgiving, and issued the following proclamation:

"When, nearly three centuries ago, the first settlers came to the country which has now become this great Republic, they fronted not only hardship but terrible risk to their lives. In those grim years the custom grew of setting apart one day in each year for a special service of thanksgiving to the Almighty for preserving the people through the changing seasons. The custom has now become national and hallowed by immemorial usage.

We live in easier and more plentiful times than our forefathers, the men who with rugged strength faced the rugged days; and yet the dangers of national life are quite as great now as at any previous time in our history. It is eminently fitting that each year our people should set apart a day for praise and thanksgiving to the Giver of good, and, at the same time, that they express their thankfulness for the abundant mercies received, should manfully acknowledge their shortcomings and pledge themselves solemnly and in good faith to strive to overcome them. During the past year we have been blessed with bountiful crops. Our business prosperity has been great. No other people has ever stood on as high a level of material well-being as ours now stands. We are not threatened by foes from without. The foes from whom we should pray to be delivered are our own passions, appetites and follies; and against these there is always need that we should war.

Therefore, I now set apart Thursday, the 30th day of this November, as a day of Thanksgiving for the past and of prayer for the future, and on that day I ask that throughout the land the people gather in their homes and places of worship, and in rendering thanks unto the Most High for the manifold blessings of the past year, consecrate themselves to a life of cleanliness, honor and wisdom, so that this nation may do its allotted work on the earth in a manner worthy of those who founded it and of those who preserved it.

In witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirtieth.

(Seal) THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
By the President:
ELIHU ROOT,
Secretary of State.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

There are three entirely different kinds of ingredients used in making the three different varieties of baking powders on the market, viz: (1) Mineral Acid or Alum, (2) Bone Acid or Phosphate, (3) Cream of Tartar, made from grapes. It is important, from the standpoint of health, to know something about these ingredients, and which kind is used in your baking powder.

(1) Mineral Acid or Alum, is made from a kind of clay. This is mixed with diluted oil of vitriol and from this solution a product is obtained which is alum. Alum is cheap, cost about two cents a pound, and baking powder made with this mineral acid sell from 10c to 25c a pound.

(2) Bone Acid, or Phosphate, is the basis of phosphate baking powders and the process is fully described in the patents issued to a large manufacturer of phosphate powder. The U. S. Patent Office report gives a full and exact description, but the following extract is enough:

"Burned bones, after being ground, are put into freshly diluted oil of vitriol and with continual stirring and in the following proportion," etc.

(3) Cream of Tartar exists in all ripe grapes, and flows with the juice from the press in the manufacture of wine. After the wine is drawn off the tartar is scraped from the cask, boiled with water, and crystals of Cream of Tartar, white and very pure, separate and are collected. It differs in no respect from the form in which it originally existed in the grape. Cream of Tartar, then, while the most expensive, is the only ingredient that should be used in a baking powder to not upon the soda, as its wholesomeness is beyond question. Cream of Tartar baking powders sell about 40 to 50 cents a pound.

Such are the facts, and every one careful of the health of the family, should remember this rule: Baking

SAYS LOWRY IS DEAD.

Henry Berry Lowry Was Leader of Notorious Lowry Gang in Robeson County.

The Fayetteville Observer of a recent date says: "Everybody in this section of the country remembers having heard of the famous Lowry gang in Robeson county, which operated for years to the terror of the whole country. Most of us will also remember reading recently that Henry Berry Lowry, the leader of the gang, was still alive, and was in Mexico, and was anxious to return to this country, and had petitioned the governor for a pardon that he might return.

In this connection the Florence Times says: "The readers of this paper will be interested in knowing that one of the Oxendines, a brother-in-law of Lowry, passed through this city a few nights ago, going to New York from Mexico. He went down there 25 years ago, and has become independently wealthy working in Mexican mining properties. He talked freely to various gentlemen that he met, and to them he said with the greatest earnestness that Lowry was really dead, that there was no truth in the recent story of his being alive in Mexico. Oxendine declared most solemnly that he had assisted in the burial of his brother-in-law, and that his body was buried in a hollow log in a swamp to avoid suspicion.

There was $50,000 offered as a reward for the return of his body, dead or alive.

TO ENCOURAGE SILK CULTURE

North Carolina Department of Agriculture Will Distribute Mulberry Trees to Stimulate New Industry.

Gerald McCarthy, biologist of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, issues the following: "The North Carolina Department of Agriculture will, beginning November 15th, distribute among the farmers of the State 20,000 seedling white mulberry trees. This distribution is intended to encourage the growing of silk in North Carolina, but the trees will at the same time furnish shade and food for poultry and hogs. Every man in the State should have a mulberry grove. The trees should be planted 12x12 feet on dry soil and cared for like peach or plum trees.

These trees will be sent by mail, post paid, in packages of 50 and 100. Not less than 50 nor more than 100 trees will be sent to one address. To cover cost of packing and mailing applicants must enclose 1 cent for each tree. Postage stamps accepted. This is probably the last distribution of mulberry trees that will be made by the department. Those who want them should apply at once.

Those who have not tried silk growing should send for a copy of Bulletin 181.

Pain may go by the name of rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, pleurisy. No matter what name the pain is called, Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will drive them away. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. R. A. Bobbitt & Co.

How John Profited By His First Experience.

John was the new boy at the boarding house. His mistress was scolding him because he never surmounted an obstacle.

"John," she scolded, "when I sent you for a two-pound loaf of cake and they had none, why in the world did you not bring two one-pound cakes? This would be exactly the same thing."

John seemed to grasp the knowledge. His mistress thought so until the next day.

She was going on a journey and being a large, stout woman, told John to engage her two seats in the bus. When John returned, she asked: "Did you have any difficulty?"

"No madam," replied the hopeless John, "but I could not get them both together, so I got one on the inside and one on the top."—Washington Star.

Hard Nut to Crack.

An airship which hovered for a time over Toledo, Ohio, gave a school superintendent of that city a poser to answer, says the Youth's Companion. He had unguardedly introduced the subject of the new invention in his talk to the school.

"I say, Mr. Parley," interrupted a small boy in the front row, "is the world liable to come to an end most any time?"

"Why, yes, I suppose so," said the surprised superintendent.

"Well, then, suppose a lot of us were up in airships when the end came—where would we land when we came down?"

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human body passes through the heart once in every two minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stomach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even before you expect it.

We would give you a sample free. Send your six pence in the form of a label to the wrapper of every bottle of Scott's Emulsion you buy. Scott & Bowne, Chemists, 409 Pearl St., N. Y.

To Those Who Owe Me:

It is settling time and I would appreciate it if you will call at once and settle. It is unpleasant to send or receive dues by mail and expensive too. I do not have time to look after every penny that owes me and unless you call and pay up promptly it will necessitate me employing a collector, the cost of which is unfair to me as I have charged only cash prices. To those who wait for my collector to call on them 20 per cent will be added to their accounts.
