NUMBER 4.

THE N. C. LEGISLATURE.

SIXTY DAYS SESSION DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

No Railroad Rate Bill Agreed Upon as Yet—A Sensation in the Senate on Tuesday When Senator Graham "Kicked."

The sixty days session is drawing to a close, the time limit being about March 10th. After that date the pay stops, and the probabilities are that a quorum cannot be induced to remain in Raleigh very many days after the State Treasurer ceases to "grease the wheels."

It is hard to tell, from this distance the number of laws, public and private, that have been enacted, but the great majority that have passed are in the private class. As yet no railroad rate bill has passed both houses. This matter is in the hands of a "Conference Committee" and they will no doubt hatch out some thing. It is a great pity a "conference" or "steering committee" could not have had it in charge all the while. Much wrangling could have been avoided and a proper rate bill would probably have been agreed upon in a very short while.

Among the bills introduced effecting Franklin county, is one by Bickett, and known as the "Good Roads act." It provides for working the roads by taxation, and the commissioners have four years in which to submit the question of issuing bonds to a vote of the people.

Quite a sensation took place in the Senate on Tuesday, when Senator John W. Graham, of Orange, arose to a question of "high privilege" and delivered a cutting and stinging rebuke to the presiding officer, Lieutenant Governor Winston, for what the Senator termed as a "contemptible act" in refusing to appoint him (Senator Graham) on the conference committee upon the railroad rate bill. We see from the Raleigh papers that a caucus was held that night, but if anything was said along this line, the Senators have thus far kept it a secret. It is supposed that the matter was satisfactorily adjusted.

The House passed a school bill with a "compulsory" clause in it, but the Senate killed it.

The Senate also killed the Bickett Lobby Bill, which had passed the House almost unanimously. This was a just law and would have proven of much benefit to future legislators. As we have stated before, it simply required all rail attorneys whose business it is to influence legislation to register their names with the Secretary of State, and no honest man, it seems to us, ought to object to this.

LATER.—The conference committee of the Senate and House agreed to a flat 2-1-4 railroad rate bill. This if enacted into law, will knock out the second-class, and will apply to all railroads of sixty miles and over.

Moore-Mitchell.

The Methodist church at Franklinton was the scene of a beautiful and interesting marriage on Thursday morning of last week when Mr. Godwin C. Moore and Miss Irene Mitchell were united in wedlock.

The night preceding there had been given a delightful ante-nuptial reception by Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, in honor of the bride-elect. The evening was spent viewing the numerous and valuable bridal presents, and in social conversation. Delightful refreshments were elegantly served by young ladies.

For the wedding the church was handsomely decorated about the pulpit and alter rails, the color scheme being red, green and white. A large audience filled the main auditorium and adjoining Sunday school room. Mr. W. F. Joyner, usher of the Citizens' Bank, and cousin of the bride presided at the organ. The bridal party entered from a rear room by the main aisle to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," in this following order:

Misses Henry D. Mitchell and C. L. McGhee, J. W. McGhee and V. Picot, Mrs. R. B. White and Miss Bessie Staley, Mrs. A. L. Joyner and Miss Julia Joyner, two maids of honor, Misses Nellie and Rebekah Mitchell, sisters of the bride; the little flower girl, Mary Melissa Cook, with Janie Pearce, who bore the wedding ring in a bride's rose.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. L. P. Mitchell who gave her away. The groom, Mr. Godwin C. Moore, entered by a side aisle attended by his best man, Mr. Ed Land of Kinston. All the other attendants were from Franklinton, except Mr. J. Picot, of Littleton, N. C.

The celebrant was Rev. W. W. Staley, D. D., of Suffolk, Va., the uncle of the bride. During the ceremony the organist played "Hearts and Flowers" softly.

The groom is a civil engineer of Milesdale, Penn., the youngest son of the late Major Moore, author of a school history of North Carolina, and brother of Mrs. W. L. McGhee, of Franklinton.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. J. L. Mitchell, a brave Confederate soldier, who bears the marks of wounds from the Civil War.

The bride was gowned in a brown cloth suit and carried bride's roses. Misses Nellie and Rebekah Mitchell, maids of honor, were dressed alike in pink suit, wore pink lace picture hats and carried white carnations. Mrs. White and Miss Staley wore light blue crepe de chine black Gainsboro hats and carried pink carnations. Mrs. Joyner and Miss Joyner wore white crepe de chine black Gainsboro hats and carried red carnations. The little flower girl and ring bearer were daintily dressed in creations of lawn and lace. The gentlemen wore black coats, light trousers, white vests and silk hats.

The bride and groom left on the noon train, under showers of rice and best wishes of friends, for Annapolis, Maryland.

A Very Sad Death.

It is with sadness that we note the death of Mr. Geo. A. Ragdale, who passed away on Monday night about 8 o'clock after an illness of only a week, with pneumonia. Being only 32 years of age, he was in the prime of life, and was one of our best and most popular citizens. He was a native of Granville county, but has been a resident of Louisburg for a number of years, having come here a short while after the opening of the Tobacco market, with which interest he has since been identified. For several years he has been Manager of Mr. C. B. Cheatum's Tobacco Stemmery, and was always faithful to his employer, and was rarely ever seen during work hours away from his place of business.

On the 18th of October, 1904, he was married to Miss Rosamond H. Harris, oldest daughter of Mr. John N. Harris, and to them was born a little daughter, who with her mother survives. Other survivors of the deceased are four brothers, Prof. W. H. Ragdale, of Greenville, T. S. Ragdale, of Smithfield, E. J. and Robert Ragdale, of Fuquay.

The grief stricken relatives, especially the widow and little daughter have the sympathy of the entire community.

The funeral services were held from the baptist church, of which he was a member, on Wednesday afternoon, and the remains were followed to the cemetery by a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives. Rev. Mr. Stamps conducted the services.

The following were the pall bearers: L. H. Hargrove, S. M. Washington, H. E. Hight, C. T. Stokes, S. T. Wilder, R. A. Bobbitt.

The floral tributes were very profuse.

Current Literature Club.

The Current Literature Club was entertained by Mrs. Hart on Thursday the 21st inst. In our regular course of study of American History, the subject appointed for that afternoon was "The Approach of the Revolution," and the decoration of the pretty room in which we assembled were especially appropriate to the occasion and the theme. Suspended in different parts of the room were banners beautifully ornamented with cherries, and each banner containing a picture of Washington, surrounded by the Stars and Stripes. The mantle held clusters of tiny flags.

Soon after all the guests had arrived, the guest of honor being Mrs. A. M. Hill, tea was served, and accompanying each cup of the beverage, so associated with colonial days, was a wafer bearing in one corner a stamp, representative of that period. The first thing on the literary program was Longfellow's "Ride of Paul Revere" read by Mrs. Chestnut. Then Mrs. Wilder read an account of the Stamp Act, and also a most beautiful description of the Boston Tea Party. After this, refreshments were brought in, and here the artistic taste of our hostess had found exquisite expression. The salads were arranged in red and white and on each plate was a "cocked hat" of red, white and blue—the crown forming a cap to hold some part of the dainty repast. In the arrangement of the ices, the same pretty suggestions were apparent and the frosted cakes all bore upon their white surfaces some appropriate design, such as a tiny hatchet of red and gold. The whole entertainment was artistically planned, and each one left feeling she was indebted to Mrs. Hart for a very delightful afternoon.

The Club will hold its next meeting with Mrs. John W. King, on March 7th. Subject: "The Americanism of Washington."

Misses F. S. Spruill, B. B. Mansenburg and W. H. Ruffin attended the Supreme Court at Raleigh this week.

Mrs. Ernest Martin, who has been visiting friends and relatives here, returned this week to her home in Raleigh.

Mr. Richard Green, who has a position in one of the leading drug stores of High Point, was visiting here this week.

Prof. W. H. Ragdale, of Greenville, and Mr. Robert Ragdale, of Fuquay, were here this week to attend the funeral of their brother, Mr. Geo. A. Ragdale.
