EARLY COTTON AND IMPROVED FARM SEED.

The advantages of early cotton and possibilities in Southern agriculture are not fully realized, with improved farm seed. The trouble is most farmers are trying to make too much cotton, planting largely of large boll, later maturing varieties, large stalks and of long growth, which greatly depletes the fertility of the soil and so late as to not permit of growing another crop for improvement, the same year. With an improved strain of early cotton, prolific and a larger yield of lint from seed, the total products are equal to the best later maturing varieties, and at the same time it is made possible to grow two crops annually with but very little more expense, one of either annual clover, rye or vetch, and a second crop of cotton, corn, peanuts or peas. No other fertilizer is needed for these crops except Phosphoric Acid and Potash, as the leguminous crops furnish 20 to 30 times as much nitrogen as is usually applied in fertilizer per acre. The stock to consume the hay crop will raise more manure in value than the average farmer pays for fertilizer, and you have the increase from stock to sell to the market. Your land will soon get rich enough to grow vegetables when a crop of cabbage, potatoes or other early vegetables can be grown with early cotton as a second crop to the amount of $500 or more dollars per acre annually. But I have chosen to grow Improved Farm Seed in the full sense and meaning these words imply. Sugar Leaf Cotton, the earliest, most prolific, largest yielder of lint from seed cotton and total products. Sugar Leaf Coker's Prolific Corn, which has two good sized perfect ears, straight rows of pearl white grains—improved with such distinct characteristics that no other seed can be substituted for them and the most valuable acquisition improved seed could have to prevent fraud which is so commonly practiced. The flowers of Sugar Leaf Cotton all have red spots which no other variety can boast. Sugar Leaf Coker's Prolific Corn is a distinct variety and may be known by its perfect breeding.

Sixty-six acres constitutes an individual crop, and is enough for one man to look after and improve as it should be. I have it enclosed in stock wire and subdivided into three sections, all watered. One section is grown in clover and cotton, one in clover or vetch and corn, the other in rye and peanuts or peas annually. My gross income from products and sale of seed amount to $10,000 this year. The increased value in improvement of land in seven years is from 1-4 bale of cotton to 1 1-2 to 2 bales, and 2 barrels of corn to 8 to 10 barrels per acre, or in money valuation $100.

How to Increase the Yield of Fruit

Increased fruit crops are more often the result of good management than of good luck. Fruit trees and fruit plants need a liberal supply of

Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers

The trees absorb plant foods—that is, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash—from the soil just the same as any other crop. Experience has shown this over and over again. This truth has become so well recognized that "return to the land what the tree removes if you would expect the best results" has become an axiom with the best growers.

Apple, pear, peach, orange and other fruit trees soon respond to careful fertilization. But be sure to use the best fertilizers.

"I made a test with other companies' fertilizers," says Mr. H. O. Lowry, of Manatee County, Fla., "and yours proved to be the best. The yield where I used Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer, was just twice as much as where the other two companies' fertilizer was used." Hundreds of users say Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers are cheapest because of their good qualities—give better satisfaction and quicker results.

Many facts of great interest and value to fruit growers are published in the new 1909 Farmers' Year Book, a copy of which will be sent free on application to any of our sales offices.
