CLOSES ON WEDNESDAY

For the South is Going Dry.

The following is a poem that was read in the legislature last week by Senator Bassett:

Lay the jest about the julep in the camphor balls at last,
For the miracle has happened and the olden days are past;
That makes Milwaukee thirsty doesn't roam in Tennessee
And the lid in old Missouri is as tight-locked as can be.
Oh, the comic paper Colonel and his comrades well may sigh,
For the mint is waving gaily but the South is going dry.

By the stillside on the hillside in Kentucky all is still,
For the only damp refreshment must be dipped up from the rill;
No'th Ca'lina's stately rule gives his soda glass a shove
And discusses local option with the South Ca'lina Gov.,
It is useless at the fountain to be winking of the eye,
For the cocktail glass is dusty, and the South is going dry.

It is water, water, everywhere, and not a drop to drink;
We no longer hear the music of the mellow crystal clink,
When the Colonel and the Major and the Gen'l and the Jedge
Meet to have a little nip to give their appetites an edge.

For the egg nog now is nogless and the rye has gone awry,
And the punch bowl holds carnations, and the South is going dry.

All the nightcaps now have tassels and are worn upon the head—
Not the nightcaps that were taken when nobody went to bed;
And the breeze above the blue grass is as solemn as is death,
For it bears no pungent cloves twang on its odorific breath.

And each man can walk a chalk line when the stars are in the sky
For the fizz glass now is fizzless, and the South is going dry.

Lay the jest about the julep 'neath the chestnut tree at last,
For there's but one kind of moonshine and the olden days are past,
Now the water wagon rumbles through the Southland on its trip,
And it helps no one to drop off to pick up the driver's whip;
For the mint beds make a pasture and the corkscrew hangeth high;
All is still along the stillside, and the South is going dry.

Effect of One Bottle.

Crandall, Tex.—"After my last spell of sickness," writes Mrs. Belle Teal, of this city, "I remained very ill, and stayed in bed for eight weeks. I couldn't get up, all this time, and though my doctor came to see me every day, he didn't do me any good. I had taken but one bottle of Cardui, when I was up, going everywhere, and soon I was doing all my housework." Cardui helps when other medicines have failed, because it contains ingredients not found in any other medicine. Pure, safe, reliable, gentle-acting—Cardui is the ideal medicinal tonic for weak, sick women. Try it.

When her child is in danger a woman will risk her life to protect it. No great act of heroism or risk of life is necessary to protect a child from croup. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and all danger is avoided. For sale by all dealers.
