Home Circle Column (Continued from Page Seven)

As the hour of midnight approaches, the metropolitan with its assistants, preceded by the cross and banners, advances with lighted tapers. The various notabilities light their tapers from that of the arch bishop, and so the sacred fire is communicated to the crowd.

At the midnight hour sounds and Easter succeeds the last day of Lent, the metropolitan, a blaze of silver and gold with his tiara, the silver gospel, and the episcopal crozier, ascends the platform outside the church and proclaims to the assembled people the tidings, "Christ has risen."

EASTER PLANT LEGENDS.

The Christian legends connected with plants generally explain their behavior during Passion week. The aspen still shivers with remorse because when Christ passed, it had boldly faced the heavens instead of bowing its head in company with the other trees. The Savior cast one look on it and the memory of that sorrowful glance is handed down even to this generation.

The willow was used for the scourges and ever since it has drooped its arms in misery. The elder is commonly supposed to be the tree upon which Judas hanged himself, and it is not even to be touched as firewood. However, it affords a safe refuge in a storm, for not even lightning will design to strike it. A fungus that grows on the elder and is now known as Jew's ears was originally called Judas' ears.

The wood sorrel was standing at the foot of the cross and received some drops of the precious blood. These she still carries. The Italians have the same legend and call this little blossom "aleuia," as if the very flowers rejoice in the great gift of the world. The scarlet anemone, too, is said to bear the stains of Christ's blood.
