The Traveler's Companion

Mr. Arthur L. Pierce, 2615 Sheridan Ave., St. Louis, Mo. "The curative value of Peruna is truly wonderful. I think it especially valuable as a specific for catarrh of the system, and for a man who has traveled for years as I have and who is certainly exposed to irregular meals and uncomfortable sleeping accommodations, Peruna is one of his best and most needed traveling companions. It throws off disease and keeps him well. I therefore heartily recommend it." Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C. Dec. 29.—Congress reassembled Tuesday after one of the shortest holiday recesses in history. It is not likely that much will be accomplished until after the beginning of the new-year, but the leaders are anxious to take advantage of every working day in order to complete the strenuous program. The immigration bill is the unfinished business before the Senate, but it is very probable it will be sidetracked by the appropriation bills, some of which are now for consideration in the upper House. Senator Lewis of Illinois is leading the fight against the bill in its present form and has announced that he will introduce an amendment at the proper time to eliminate the literacy test. If he is successful it will probably result in the defeat of the entire bill. As was generally predicted, the prohibition resolution was defeated in the House. Supporters of that measure, however, are well pleased with the showing made. Though they failed to command the necessary two-third vote demanded by the Constitution the vote showed a majority of eight in favor of the resolution. Representative Hobson announced that he would immediately offer another amendment, slightly different from the one just defeated. It will be impossible to bring it up for action in the present session but it gives him an opportunity to continue the fight.

They failed to reach the woman suffrage amendment before the holidays and it is likely its consideration at an early date will see a reenactment of the lively scenes during the discussion of the prohibition amendment. When the appropriation bills for the army and navy are taken up in the House they will undoubtedly provoke a great deal of discussion. Proposals for substantial increases in both branches and the strengthening of the national defenses have been exploited throughout the present session and will give rise to spirited debate when they reach the floor. The Government ship-purchases bill is before the Senate and its friends will endeavor to bring it up for action at the first opportunity.

Although it is rather early to make predictions as to candidates in 1916, many seem to think that two members of the present Cabinet will be contestants for seats in the Senate. Postmaster General Burleson is regarded as a likely candidate for the seat of Senator Culberson of Texas. New Jersey Democrats are favoring Secretary Garrison to succeed Senator Martine. His record in the present Administration would make him a valuable man in the Senate. The attack against the President and the effects of his policies, launched by Governor Colquitt of Texas has created an unusual amount of interest. Coming as it does from a leading Democratic Governor it is likely to foreshadow the growth of serious opposition. Several Democrats are somewhat displeased because of the President's attitude on certain measures and his failure to always meet them in "common counsel," but the majority are of the opinion that the President's position will be greatly strengthened when normal business conditions prevail.

The Senate Committee on the Philippines will make an investigation into the reported uprising in the Islands. Action on the Jones bill, already passed by the House and pending in the Senate, granting a greater degree of liberty and looking to the ultimate independence of the Islands, will probably be influenced by these reports and it is the desire of the committee to discover the real facts. Some have advanced the opinion that the revolt was a staged affair by the opponents of greater freedom for the Islands.

When the new Federal Trade Commission is organized it will find that the Bureau of Corporations, whose work it will take over, has much valuable data which will be of great service. The Bureau has made an exhaustive study of the industrial field and classified the various corporations coming under its jurisdiction. They are now engaged in making a complete summary of their eleven years work. These reports will list the principle corporations, private and public, and give data as to the processes of manufacture, organization and financial control.

President Wilson celebrated his fifty-eight birthday on Monday, the 28th. No special observance was held at the White House but he spent the day quietly in the Executive offices throughout the day.

Washington enjoyed the full delights of a white Christmas. The great community Christmas tree, illuminated by hundreds of lights was placed in front of the Capital and thousands enjoyed the exercises held and the program rendered by the Marine Band on Christmas Eve.

GREETINGS

I take this good opportunity of thanking my customers and friends for their loyal support and patronage this year and may the many dimes and Dollars that you have saved by trading with me, give you and your family a most joyous Christmas, and teach you where to trade during the year of nineteen hundred and Fifteen, also teach you that there is no need of but one middle man between you and the manufacturers of all kinds and that his duty should be to keep you posted as to the man, quality, and price, which I have endeavored to do, and help put thousands of Dollars into the Farmers' pockets, and barns, that would have gone some where else, the Farmers' Union stands for what is right and so long as I am County Business Agent, I shall look out for the Farmers' interest. Again I want to thank one and all for your support and business and wishing you a happy and prosperous new year, bear in mind that it will pay you to see me before you close out your Cotton Seed, A Dandy price on Cotton Seed Meal, and Hulls. I will keep the above on hand all the time. In fact let me know your wants, and I will try to please you.

Owing to the fact that every pair of platform scales in Louisburg is rented out I will install a pair within the next few days back of the Farmers Union Storage Warehouse, so that I can do my own weighing of seed and hulls and trouble no one.

Yours Truly,

J. B. Fulghum
