THE SMART SEPARATE WAIST AND SKIRT

Braid and Buttons Favored Trimmings For Dresses and Suits. The Little Girl's Hair.

New York, January 4.—The separate waist is an established custom. Not necessarily the plain or tailored waist, but the dainty, dress affair of net, lace, chiffon, silk, batiste, fine linen or voile. These waists are made in various ways from the simple waist of all one fabric to the one developed in two or more.

One fascinating French waist of white crepe de Chine trimmed in black was made with a vest in the front of finely hand-tucked white chiffon. The sleeves, although set in to the armhole very plainly, seemed a little fuller through the arm than the sleeves we have had recently. A deep cuff finished the bottom of the sleeves. A round collar, which was wired to stand up in the back and came to a slight V in the neck, was used on the waist. The only trimming was a border of black crepe de Chine cut in a Grecian square pattern and applied by hand to the collar, cuffs, and down the outer edge of the vest.

Although the waists with the small armhole seem to be very popular there are to be seen waists with the raglan armhole, and very handsome waists they are. One made with these raglan sleeves and a surplice front was developed in finely tucked net.

Accompanying the separate waist is the separate skirt, usually a suit skirt. It is made in various ways, usually to correspond with the jacket it is to go with. With the advent of wider skirts, they are made, as a rule circular or gores. The yoke skirts have also been having quite a vogue—the yokes cut straight around and in points on the hips or in front, giving a wide variety in the development of skirts, and helpful suggestions for the making over of skirts.

Although made up in the same material, the model used for the second illustration shows a smart model for the separate waist skirt. The waist is called the Elsie Poirer waist, because introduced by Poirer's sister. It is often made in silk and worn with skirts of a different material and color. The skirts shows the close-fitting line with the attached circular flounce, which gives width and flare to the lower edge of the skirt.

The model in one material is developed in cover cloth, which is by far the most popular material now on the market. It is shown developed into one piece dresses, suits and coats.

Aside from fur, braid is the most popular of the winter's trimmings.

narrow soutache braids, these are used for braiding designs on coats, jackets, skirts and dresses. Several rows of it are used for banding in place of the wide Hercules braid.

Buttons are also used to a great extent from trimming. The round bone buttons are very good, as well as the cloth-covered buttons, to match the dress or suit they are worn upon. Many of the covert cloth suits and dresses are trimmed with ball buttons covered with the covert. The button-holes are bound instead of button-holed with matching silk.

In the first illustration is an evening frock of delightful simple lines. The bodice is partly of chiffon and partly of taffeta. The upper or yoke portion of the skirts is of taffeta, while the skirt is of bordered chiffon. Developed in shell-pink or apricot color the dress is charming, as well as in white light green or canary color. The dress might be developed attractively in charmeuse, with the bodice partly of charmeuse and partly of lace or net.

Children's clothes are following somewhat the outline of their mother's and elder sister's. The skirts are being made fuller and instead of being cut straight up and down are cut with a little flare. The waistline is creeping up and in some dresses has reached the Empire line, which is coming in for mother as well.

Simplicity in fabric is the order of the day for the younger generation. Fancy little party dresses are sometimes made of silk, or chiffon, but usually of fine batiste, linen or net. The trimming on the finest of dresses is usually hand-embroidered and a very little fine lace. Irish crochet and filet lace are both used a great deal for children's dresses, especially when combined with hand-embroidery.

In children's outdoor apparel there is no smarter way of clothing a child than with coat made in some simple but stylish manner, and hat made from the same material. Old rose broadcloth was used for a stunning child's coat. It was made Empire, with cuffs and high collar of fox. The hat was made of the old rose broadcloth, with a band of the fur around the crown and a bunch of silk ball in harmonizing shades of old rose on one side. The elastic which held the hat on was run through narrow ribbon the same shade as the broadcloth.

To go with these little suits are cunning little muffs made of the same fabric as the coat and hat, and trimmed with the same fur used upon the other garments. These are a very stylish addition to the little coat suits and one which is usually enthuslastically welcomed by the small girl. The modes of dressing a little girl's hair depend greatly upon the hair itself. If it is curly it is comparatively easy to find some becoming way to dress it. At present curly hair is tied at the back of the top of the head the curls falling down the back. The bobbed hair is not as fashionable as it was, but there is no prettier way of fixing the hair of the small girl who has straight hair, especially if there is not enough of it to form a nice braid. However, many mothers with straight-haired little girls are tying the hair in the same way as the child with curly hair, the only difference being that extra pains is taken in brushing the hair thoroughly each time the little girl is dressed.

Mrs. McClain's Experience With Croup
"When my boy, Ray, was small he was subject to croup, and I was always alarmed at such times Chamberlain's Cough Remedy proved far better than any other for this trouble. It always relieved him quickly. I am never without it in the house for I know it is positive cure for croup," writes Mrs. W. R. McClain, Blairsville, Pa. For sale by ALL DEALERS.
