Thomson-Thomas.

On the 4th of January 1915, at the home of Mr. B. G. Collins near White Level, there was a very quite marriage when Miss Cora Bell Thomas and Sam R. Thompson were happily united in marriage. The bride is the daughter of the late Joe Thomas of Red Bud. The groom is the son of Mr T. H. Thompson of Centerville.

The numerous presents attested the popularity of this couple. The bride's maid wore a tan suit with hat and gloves to match. The bridal party left to go to the near by home of the groom, where an old time supper was served at six o'clock.

Those present from a distance were Mr Roy Dillard, and Miss Beverly Marshall of Inez, N. C., Mr Cade Marshall and Mr Turner of Inez. Miss Ivory Johnson of Epsom, N. C., Miss Magnola Thomas, sister of the bride and Miss Marye Hight of Nashville N. C.

Only Sure Corn Cure Ever Known

"Gets-It" the New Way, 2 Drops Do It

To endure the pains and tortures caused by a little thing like a corn is ridiculous, foolish because it is unnecessary. We have the sure cure.

"GETS-IT" is the first one ever known to remove corns without fail, without pain and without trouble. This is why it is the biggest-selling corn cure in existence today. It is now used by millions, because it does away with sticky tape, with plasters and cotton rings that shift their position and press down onto the corn, with salves that "raw up" the toe, with "harnesses" that cause pressure and pain, with knives, razors and files slashing and pulling at a corn. "GETS-IT" is applied in two seconds. Two drops applied with the glass rod do the work. Pain goes, the corn shrivels, vanishes. Accept no substitute. Try it on any corn, wart, callus or bunion tonight.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

"Gets-It" is sold in Louisburg, by Beasley-Alston Drug Co.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

Hints For Daughters

1. You will probably never be able to realize how much you owe your parents until you have children of your own. Show your appreciation now and you will be sure to please them greatly, and at the same time sow the seeds of lifelong happiness.

2. Do not keep all your smiles for the houses of friends, but dispense them freely at home. Cheerful faces make home life warm and happy, and serve to drive away care and trouble from the brows of old folks.

3. Above all things, do not grumble and wrangle at home, because few things cut a mother to the heart so keenly as children's complaints and disputes. If you want anything in particular, ask nicely for it, but pray do not find fault in a grumbling mood, or be peevish with your sisters and brothers.

4. When making presents to your friends, remember that mother and father have known you longer than any of them and have a much deeper affection for you; so make them a little gift sometimes, and rest assured that your thoughtfulness will be greatly appreciated.

5. Keep together the ties of home as long as you possible can, because death will never them soon enough, and once broken they can never be united again. Let home be your heaven when entering the world's busy arena, and you will never want a safer or more welcome place of rest.

6. You cannot have more sincere friends or better councellors than your parents. Their friendship will never desert you, and advice given by them will always be disinterested, so lay all your difficulties and troubles before them. Many a person who has chosen the downward path would have been restrained by a mother's sympathetic advice, or by a father's timely warning.

7. If the ways of the old folks are not up-to-date and what you would wish them to be, do not make any fuss, but bear with them. Remember that your parents have the habits and recollections of thirty or forty years ago, and, as a matter of fact, you will never get them to change their ways radically however much you may try.

Keeping One Thing.

We earnestly entreat every young man, after he has chosen his vocation, to stick to it. Don't leave it because hard blows are to be struck or disagreeable work performed.

Those who have worked their way up to wealth and usefulness do not belong to the shiftless and unstable class, but may be reckoned among such as pulled off their coats, rolled up their sleeves, conquered their prejudices against labor and manfully bore the heat and burden of the day.

Whether upon the old farm, where our fathers toiled diligently, striving to bring the soil to productiveness; in the machine shop or factory, or the thousand other business places that invite honest toil and skill—let the motto ever be: Perseverance and industry. Stick to one thing, boys, and you will have success.

Solomon speaks of them as who has to dwell in a wide house with a contentious woman. It seems to us the house should be very wide, and a house of many chambers and closets for hiding. Friends, let us make our homes cheerful and happy.

Sad the Day.

"Sad the day for any man when he becomes absolutely contented with the life he is living, with the thought he is thinking, the deeds he is doing; when there is not forever beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he knows he was meant and made to do." These words were once spoken by Phillips Brooks. They can be applied to you. It makes no difference what circumstances you are surrounded by nor the environment that you are living in, you should struggle conthually upward. It makes no difference how small your daily task is, always keep in mind that some day you are going to do bigger things. When you have finished your daily work do not relapse into contentment. Understand that the tomorrow will be used to better advantage and that your task will be more perfectly done than ever before. Build as though you were a master builder, but never consider your hardwork perfect. Making your life bigger better and broader is one of your tasks. Every day adds or takes away from your character. Have a care from your daily acts shall strengthen you. Never attempt to advance at the expense of your brother. And never consider that you have reached perfection. Avoid self-contentment as you would a deadly malady.

It means a great deal to be a homemaker, not a mere housekeeper, but to make a true, happy home, one which children may look back upon with pleasure when in after years they have left it far behind, and the mother who made it so is sleeping in the narrow house whose roof is the green covering of the sod.

There is no such thing as pure, unalloyed pleasure; some bitter ever mingles with the sweet.

Man's Life.

"A man's life is full of crosses and temptations.

"He comes into the world naked and bare;

"He goes when he dies—the Lord knows where—

"But if he does well here, he'll do well there.

"When he is little big girl kiss him, but when he is old the little girls kiss him.

"If he is poor, he is a bad manager if he is rich, he is dishonest.

"If he needs credit he can't get it; if he is prosperous, everyone wants to do him a favor.

"If he's in politics it's for pie; if he's out of politics, you can't place him, and he's no good to his country.

"If he doesn't give to charity, he is a stingy cuss; if he does it is for show.

"If he is actively religious, he is a hyprocrite; if he takes no interest in religion, he is a hardened sinner.

"If he dies young there was a great future ahead of him; if he lives to an old age, he has missed his calling."
