PE-RU-NA The Traveler's Companion

Mr. Arthur L. Pierce, 2618 Sheridan Ave., St. Louis, Mo. "The curative value of Peruna is truly wonderful. I think it especially valuable as a specific for catarrh of the system, and for a man who has traveled for years as I have and who is certainly exposed to irregular meals and uncomfortable sleeping accommodations. Peruna is one of his best and most needed traveling companions. It throws off disease and keeps him well. I therefore heartily recommend it. Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets."

Funny how touchy some people are! A fellow came into our office recently and said a doctor told him ten years ago that if he did not stop smoking at once he would become feeble minded. And when we asked why he didn't stop, he just stalked out and slammed the door.

Washington Letter

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4th The predominant feature of legislative events at present is the filibuster that is taking place in the Senate. The ship purchase bill, backed by the administration, providing for the acquisition of ships by the government owned corporation to relieve the present shortage of ocean vessels, and seeking to build up the merchant marine, is still the unfinished business of the Senate, to the exclusion of everything else. In pressing the bill for passage the Democrats have precipitated what promises to be one of the hardest fights in legislative history. The Republicans have resisted all efforts to bring the bill to a vote, claiming that it has not had sufficient consideration and that the people of the Country, are not aware of its provisions which, they maintain, contain many dangerous provisions, such as setting a precedent for the ultimate ownership by the government of all public utilities. The Democrats mean to pass the bill during the present session and claim to have enough votes to insure its passage when it comes to a vote. In order to force this, continuous sessions, day and night, not even stopping for meals, have been held and will continue until the passage of the bill. The parliamentary situation is such that the Republicans must keep talking all the time and they have been resorting to time killing tactics of every description, until now it only seems to be a question of physical endurance. A recess was taken about midnight on last Saturday over Sunday, after a continuous session from 10 o'clock Friday morning. Senator Smoot of Utah talked continuously all through the night, until he was relieved by Senator Sutherland about 9 o'clock. He kept the floor about 12 hours, without an opportunity of sitting down or to eat. The longest speech on record was the one made by Senator LaFollette, in 1908, lasting eighteen hours, but he had frequently rests of from ten minutes to a half hour occasioned by quorum calls.

In the House the naval appropriation bill has been holding attention, and called forth much debate. The remarks wandered over a wide range of topics but always came back to the subject matter, Representative Humphrey charged that the State Department was in receipt of a letter from Great Britain stating their attitude toward the shipping question, which was being held back and not given publicity, but this was denied by Mr. Underwood, on the authority of the State Department. Congressman Hobson has been supporting a proposition to create a bureau of naval operations or board of strategy but that was stricken out on a point of order. Friends of the item, expect the Senate to restore it to the original form. The abolishment of the "plucking board", to remove officers from the service, which has caused so much dissatisfaction in the past, is being advocated and it is likely to pass by a majority. The present war in Europe will no doubt have a decided influence on the future naval policy of this country. Secretary Daniels has announced that a number of eminent naval officers are to be detailed to make observations in Europe of all the navies of the countries now at war. One of the problems effects will be the displacing of the present type of scout cruiser for the larger and more powerful battle cruiser.

Mr. Amos Pinchot, a New York attorney, in testifying before the Federal industrial relations committee, gave some very advanced ideas on economic questions. He states that before we arrive at a proper basis we must reach a point where employers will be bidding against each other for men's services, but the point would never be reached while monopolistic groups controlled the natural resources, thereby regulating and restricting industry, fixing prices and oppressing labor.

W. F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic committee, recently held a short conference with President Wilson, largely in regard to general political conditions. He expressed himself well pleased with the present situation and was quite confident there would be no necessity for an extra session of Congress as he thought the shipping bill and all necessary appropriation bills would be disposed of before the close of the session. The need for economy impressed him and he expressed the opinion that Congress would take this into consideration in the remaining bills. The recent report of the Treasury Department showing a constantly growing deficit, already amounting to over $80,000,000 has brought this matter rather forcibly to the attention of the political leaders and the pruning knife will doubtless be applied on the pending bills. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo denies that any serious condition exists, but it is likely the demand for economy will be heeded.

A movement has been launched in Washington looking toward the establishment of "genuine American neutrality, free from commercial financial and political subservience to foreign powers." The initiators of this movement pledged themselves to support only such candidates for office, irrespective of party, who will place American interests above others and who will aid in eliminating all undue foreign influences from American life.

One phase of the recent established Federal bureau will be the effort on the part of Secretary of Labor Wilson to relieve the congestion of immigrants in the large cities and persuade them to scatter over the country. Government employees will find from the immigrants what work they did in their own countries and what they desire to do here. With these facts before them, efforts will be made to place the people in the best and most advantageous manner. The operations of this bureau not only affects immigrants, but all are to be aided, and plans are being developed to bring the man and the job together.

Miss Ethel Williams Entertains.

One of the most enjoyable parties of the season was a "Tacky party" given by Miss Ethel Williams of Ingleside, N. C., Saturday evening February 6th, 1915, in honor of her cousin Miss Lucy Williams, who is visiting her. The guests were received in a very informal manner and ushered into the south parlor, which had been tastefully decorated in honor of the occasion with fancy cut paper table-covers, red paper flowers, center-pieces and fringe; a beautiful and skilful cut news paper lambrequin added much to the appearance of the room.

Dainty refreshments were served in courses, first; hickory nuts passed in a tin bucket; second delicious popcorn, also passed in a tin bucket, third the sweetest of stick candies passed in a tin pan; fourth and best, the most refreshing "Long Tom" chewing gum.

One of the greatest features of the evening was the soft and melodious music rendered by Mr. Charlie Macon Jr. on a hand organ.

Promptly at 9:30 o'clock there was a voting contest to decide who was entitled to the prize.

The boys decided that Miss Lucy Williams, of Wake Forest was the tackiest dressed girl and she was presented with a nice new cotton apron.

The girls then voted the tackiest boy, Mr. Charlie Macon Jr., and Mr. Dick Hunt tied, so they were asked to draw straws, Mr. Hunt got the lucky straw and was presented with two beautiful handsome handkerchiefs, a red one and a blue one.

After the prizes were awarded several of the guests rendered many beautiful musical selections, which everyone thoroughly enjoyed by keeping time with their feet.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Beasley, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Merritt, Prof. F. B. Scruggs, Misses

Lucy Williams of Wake Forest, Lottie and Annie Johnson of Louisburg, Female College, Hattie Johnson, Alma Edwards and Ethel Collins of Ingleside, N. C., Messrs Dick Hunt, Peter and Earnest Foster, Charlie Macon Jr., Earnest, Joe and Herbert Hayes, Herbert Johnson, Blair Fuller, John Young, Joe Benn Beasley, W. M. Hayes Joel Terrell, of Ingleside, and Mr. Fisher Beasley, of Louisburg.

About 11:30 o'clock the guests departed all declaring that they had had a most enjoyable time, and all declaring Miss Williams a number one "Tacky" hostess.

The Big Mammy Sale

THIS SALE IS STILL GOING ON

The sale price on Flour is still growing higher and most everything else. I am glad to say that one man has traded the lucky number 15 times so there goes 15 boxes of horse powders; let them go I have plenty more. Two more cars of Flour rolling, so you had better come and get yours before it gets too high to eat. I am glad to see prices of cotton improving so the good people who owe me can meet their obligations, it would certainly tickle me to death if they would do it. As the roads are bad just bring a small load of cotton seed and carry a small load of meal and a sack or two of Guano for plant bed use, as I have a car to come in at once, but that is for cash too.
