PARIS FAVORS THE DRESS OF TWO MATERIALS.

Combinations of Velvet and Cloth or Satin and Serge Are Considered Very Smart—The Handbag An Important Dress Accessory.

New York, Sept. 13th, 1916.
Women of fashion are, today, greatly interested in the "two material" dresses. Mrs. not Paris sanctioned them and put forth some of her best efforts in the fashioning of new versions of them for the coming season? No, it is not only the economical woman with an eye to making over her last winter's dress who looks with approval on this style. To be sure, she may take advantage of it, for this fashion holds great possibilities for her; but needless to say, it was not originally planned for her.

One-Piece Frock of Cloth and Satin

Combinations of materials are used in dresses of widely different character; quite as often in the one-piece frock for street as in the dress required for more formal wear. Of the first type is the smart dress of cloth and satin illustrated here. There is a suggestion of the military influence in this dress, too, which accounts for part of its charm, as things military are still a source of inspiration to fashion designers. Perhaps it is the orderly row of buttons placed straight down the front, perhaps it is the four pockets with rounded laps, or yet it may be the shoulder cape, or all of these together, that give the soldierly tinge to this dress. One can readily imagine the design developed in satin and serge, velvet and cloth, velvet and satin, or any one of these materials in two tones. A light and a dark shade of gray silk have been used very successfully by Parisian designers in such a dress as this. They have combined two different colors such as tan and brown, dark green and gray, and mahogany and gray. But the amateur should beware of combining two colors unless they are in perfect harmony, for the result may be vastly different from what the hands of an experienced combiner of colors would produce.

In dresses for formal wear, one sees other combinations. A white Georgette crepe blouse in Russian style was combined with a black satin skirt and the blouse was edged with a wide band of black satin. There was a shoulder cape of white Georgette edged with fur, which trimming also finished the long sleeves. Another dress seen had a blouse of Copenhagen-blue chiffon, also in Russian style, worn over a skirt of blue velvet the same shade. Fur edged the blouse.

Another detail of fashion which is making a strong appeal to the well-dressed woman is the use of colored embroidery as a dress trimming. An example is shown on the illustration here of a one-piece dress with carriage belt. Many of these dresses are seen in dark blue or black serge or satin with gray wool embroidery. In some, the hem of the skirt is further decorated with a wool fringe matching the embroidery and hanging from the lower edge. Other embroidery designs are carried out in Bulgarian colors in wool or silk, or in steel thread and also in gold thread. The two latter are especially effective on dark green, navy blue or black.

Fancy Handbags.
A fashionable woman does not consider her costume complete today without a dainty fancy handbag, which she dangles from a long ribbon or cord. Sometimes it takes the form of the old-fashioned reticule Grandmother used to wear hanging from her belt. In this instance the bag is almost always made from the same material as the dress. But there are numerous other forms and shapes of this important accessory, which, if it does not exactly match the costume should, in any event, harmonize with it. Some very attractive ones are of black velvet with steel beads or of moire with colored beads, and some fluffy little creations are entirely of ruffles of ribbon. In crocheted bags there is quite an attractive new style worked in various, bright colors forming solid rows that go round and round. The bags are round, and longer than they are wide. The top is drawn together on a cord run through rings, and the bottom is finished with a long tassel. In velvet and silk bags there are a number of odd, irregular shapes as well as oval and round ones.

Louisburg, N. C., Sept. 14th, 1916.

DEAR CUSTOMER:—

On January 6th, 1916, I bought out all interest of Howell-Bunn-Hudson, Inc., and paid my hard cash for your account and I have carried your account all through the winter, spring and summer months and not because I was able, but because I knew that you were not able to pay me at that time.

Now I want to say right here and there that both Cotton and Tobacco is selling high and I must have my money, money, yes, the money that you owe me. I don't mean to be overbearing but I mean you must pay me, not because I am bound to have it, but because I think it is time for you, myself and everybody to get all of these old debts off of our hand.

I want to say that I have the largest and best stock of House Furnishings I ever had and if you are on the market for anything in Furniture, Druggets, Rugs, Mattings, Pianos, Organs, Talking Machines or anything in my line I want you to call to see your friends Mr. W. B. Spivey and Mr. J. R. Bunn, as they are always glad to shake hands and make you welcome when in town.
