TO DEVELOP MILL PROPERTY.

Messrs. L. L. Whitaker and W. H. Allen, Jr., who have purchased the mill and gin property just above the bridge at Louisburg from Allen Bros. Co., will, so we are informed begin at once to develop the property into a The gin will, no doubt, remain as it is, least this season. The mill property will be so arranged as to be developed into a modern milling plant and the product will be put on the market to supply the general trade. A large supnly of core has already been purchased and the mill will now become an important commercial fixture for Louisburg. The product that has been turned out by this mill for the past sev eral years has been of the highest quality and these two gentlemen are determined to put out the best product to be had at any plant.
