as Governor in the primary to be held in July, addressed a Courthouse filled with people from all parts of the County on Friday afternoon.

How. Ben T. Holden in a few well chosen remarks introduced the Rev. John F. Mitchiner, who introduced the speaker of the occasion, as North Carolina's next Governor. Believing it to be to the best interests of Democracy and the State to nominate Gardner, Mr. Mitchiner made a pretty plea with a beautiful eulogy to the speaker. speaker.

Speaker.

Lieut. Gardner in the midst of much applause began his speech first by paying attention to the many ugly charges that had been made against him in the last campaign in order to brand them all as false and malicious, and stated that he would be Governor. brand them all as false and malicious, and stated that he would be Governor of all the people without class distinction or he would not be Governor at all. In expressing his views on woman suffrage he stated that in 1915 when a member of the State Senate he spoke and voted against the adoption of it, and later when the question of it. tion of it, and later when the ques tion of it, and later when the ques-tion was up in the United States Sen-ate he telegraphed Senator Overman asking him to provide that the States be allowed to let the people vote on the measure. In his reference to the revaluation act he did not claim it to be perfect but felt that it should be given a fair trial and if found wrong to change or repeal it. Denying the charge that it had increased farm, land values and decreased other property he cited two corporations of their respective owners.

The entire public is invited to go out and hear him at all places.

ROCK SPRING ITEMS.

In our imagination we can see hap py smiles that come to Mr. B. P Strickland's face when he finds our items in the paper. Then again we can see the dark cloud of sadness and cisappointment that passes over his face when he fails to find them. For then he does not know where his boys have been. We like his letters as much as he does our items and we beg him to please come again. We hate to keep him in suspence any longer about his boys so will tell him where they have been the first thing.
