DR. A. B. HAWKINS DIES IN RAL-EIGH AGED NINETY-SIX

Oldest Living Graduate of State University.

Dr. Alexander Boyd Hawkins, one of Raleigh's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, the oldest living graduate of the University of North Carolina, also of Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, died at his home on North Blount Street, Thursday morning at 2:30 at the age of ninety-six years. Dr. Hawkins had led an active life and up to a few months ago when incapacitated by his last illness had kept up his interest in his business affairs. For years a director of the Citizens Bank of this city he rarely missed a meeting of the board.

The funeral service will be held at the Church of the Good Shepherd Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.
Dr. Hawkins' wife died a number of years ago. Miss Mattie Bailey, a niece of his wife's and Miss Mattie Bailey, Jr., and William Bailey, grand niece and nephew of the late Mrs.
Hawkins, also made their home with him. Also surviving are William Balley, of Raleigh, Mrs. John W. Graham of Hillsboro, nephew and niece of his wife, and Mrs. W. C. Lewis, of Tallahassee.

The following facts concerning Dr.
Hawkins' life and career are taken from Captain Ashe's sketch in Van Noppen's history of North Carolina.
Born in 1825

Dr. Alexander Boyd Hawkins was the son of John Davis Hawkins and Jane A. Boyd, and was born at his father's residence in Franklin County on January 25, 1825. There he passed his youth in the midst of a circle of cultured kinspeople and friends surrounded by all the happy circumstances that affluence and prosperity bring to a country home. He was taught by a private tutor and then for a year studied under John B. Bobbitt, at Louisburg. When sixteen years of age he was sufficiently advanced to enter the State University and took his degree of A. B. at that institution in 1845.

After his graduation from the University he entered on the study of medicine at the Jefferson Medical School in Philadelphia, whose faculty at that time were men whose names are still honored for their distinguished ability and professional learning. After graduating at that institution Doctor Hawkins remained in Philadelphia, attending the hospitals. In 1847 he returned home and began the practice of his profession in Warren County.
He was fortunately able to purchase the business of Dr. John Malone, who had a good practice in the vicinity of Shocco Springs. For seven years he remained the physician of that community.

Moved To Florida
In April, 1858, he married Miss Martha L. Bailey, a daughter of Gen. Wm.
Bailey, of Jefferson County, Florida, one of Florida's most successful and distinguished citizens.

He abandoned his practice and removed to Florida where he engaged in the business of planting, making his home in Leon County. His success as a large planter was soon demonstrated, and he at once took a stand as one of the successful men of the community.

After the war Dr. Hawkins removed to Tallahassee, where he resided in the palatial brick building on Park Avenue, now known as "The Columns." There the hospitality which he had dispensed on the plantation broadened out.

Dr. Hawkins' political affiliations were with the Democratic party and he always stood firmly for the old States rights doctrines and principles of the party. He never sought or accepted a public office, but as a private citizen always showed his interest in the public good by taking an active part in the conventions of the party.

It is said of Dr. Hawkins that his business habits were ever characterized by prudence and careful thought.

In the destructive days of Reconstruction he saved not only his own, but many other estates from wreck.
He became guardian to many orphans and was trustee of many large landed estates, which he managed so well that in many cases he added to their value.

When he moved to Florida he retained his plantation in Franklin Co-nty and for many years operated a flour mill on Sandy Creek in Warren County. For five years he held the position of receiver of the Florida Central and Peninsular Railroad. His accounts when audited were kept with such fidelity and carefulness that they excited the admiration of the auditors and received the praise of the court.

Back to North Carolina In 1884 Dr. Hawkins began the culture of sweet oranges and grapefruit. About that time he began to make his summer home in Raleigh and built his handsome residence on North Blount Street, where he has since permanently resided. He became an influential factor in the affairs of the city and for years had been a director in the Citizens Bank.

LUCKY STRIKE
CIGARETTE

A TRIP ON THE NEUSE.

Two faithful friends, though old and grey,
Left port in the Queen of May.
This ship was small with narrow beam Unfit for such a restless stream.

We cranked until the setting sun, But her motor failed to run, Although this restless amber stream Took us on without the steam.

We flew the flag of Uncle Sam, But whirlpools did not care a D—
For a single stripe or star, And shot us hard upon the bar.

When I S O S ed for aid Captain Bones began to wade With his help we left the pier But with a damaged steering gear.

Between two rocks a narrow gap A fisherman had set his trap Perhaps to catch the Queen of May,
But she went through without delay.

Then we shot the Hinton Falls, In sockless feet and overalls Here we made some record speed, Until the stern got in the lead.

At last this flimsy little craft, Turned upside down into a raft, So, it was two sailors brave Were buried deep beneath the wave

But fortune smiled and we arose, The cargo lost including clothes We crawled out on the bank of moss And cried our kingdoms for a hoiss.

Our better halves, when we reached home,
With blistered feet and tangled dome Said, with a sarcastic smile We looked like wizzards from the Nile.
—Village Blacksmith.
