AMONG THE VISITORS

burg.

and Mrs. J. S. Williams visited Saturday Monday.

Mr. Milton Clay, of Alberta, Va., was a visitor to friends and relatives

POPES ITEMS.

Well just a few words from Popes.
It is very dull up here since Mr. President of Punkin Center has quit coming to make music for us at the community service. The old maids and girls had just commenced loving him and he quit right off. I don't think he can stand Hot grease up at Popes. The girls tell me that they have been dreaming about how he plays the Clarinet. And Mallie Ransdell has quit too. He says he is not able to wear out his shoes going to movies. So come again Mr. President, if Mallie can't come I will carry him.

Well you know we have had a very short crop and times are hard. I don't know what will become of Jimmie Conyers and Andrew Fuller. Hard times has put a long face on them.
Well I have been thinking too. But it is about how good old times will knock at our door again and the big sock that old Santa Claus will bring Christmas and how sweet the blue birds will sing and the beautiful flowers will bloom. I will never trouble until it troubles me.
Miss Powell, our new teacher at Popes, is doing a good work in her school. She is one of the best of teachers and the children love her.
Miss Powell is from Wake County and has been teaching for several years and we extend to her a helping hand.
We are sorry to state that Mr. Mal-lie Ransdell has been sick for some time. But is better now. G. H. P.

teen acres, and being the tract of land

Bits of Splendor

Plain wide satin ribbon and narrow fancy ribbons, with handsome metallic mounts, are used to make these elegant shopping bags. Ribbons in the richest qualities and most brilliant patterns are chosen for them and they are lined with gay and equally good silks. Besides being bits of the splendor dear to women these bags have the additional value that belongs to a gift made by its donor.

"Denny," he shouted, "I want my car round at once." Then he came back into the room. "If they've hurt one hair of her head," he said, his voice full of a smoldering fury, "I'll murder that gang one by one with my bare hands."

"Say, captain, may I see this letter?" said the American; and Hugh nodded.
" 'For pity's sake, come at once.' "

"There is such a thing as forgery," remarked the detective dispassionately.
" 'D—n it, man,' exploded Hugh; "do you imagine I don't know my own girl's writing?"

"A good many bank cashiers have mistaken their customers' writing before now," said the other, unmoved.
"I don't like it, captain. A girl in real trouble wouldn't put in that bit about the bearer."

"You go to h—l," remarked Hugh briefly. "I'm going to Godalming."

"And me," said Peter, brightening up.

"Not you, old son. If Mr. Green will come, I'll be delighted; but I want you here at headquarters."

"Car here, sir. Do you want a bag packed?"

"No—only my revolver. Are you ready, Mr. Green?"

"Sure thing," said the American. "I always am."

"Then we'll move." And Peter, watching the car resignedly from the window, saw the American grip his seat with both hands, and then raise them suddenly in silent prayer, while an elderly lady fled with a scream to the safety of the area below.

They did the trip in well under the hour, and the detective got out of the car with a faint sigh of relief.

Drummond dodged rapidly through the bushes on his way to The Larches; and when the American finally overtook him, he was standing by a side-door knocking hard on the panels.

"Seems kind of empty," said the detective thoughtfully, as the minutes went by and no one came. "Why not try the front door?"

"Because it's in sight of the other house," said Hugh briefly. "I'm going to break in."

He retreated a yard from the door, then, bracing his shoulder, he charged it once. And the door, as a door, was not. . . . Rapidly the two men went from room to room—bedrooms, servants' quarters, even the bathroom.

Everyone was empty; not a sound could be heard in the house. Finally, only the dining room remained, and as they stood by the door looking round, the American shifted his chewing gum to a new point of vantage.

"Somebody has been rough-housing by the look of things," he remarked judicially. "Looks like a boozing den after a thick night."

"It does," remarked Hugh grimly, taking in the disorder of the room.
The tablecloth was pulled off, the telephone lay on the floor. China and glass, smashed to pieces, littered the carpet; but what caught his eye, and caused him suddenly to step forward and pick it up, was a plain circle of glass with a black cord attached to it through a small hole.

"Algy Longworth's eyeglass," he muttered. "So he's been caught too." And it was at that moment that clear and distinct through the still evening air, they heard a woman's agonized scream. It came from the house next door, and then Drummond darted forward.

"Stop, you young fool," the American shouted, but he was too late.
He watched Drummond, running like a stag, cross the lawn and disappear in the trees. For a second he hesitated; then, with a shrug of square shoulders, he rapidly left the house by the way they had entered. And a few minutes later, Drummond's car was skimming back toward London, with a grim-faced man at the wheel.

DESPAIR LURKS
IN WEAK BLOOD

Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the Blood-Bail-der, Arouses Dull Faculties.
Many a man and many a woman feels all out of sorts from thin, weakened blood. The least little thing goes wrong throws them into a wild form of despondency. Instead of bracing up and meeting ordinary difficulties, they are downed. Nerves are on edge.
Appetite lags. Sleep is restless. They are weak and tired and dull. Poor blood works its havoc till the will loses its power. Few people who fall into habits of worry and despondency realize that most of their troubles are due to lack of endurance—to blood that has become weakened by overwork or straining.

Healthy men and women with rich, red blood see things brightly. They tackle life with zest and go along smilingly full of eagerness and endurance.
Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken steadily restored the blood to its natural richness. It actually makes red corpuscles, the tiny particles in blood which make it red. Druggists have Gude's Pepto-Mangan in liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.
