POWERS OF CUSTOM

There are many who find themselves in the toils of an evil custom who would most willingly give money and time to be free from its control. Custom is the law of one class of people and fashion of another, but the two parties often clash for precedence in the legislator of the first and novelty of the second. Custom, therefore, looks to things that are past, and fashion to things that are present, but both are somewhat blind as to things that are to come. What will be the length of the skirts in 1924?

It is surprising to what an extent our likes and dislikes are creatures of custom. Our modes of belief, thoughts and opinions are molded and shaped by what has been the prevailing mode of thinking heretofore. Though we are, indeed, not so given to the worship of past institutions as some people, yet we all acknowledge the prevailing power of custom, of personal habits, and of fashions. We dare not stand alone in any matter of concern, but wish to be in company of those similarly minded. The law of opinion goes forth. We do not ask who promulgates it, but fall into the ranks of its followers and worshipers.

Custom has been called a violent and treacherous school-mistress. She has by little and little stolen into the Louisburg High School. As a result, we find there many victims of her powerful nature. Fashion has imposed heavy burdens in this school, for she has cheated many of our dear friends of their long, silken locks and their heavy suit of eye brows. Fashion has also cheated us of comforts. The grandmother's long sleeves, long skirts, and high neck dresses have vanished from our school and in their places have come the short sleeves, short skirts, and low necks. Extremes too! How will fashion repay us? Only with ridiculed criticism! Novelty is the show—with school girls.

We are hurled in the giddy ranks and blinded by the dazzling lights of novelty, until at last we awake from it to find that we have been the victims of a fatal folly. M. D.

THE WILSON FOUNDATION.

There has been a generous response to the proposal of establishing a million dollar fund to be called the Woodrow Wilson foundation; but if we had responded to this noble cause as quickly as we respond to the moving picture "fad," it wouldn't have been necessary to extend the campaign until next week. The income of this fund is to be used for notable and valuable service to democracy, liberal thought, public welfare, or peace through justice.

This is certainly a perfectly honest and worthy purpose, fair to all, and deserving of every man's and woman's attention. The true view is stated in an editorial in the New York Times: "The Wilson Foundation is to foster perpetually the theory and practice, the high, generous conception and fruitful activity of public service to mankind, such as Mr. Wilson has held, illustrated, lived, and done."

Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, stated at the meeting that the practical working of the fund would be as follows: "The prize might go to the Mayor of a city, the Governor of a state, to a president or cabinet member, a scientist or an editor, an author whose book has influenced the thought of the people for good—in fact, to any man or group of men who have had a hand problem to tackle and have solved it to the benefit of the people at large."

These are some of the many illustrations of what the "Woodrow Wilson Foundation" might accomplish. TEMPLE WILLIAMS.

MY ATTITUDE TOWARDS THE NEW YEAR.

For many days previous to New Year's Day each season, I sit in silence drawing up a list of Resolutions. At the time, my intentions are perfectly good; afterwards my conscience is at least at ease. I cannot conscientiously let the old year slip into the new without a few New Year's resolutions. Even though I know I will break at least half of them the following week, I feel better some how for having written them down.

This year, however, I am going to make my resolutions mean more to me than just a means to ease my conscience by a few vague ideas of what I ought to do. I mean business! I am going to enforce concentration where procrastination has worked so long. Why did I take this rash step? Because I realize that it is absolutely necessary if I graduate this year. Putting off until tomorrow what I can do today has long been my favorite vice; consequently I have headed my list of resolutions with a saying of Benjamin Franklin, "Never put off until tomorrow that which you can do today"; and under that I have written in parenthesis: Especially your school work. It is easy to do the things that amuse one and let the necessary things wait until a more convenient time.

Another thing that I took very particular pains to write was to study each day at home at least three hours without thinking during those three hours what I would do the next three. There are two things that I must do for myself: reform and concentrate. I can't use some one else's will power; I have to use my own. Owing to that fact I have decided to begin the New Year with: "If you don't succeed, try again."—second on my list. M. D.

"PUFFS"

Sing a song of school-days, Arms just full of books, But instead of learning lessons, She is thinking of her looks.

Just how to make her cushions Of such enormous size, That she will be the envy Of all the others' eyes.

'Tis not the amount of knowledge That she tries to put inside; But to make her head the biggest, Is the modern school girl's pride.

So we'll sing a song of ear-puffs, Which are full of tangled hair, She'll be wiser in the future; So your censure please forbear. ANNA F. PAHAM, '23.

ATHLETIC NEWS

The Louisburg High School Basketball team has played eight games this season, winning six and losing two. The first game, which was played with Franklinton, was attended by a very large crowd, no doubt the largest that has ever attended a game in Louisburg. The athletic association of the school is very grateful to those attending.

But since the first game the crowd has been decreasing instead of increasing, a fact which is very much to the disappointment of the players. We all like to see a large crowd because it seems to give the boys more "pep" and encouragement; it also seems to put more fight in the old game.

We hope that the crowd attending the next game will exceed all the crowds of the games past. So let everyone that can possibly do so, be present at the next game. The little sum which you pay at the door is not paid for nothing; it all goes to the High School Athletic Association. The Louisburg High School Basketball team is looking to the citizens of the town for support.

We thank you again for your patronage and we hope to see you at the next game. M. S. CLIFTON, Jr., Capt. Basketball Team.

WHY I LIKE WINTER.

One day in winter my old pal, Fred, and I decided we would go hunting the next day if it snowed. It had looked very much like snow all day; so I went to Fred's house to get him to spend the night with me, for I was almost sure it was going to snow. Having got together, we had gone to bed but an hour or two when we looked out the window and saw it was snowing.

The next morning we got up bright and early. When we looked out of the window, the whole world seemed a solid mass of snow and ice. We could hardly wait to put our clothes on, or even eat breakfast, before we were out skating and snow-balling. We had been out but an hour when we were called to breakfast of which we ate heartily.

After eating, we started on our hunting trip with plenty of guns and ammunition. We had been out about ten minutes when, suddenly, in front of us an old rabbit jumped up. Both of us fired, but missed. What a misfortune!

After hunting around looking for game, some of which we killed, we found, to our surprise, that we were eight miles from home—and the weather below zero! Naturally we decided that since the weather was so cold and rainy, we had better turn back towards home. On the way back we killed eight rabbits, four ducks, ten birds, and a turkey—all of which gave us a good stake for our supper at the camp at which we had decided to stop.

We had been at the camp only a little while when the other boys, who had come out from town, suggested that we cook supper. We had not eaten any dinner; so of course we agreed, cooking all of our game without any seasoning, eating it without much bread, going to bed without any water, and awaking in the night without any health, sick and groaning for dear life—an unfortunate condition caused by greediness and not by winter. RUSSEL WILSON, '23.

ANOTHER LINK WITH FRANK-

LINTON

Franklinton Citizens Add Their Praise.

Another link with our neighboring town of Franklinton is provided in the following grateful and generous statement of a well-known resident there. Mrs. W. A. Mitchell, Main St., Franklinton, N. C., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for pains in my back and they sure proved their merit. At one time my back was so sore, no matter which way I turned I was in misery. I had terrible headaches and thought my head would split. Dizzy spells troubled me and specks would dance in front of me, too. Whenever any of these attacks came on I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they always fixed me up all right. I wouldn't be without Doan's in the house." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Mitchell had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.
