OPPORTUNITIES

THE United States is worrying about its next winter supply of hard coal, now considered indispensable. Yet, hard coal was mined for many years in Pennsylvania before any one knew that it would burn.

Anthracite in those days was called "black stone." It was used chiefly for paving roads. Many an old-time eastern stagecoach rattled over a stretch of crushed anthracite, between stretches of plank roads or the rougher "corduroy."

A blacksmith discovered, by chance, that hard coal burns. That discovery led to the development of the anthracite industry, which now has an income at the mines of over half a billion dollars a year.

It is an excellent illustration of the many unnoticed opportunities that exist under our very noses, waiting for someone with keen observation to discover them.

In 1867 the children of a Dutch farmer, while playing in the gravel of the Orange River, South Africa, picked up some pretty pebbles. Their father, having an eye to beauty, put the pebbles on the sitting-room mantel.

9 Months went by. A traveling evangelist stopped at the farmhouse for a drink. He noticed the pebbles, drew them scrutiningly across a windowpane, and announced, "They're diamonds."

That started the famous Kimberley diamond mines. There are thousands of similar cases.

Opportunity does not always come in the discovery of gold, diamonds or other wealth in the ground. But this principle is universal—that opportunities exist everywhere, that for the average person there are as many opportunities right here at home as far off on the other side of the hills.

Most opportunities are not found, they are made! Young man, fortune is at home.

Leg Ball Is Latest Beach Game

"LEG BALL" is the latest to be added to the list of national sports. It is played with a large gas-filled ball, the idea being to "keep it up" in the air. The women's class in athletics at Brighton Beach, N. Y., who invented the sport, are shown in the picture hard at it.

YEARLY LOSSES CAUSED BY RATS

The estimated damage caused by rats in this country is three billion, seven hundred and fifty million dollars per year.

There are five rats to every human being—in other words, there are five hundred million rats and each rat destroys two cents worth of property per day.

The estimated loss from rats in the United States alone for one year is more than one-half of the total fire loss in this country and Canada for thirty-eight years.

Rats are not only great destroyers of property; they are carriers of disease and they cause much sickness and many deaths.

To rid your place of rats quickly and effectively use Rat Nip. Feed it to them a night or two and your house, barn, stable or whatever it may be will be clear of them. They like it and can't resist it.

Rat Nip comes in tubes, it is cleanly and easy to handle. It can be sprayed out, not coming in contact with your hands. Join the great campaign for the extermination of these pests by purchasing a tube of RAT NIP, which is now sold by
