

THE HOUSE BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD

"I see from my house by the side of the road,
By the side of the highway of life,
The men who press with the ardor of hope,
The men who are faint with the strife
But I turn not away from their smiles nor their tears—
Both parts of an infinite plan:
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man."
—Sam Walter Foss.

After long years of faithful service to its community, the records of a bank indicate nothing more surely than that it has been a "house by the side of the road."

Into our doors have pressed thousands of men—"men who press with the ardor of hope, and men who are faint with the strife."

From its beginning, the spirit of this bank has been "Let us live in our house by the side of the road, and be a friend to man." There will not be many readers of this message who will fail to recall some period in their lives when they have sought and found a haven and refuge in this "house by the side of the road."

A bank cannot be a philanthropic institution—it would not long be a bank if it were—but, just so far as sound banking methods would permit, we have tried to be "a friend to man."

There is no more conclusive evidence of this than may be found in page after page of our bank's records. That is our business? Yes. But, to those of you who have had banking experience in other sections of the country we ask the question: Have you always found a bank to be a "house by the side of the road?"

HONOR BRIDE ELECT

On Tuesday afternoon Miss Lucy Allen and her belle, Miss Lucy Ferris Allen, at their attractive home on Main street entertained in honor of Miss Lucy Andrews, a charming bride-elect of June.

This pre-nuptial affair was beautiful in every detail.

The guests on entering were cordially welcomed by Miss Allen and presented with beautiful little score cards by Miss Tom Ogburn. Miss Lucy T. Allen then very gracefully guided them into the parlors which were beautifully decorated in ferns and roses. Tables were arranged for bridge and a very interesting game ensued, after which a delicious salad course was served.

In the midst of this delightful entertainment little Carl Allen wearing a sailor's suit entered drawing after him a large ship, sails set, colors flying and decks decorated in ferns and pink roses. Its cargo was gifts for the bride. Its name "The Tolleson" caught every eye and made the bride-elect blush most charmingly.

Much excitement followed the anchoring of this fair vessel as its whereabouts for some months had been uncertain.

All knew this ship had sailed at an unknown date from the island of Love, commanded by Dan Cupid, and bound for the sunny harbor of matrimony, so its coming into port was hailed with much enthusiasm.

It seemed to have caught much of the brilliance of the sun the mystery of the stars and the glad warmth of sun lit waters as all of these were felt in the enjoyment each experienced in seeing the bride open each beautiful mysterious package.

MY CHOICE OF JUDGE OF RECORDER'S COURT.

(By Jeremiah Tooting Will)
To The Voters of Franklin County—Men and Women:

Among the important problems you will be called on to solve tomorrow, your selection of Judge for Recorder's Court is by no means the least. There are five aspirants for this position, only one of whom can be elected. The question for you to decide is WHICH ONE?

I have looked the whole bunch over one by one, as I trust you will do. And I have, without any pressure or outside influence, made my own deliberate choice, a thing which all should do, and now all I have to do is to go to my voting place and vote for him who, as I believe, will make the best all-round man for the place. And I shall vote for this one for the following reasons:

1. He has had years of experience as a judicial officer and knows from experience how to handle the business of the court room;

2. He believes in law-enforcement—firm sane and consistent.

3. He stands for justice and fairness without discrimination for or against any one whatever. A fair and square deal for one and all alike. He preaches and practices the doctrine of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none"; and he applies this to all classes and conditions alike;

4. He does not belong to any body whatever. No personal or financial influence can feel justified in presuming that they can look over his shoulder and whisper into his ear what disposition he should make of any case on trial. His decisions will be according to the law and the evidence;

5. He repudiates the use of money or anything of value in connection with any election as immoral, criminal and felonious, the least punishment of which is four months in the penitentiary and a fine of not less than $1,000.00.

At the polls tomorrow there will be no paid hirelings working for him. Those who vote and work for him will do so purely from patriotic motives and not for reward of any kind except an honest and righteous enforcement of the laws of the land.

6. He has made no canvass for votes for the reason that this is a judicial office and should be accorded too high a place in the esteem of the people to be dragged down into a rough and tumble scramble for votes. Having therefore made his announcement and told you what you may expect of him as a judge, he has left his candidacy in the hands of the fair-minded voters of Franklin County, and in quietness and confidence he is leaving the results with you in hopeful expectation that his desires will be realized tomorrow when your votes are counted.

For these and many other good reasons, I expect to vote for and I trust you will do the same.

He is the logical man for the place, being well educated and having a broad experience and outlook acquired as teacher and editor. Among his services to the State is the revelation of the pension graft, which, according to State Auditor Durham, was robbing the Confederate heroes of one dollar out of every six.

Peterson seems well in the lead, particularly in the eastern and central counties. Even in Charlotte, after visits of his opponents, more than half the members of the bar and nearly every one else in that city assured him of their support. In New Bern, Wilmington, Fayetteville and other eastern centers there was found scarce a vestige of opposition among the representative citizens seen.

He will appreciate your support and will try to prove himself worthy of it.

One of the most interesting features of boll weevil control to the cotton farmer is the "cost and profit" of applying measures. Referring to the use of calcium arsenate one expert has declared that, "It does not cost to dust—it does cost not to dust." A comparison of three methods of poisoning in an average of all tests conducted in the South in 1923 has been made and these figures show conclusively that it pays to use calcium arsenate in dust form. The comparison follows:

Florida Method: Untreated check-plats averaged a yield per acre of 388.7 pounds of seed cotton; treated plats average 514.3 pounds, a gain of 125.6 pounds at a cost of $5.32 an acre with a profit of $7.94.

Sweetened Poisons: Untreated check-plats averaged a yield of 468 pounds per acre, while treated plats averaged 769 pounds, a gain of 302.7 pounds at a cost of $7.74 and a profit of $35.56.

Calcium Arsenate in Dust Form: Untreated checks averaged a yield of 566.6 pounds per acre, and untreated plats averaged 869.3 pounds, a gain of 302.7 pounds at a cost of $7.74 and a profit of $35.56.

Thus, it is shown that application of calcium arsenate in dust form increases the yield, lowers the cost and increases the profit. Poisoning by this method should be even more profitable this year under average weather conditions, as the price of calcium arsenate is somewhat lower and probably will not go higher provided farmers buy their supply early in the season.

Dusting with calcium arsenate should be applied with machines built especially for dusting cotton and the applications made only when the air is calm and the plants are moist. This usually means making only night applications. From five to seven pounds of calcium arsenate should be used to the acre.

There should be an interval of four or five days between applications unless a heavy rain follows one application. The cotton should be thoroughly dusted until the weevils are under control. This usually means about three applications. Applications should be renewed when the infestation again reaches 10 to 15 per cent.

Further information on boll weevil control measures may be obtained from the county agent, state college of agriculture or the National Boll Weevil Control Association, Room 230 Whitney building, New Orleans, Louisiana.
