HOW TO BUILD AN ATTRACTIVE LAWN

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—"How can I secure a good lawn?" and "What can I do to restore the fresh and velvety appearance of my lawn?" are two questions coming constantly to horticultural workers of the State College Extension Division.

"We have found" says C. D. Matthews, Chief of the Division of Horticulture, "that the most satisfactory way to renovate the old lawn is to take a new one; consequently directions for establishing a lawn will apply to those who ask both of the above questions. The time of year is approaching when work on establishing a satisfactory lawn can be done with advantage. Much work on the lawn, usually done under high pressure in the busy, crowded months of April and May, may be very successfully performed with comparative leisure in Autumn. At this time the soil is in admirable condition for working."

Mr. Matthews states that it is not easy to have a good lawn but if careful attention is given to the different factors involved one may be secured that will be a source of satisfaction to the home owner. It is impossible to get soil too good for making a lawn. The best soil is a rich loam containing a fair portion of clay with a tendency to be rather heavy and compact and fairly retentive of moisture. It should be deep and porous so that the roots can penetrate deeply. Wet soils should be properly drained, and sandy soils improved with humus. The soil around new buildings is generally unsuited as it consists mostly of un-fertile subsoil mixed with building debris. In such a case soil from a cultivated field should be hauled in to a depth of 12 inches.

A reasonably fertile soil should be plowed or spaded to a depth of 6 inches. An application of 1,000 pounds of lime per acre should be spread over the surface. Since the lawn is permanent proposition every means should be taken to bring the soil into a high state of fertility. One thousand pounds to the acre of equal parts of ground bone and cotton seed meal would be a value.

"For eastern and central Carolina," says Mr. Matthews, "the type of grasses to be grown will depend on whether or not the lawn can be watered regularly and given good attention. If the lawn can be given the best of attention 100 pounds per acre of a mixture made of equal parts of Kentucky Blue Grass, creeping Bent grass, Sheep fescue and Perennial rye grass is recommended. This mixture should be seeded in October or November after the ground has been properly prepared and the fertilizer added.

"If it is impossible to water the lawn regularly it will be necessary to use a combination of Bermuda and rye grass. Bermuda may be regarded as the permanent lawn grass in the lower Piedmont and Coastal Plain of the South. It is a rapidly creeping grass, makes a substantial growth in warm weather but unfortunately suffers from cold and turns brown as frost touches it. Though the roots are permanent and will survive the winters, the tops die and it is necessary to use a companion grass to give a green appearance in winter. By sowing in October a generous amount of perennial rye grass on the Bermuda sod and adding at the same time a good application of bone meal and cotton seed meal a green cover may be had throughout the winter. The Bermuda lawn may be secured by sowing the chopped up runners in March or 6 pounds per acre of the Bermuda grass seed may be sown in early Spring."

MORE MONEY FOR COTTON

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—Farmers of North Carolina who are members of the Cotton Growers Cooperative Association will receive an advance of $90 on each 500 pound bale of 1924 cotton delivered, beginning September 1, when the pools for the new crop are opened and deliveries will be accepted, according to a statement issued from the headquarters in Raleigh last night.

The association is in shape for the season, said T. W. Chambliss, Director of Information, and receiving agents have been appointed throughout the territory, and contracts have been made with bonded warehouses for the coming season. The association has been able to make even more advantageous contracts with warehousemen and in addition has secured reduced insurance rates and it is estimated that by reason of these concessions secured the members of the association will be saved approximately $100,000 on these two items, warehousing and insurance.

Concerning the advance, Mr. Chambliss said that the Cotton Growers' Cooperative Association would advance $70 on every 500 pound bale and the North Carolina Agricultural Corporation would make an additional advance of $20 the bale, making the total advance of $90 a bale of 75 per cent of the market value of the cotton and in the present state of the market practically all that any farmer could expect to secure if the cotton was dumped on the market and the cooperative marketing association was to withdraw from business.

The advance to be made on bales weighing less than 500 pounds will be in the same proportion as follows: between 450 and 500 pounds, total advance $80; between 400 and 450 pounds, $70; between 350 and 400 pounds, $62.
