The second annual Community fair of the Franklinton community was formerly opened on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in the large and commodious gymnasium of Franklinton's handsome public school building by Mr. Geo. L. Cooke, the General Chairman, who in a most unique and interesting manner made all feel a deep welcome and told of the possibilities of the influence of this venture if the people would continue to show the co-operative spirit that they are now demonstrating.

The fair is a realization of a conception in the minds of Mr. Geo. L. Cooke, Col. C. L. McGhee, Mr. A. H. Vann, and several of their associates whose interest in the welfare of the people of their community, interest in agriculture, and a just pride in the progressiveness of their community always moves them to action. On this particular occasion their effort were well crowned with success in a most creditable and pleasingly arranged display of farm products, live stock, ladies fancy work, industry and wares and merchandise. The exhibit, though small in size, but large for its community, would do credit to a fair designed for state proportions. It was excellent, and gave evidence of masterful farm knowledge and fine judgment on the part of the operators.

At 3:30 in the afternoon the large crowd who had been present all thru the day enjoyed a most interesting and helpful speech by Mr. J. B. Cotner, of the State College, Raleigh. He took for his theme the essentials of life and divided it into eight parts which were food, clothing, shelter, health, education, religion, recreation and social contact. Under the first division he discussed the balanced ration showing its value and pointed to Domestic Science as the means to produce it. Our clothing is an index to our character he said and we should be well dressed, not necessarily expensive, but neat and well selected. He paid a beautiful tribute to home and pointed to the necessity of making it a place of influence for that which is best in life, not only by the example of the parents but by its suggestiveness in decorations and arrangements. But without health we could neither enjoy home or life. Education is a big business and is necessary for the proper appreciation of our surroundings. The vocational training is a most important part. Religion, he said, is the greatest factor in our life and is a most important part that should not be overlooked. The human body is like a machine and needs a rest. We need a fuller social contact with our neighbors. We cannot live a full and complete life with all eight of these essentials. He referred to farming as a big business and quoted figures to show that it was one of the biggest businesses in the country. Referring to Franklinton county he said the farmers did not make enough corn to feed the live stock thereon, and that they made less than a ton of hay to the farm, while our receipts for money crops was eight million dollars. He spoke nicely of the educational advantages that Franklinton has, which he considered as good or better than anywhere else in the State.

The speaker was introduced by Col. C. L. McGhee, who, after the speech, also made announcements for the remainder of the fair.

At eight o'clock Tuesday night until 12 o'clock large crowds of Franklinton township's people and many visitors were entertained by a brass band from Raleigh and heard the election returns from the nation as they came in over wire. In addition many visited the exhibit hall and again viewed the many creditable exhibits on display.

The demonstration by the Domestic Science Class of Franklinton High School under the direction of Miss Daisy Caldwell, Home Demonstration Agent of Franklin County, attracted much commendation and interest from large numbers who kept continual line moving in and out the department throughout the hour, from ten to twelve o'clock Wednesday morning. The refreshing menu served by the young ladies was more than enjoyed.

At 8 o'clock that night the local

Each of the addresses delivered on this occasion were of a high order, interesting, instructive and elevating, and filled with that spirit that makes one glad they were a part of the community, and glad that it was their privilege to be a visitor at such an occasion.

Thursday morning at 10 o'clock was the time of most interest certainly to those who had placed on display exhibits. To these the inspiration of being declared the best or next best in the display. It was a time when all the exhibitors and many of their friends were present and the judging and the awarding of prizes proceeded in regular order.

The following is a list of exhibits which took first place in the premium list. There were many others that won blue ribbons but did not win prizes. This was due to the fact that they were not entered to compete for prizes but were merely on exhibition:

Mr. G. H. Furgerson won the prize for the best individual farm exhibit and Mr. J. O. Green took the prize for the best display of power drawn farm equipment.

One of the most amusing exhibits was the Carolina red bats that were all nicely caged and decorated and attracted much attention.

The second annual fair that got its inspiration and beginning from a small display in the bank window the year before was a grand and glorious success and will be a great influence in the Franklinton and adjoining communities for better farming and thru that better living.

Each of the committees in charge did most excellent work, especially so was the results of the Decoration Committee and the committee on Publicity and Finance. A look at the exhibits was self evident of the fine work of the committee in exhibits, while the Entertainment Committee over did itself in making one feel welcome and to have a good time. The Premium and Programs Committee also did fine work and are entitled to a large share in the success. Committees promoting the attraction under the direction of General Chairman George L. Cooke were: Exhibits—C. R. Bohanan, chairman; J. O. Green, J. W. Nowell, S. B. Nash, H. S. Pearce. Premiums—D. C. Hicks, chairman; L. L. Freddy, B. F. Wilder. Publicity and Finance—C. L. McGhee, I. PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

COOLIDGE WINS PRESIDENCY McLEAN GETS BIG MAJORITY

President Apparently Will Have More Than a Hundred Votes To Spare In Electoral College.

LA FOLLETTE SO FAR ASSURED OF VICTORY IN WISCONSIN ONLY

Little Change In Davis Vote, With Indications That He May Add Three More From New Mexico To His Total of 136; Coolidge Electoral Vote Stands at 367, With Four States Doubtful; Republicans Have Paper Majority In House and Senate, But Final Returns Must Come In Before It Is Known Whether Coolidge Will Be Able To Wield Whip Hand Over The Legislative Body; Figures Show Vote Largest Ever Polled In The Nation.

New York, Nov. 5.—The full measure of the Republican victory at the polls could not yet be taken tonight, but the returns continued to show that President Coolidge would have at least 100 votes to spare in the Electoral College, and the largest popular plurality in history. The showing made by John W. Davis remained unchanged throughout today and although Senator La Follette began to creep up a little in one or two Western states, there was no certainty tonight that he would receive the electoral vote of any state group except that of Wisconsin. No Working Majority On the face of the day's Congress-sional returns, the Republicans made certain of a paper majority, at least, in both Senate and House, but doubt remained whether the margin would be great enough to give the administration the whip hand over the combined opposition of the Democrats and the LaFollette bloc.

As the Presidential figures stood tonight, with only a handful of electoral votes still in doubt, the indicated strength of the three candidates in the Electoral College was as follows:
