Military Training

Each summer, as the time for the organization of the citizens' military training camps approaches, our attention is directed anew to the subject of preparedness. The training camp system is our strongest reliance in building up at short notice a citizen's army when a war emergency threatens. But there is another influence that contributes materially to the effectiveness of those camps and permits them to graduate their members with such a high degree of proficiency in the short time available for instruction. Many of the young men who enroll in the Army camps are high school students or have recently graduated from high schools. In most of those schools there are cadet organizations in which the boys get their first instruction in the use of arms and in military tactics. In many of them not only the manual of arms and marching drill are taught, but the cadets are initiated into battle formations, rushing the enemy, effective use of cover, and other accomplishments that make the efficient soldier.

In many of our school organizations Army officers are detailed as instructors and Army paraphernalia is loaned for the use of the cadet corps. The school authorities sanction the military exercises but in too many instances military drill is not recognized as a part of the regular school curriculum. Credits are not given for military proficiency as for high standing in other studies, school hour periods are not allotted for military study, and the student is not properly encouraged to enroll in the cadet corps.

Compulsory military training is antagonistic to American democracy and students in our schools should not be coerced into it; nevertheless, military instruction should be elevated to the same plane as other studies in the recognized school course. The mental discipline that comes from instant obedience to commands, the coordination of mind and body that unconsciously follows, and the training of the individual as one unit of an orderly mass, have a psychological value not found elsewhere in the school system.

The equipment of a student in worthy citizenship is decidedly lacking if he has been denied generous experience in all those factors of character building. The indirect benefits from military instruction perhaps outweigh the direct but the knowledge gained by the young cadet will prove of immense value to him and to his country should another emergency like that of 1917 confront us.

Every school superintendent and board of education should ponder the matter and accord to military drill the part which it rightly deserves in our system of public education.

AN EDITORIAL By Dr Frank Crane

I am not one of those who run away with catch words, and see red at a war cry.

I am an incurable pacifist and utterly opposed to that old system under which the governments of the world still function the system that renders rival national armies and navies a necessity.

But for all that I believe the army and navy should be retained by every nation not so much as a defense, but as furnishing the best machinery of education.

I believe in military training not only for every boy but for every girl. This military training in no sense implies training to murder or developing the lust to kill.

But it does imply certain things that are of more necessity for youth than other things that can be supplied elsewhere. The child learns best, by military training, the meaning of discipline and perhaps more souls are lost and bodies ruined by lack of discipline than from any other cause.

The child by military training, has developed in him a sense of responsibility and this is the core of good citizenship.

The child by military training, gets practical and invaluable physical development.

He learns to make use of that tonia which more than any other, can put iron in the soul—hardship.

He learns decision; and indecision is the mother of all slobs.

He learns obedience; not only obedience to his superiors but obedience to himself, which is more important.

He learns team play; and after all, the ability to cooperate is of more value to the human being than the ability to compete.

If he learns "jingoism" and the bunk about the glory of war and conquest, it is not because this sort of rubbish is in any wise essential to military training.

Military training does not imply that those who receive it shall become professional soldiers, but in a free democracy every human being is a potential soldier, he or she may be called upon at any time to sacrifice fortune or life for the common good, and perhaps the most important thing in military training is the fact that the youth has his budding ego properly pruned he is made to feel that there is Another 'Bull' Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Folies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

Those Two Boys Chauncey and Will

I JUST saw a nice write up and I Chauncey Depew's picture in all the papers where he told of his first watch which was an Elgin. Said he kept it for years and somebody stole it on a New York Central train. (That's what he gets for riding on his own Railroad.) What does he need a watch for anyway, time means nothing to him. He was in The Follies the other day, and I introduced him and made him make a speech, he said, "I have been entertaining audiences for 91 years and have never found it necessary to use a Lariat yet". The old rascal hung one on me.

Now the moral of his story as I could gather it is don't have an Elgin Watch, somebody will steal it. So my story is carry 'Bull' Durham, they may borrow it, but nobody will steal it.

Now after looking at this I don't know whether it is an ad for Elgin Watches, Chauncey Depew, The Follies or 'Bull' Durham.

Well, they are all good.

P. S. I'm going to write some more pieces that will appear in this paper. Keep looking for them.

something in this world more important than his own private interest.

One of the cardinal paragraphs of my creed is that every boy and girl in America should be required to give at least one year to the service of Uncle Sam.

Too many grown people are so deficient in education that they do not realize the supremacy of the claims of their nation and of humanity upon them.

Military training might easily become the very best means of developing the civic nerve. And one great trouble with the country is that too commonly this nerve is atrophied.
