

Raleigh, Sept. 14—Observations made this summer by J. C. Crawford, field entomologist for the North Carolina Experiment Station show that farmers who followed recommendations in the control of the Mexican Bean Beetle in western North Carolina secured good results, states Prof. Franklin Sherman of the Division of Entomology.

Mr. Crawford is stationed at the Mountain Branch Station near Swannanoa and during the past month has had the opportunity of studying the bean beetle situation in several mountain counties. He reports that the beetles appeared in young beans about May 20 this year which was earlier than in 1924. The beetles were more abundant this year than last but those plantings which were poisoned according to recommendations made by the Division of Entomology often outlived and outgrew the early injury by beetles. The dry weather aided in this somewhat as it allowed the poison to remain on the beans for a longer period of time. Some localities at higher altitudes

The poisons recommended by Mr. Crawford were tested this year with success and many additional preparations were tried out in an experimental way.

The Mexican Bean Beetle has been in North Carolina only a few years, having spread northward from Alabama and invading Cherokee County in 1921. Since that time it has spread throughout the mountains and moved eastward to a line through Charlotte, Statesville and Mount Airy. he pest seems to prefer the higher and cooler elevations and it is not known now whether it will invade great soybean sections of Eastern Carolina.

Mr. Crawford also studied a number of other insect pests in the mountain territory this summer and found that most of them could be controlled with the usual poisons recommended.

—Mr. J. M. Rice and wife wishes us to extend their heartiest wishes to neighbors and friends for their kindnesses to them in th illness and death of their darling little boy, Fredbett Winston.

Dear Miss Flo:—When there is no head-waiter to find a table for a couple, should the lady or gentleman precede? (2) Is it ever permissible for the gentleman to follow the head-waiter, the lady immediately following the gentleman? Thank you. F. R.

When there is no head-waiter, the gentleman should go first, in order to locate the table. (2) There are occasions when the gentleman prefers to follow immediately after the head-waiter, in order to consult with him regarding the desirability of the table. This is quite permissible, but not so customary as the other order.

Dear Miss Flo:—Is stationery in table form considered correct, or should the double page sheet be used? (2) Is the ink I have used for this letter correct? D. E.

Linen stationery in tablet form is correct. However, the double-page sheet is preferred. The single sheet gives an impression of being very business-like. Your ink is all right.

Dear Miss Flo:—When a gentleman thanks a lady for a dance, what does the lady say? (2) Does the lady seek her partner for the next dance, if she promised it to anyone, or does she wait until he comes to claim the dance? (3) At the conclusion of the dance, should the gentleman leave the lady immediately or see to it that she is comfortably seated or at least back with her friends? L. K.

When a gentleman thanks a lady for a dance she may say, "I am glad you enjoyed it." or "I also enjoyed it." (2) The lady does not seek her partner for the next dance. She should wait until he comes to claim the dance. (3) A gentleman should never leave his dancing partner standing alone on the floor. If he is her escort, he must see that she has a partner for the next dance. If he is not her escort, he should see that she is comfortably seated with others before leaving her.

Dear Miss Flo:—Is it necessary to wear anything in the hair with a formal evening gown? Thank you. C. D.

Very few women wear to advantage a head-dress. It depends entirely upon the woman's wishes whether or not she should wear it. If a head-dress is becoming to you, by all means wear it. If it is not, do not wear it.

Cramped and Suffered

"My back and head would ache, and I had to go to bed," says Mrs. W. L. Ennis, of Worthville, Ky. "I just could not stay up, for I would cramp and suffer so. I was very nervous. My children would 'get on my nerves.' It wasn't a pleasure for me to try to go anywhere, I felt so bad. My mother had taken at one time, so she insisted that I try it. I took four bottles of Cardui, and if one should see me now they wouldn't think I had ever been sick.

"I have gained twenty pounds, and my cheeks are rosy. I feel just fine. I am regular and haven't the pain. Life is a pleasure. I can do my work with ease. I give Cardui the praise."

Cardui has relieved many thousands of cases of pain and female trouble, and should help you, too.

Take Cardui.
