CHRISTMAS TIME

Christmas time is almost here, And I'm so awfully glad its near, For I'm so very fond of this time of year, It's always full of fun and good cheer.
For its the time for Santa Claus, And I'm sure he's of a good cause, For it makes the kiddies always happy and gay, And they just overflow with joy looking forward to Christmas day.

The kiddies around Christmas time Always seem so jolly and fine, They are looking for good St. Nick, Who always brings a joyful picnic.

We grown-ups like that day, Because it brings thoughts of our friends far away, We hope they will think of us too, And that we may extend kindest of greetings That will last the whole year through.

Now to all that's here tonight, I hope your Christmas happy and bright, Full of fun and much good cheer, To all that's here, Merry Christmas, and a Happy New Year.

FALL PLOWING THE ORCHARD

Raleigh, Dec. 21.—"In orchards, where a winter cover crop is not grown," says W. A. Radspinner, Pomologist for the State College Department of Horticulture, "the ground should be broken deep, but care should be taken not to disturb the roots of the trees."

There are several advantages of plowing early, the most important of which are: it increases the aeration of the soil, allows organic matter to decay before spring, kills insects that are hibernating in the soil over winter, and clears the surface of rubbish. Cover crops turned under in the fall will decay in time to furnish fertility for spring growth of trees.

"In the mountain area the plowing should not be done during cold winters, as roots sometimes freeze more quickly in freshly plowed ground."

"Many orchards are plowed in the fall and not harrowed until spring. This method of fall plowing keeps the land from washing and also reduces the spring labor question thereby checking the rush at that time of year. There is no added expense to fall plowing, as no extra harrowings or plowings are made, the work merely being transferred from spring to fall."
