TO THE VOTERS OF LOUISBURG

I wish to express to my friends my heartfelt appreciation of their generous support in the recent primary in which I led all other candidates by a substantial plurality. Under the rules of the primary, however, there will have to be a second primary between myself and the next highest

I shall have, therefore, to ask my friends to again give me their aid and I will deeply appreciate the support and votes of all members of the Democratic party in this township. If nominated, as I hope to be, I shall endeavor to render faithful and efficient service to the people.

RAISING PULLETS

There are many factors involved in raising good pullets. They need plenty of air, plenty of the right feed, and freedom from parasites.

Housing:

When the pullets are old chough to go without heat the cockerels should be separated and Yarded by themselves, except possibly a few breeding cockerels that may do better with the pullets. The cockerels will fatten quicker as brollers and make better roasters if they are kept by themselves. If the pullets are kept by themselves, they have a better chance to eat. Greater room and air space in the house will help grow better birds.

Lots of fresh air is one of the principal factors in growing a strong bird. The air purifies the blood and helps the digestion and assimilation, as well as reduces the chances of poultry troubles. When the pullets are old enough, and properly feathered to keep them comfortably warm, roosts should be put in the houses so that they will have a better chance to get pure air. A great deal of trouble with fall colds, poor flesh, and run-down condition comes from over-crowding and overheating the growing birds. If you do not have room enough in the houses to keep the air good at all times, get the birds to roost outdoors in the treese. The best pullets are those that breathe good air all the time.

Parasites:

Many of the parasites that sap the vitality of a growing flock may easily be prevented. To get rid of lice, thoroughl; dust the birds with sodium fluoride or some good lice powder. To keep out mites, clean the houses frequently and thoroughly, disinfect with some good heavyy coal tar disinfectant. To get rid of round worms add two pounds of tobacco dust to each 100 pounds of Full-O-Pep Growing Mash and feed the mixture for a month. To get rid of tape worms, give to each bird a capsule containing one gram of kamala. If the houses are kept clean and all dropping's carried to different parts of the farm, the dangers from worm infestitation are

New Ground:

Don't raise the birds on the same ground space each year if it can possibly be avoided. Move the houses so that the birds will be started on new ground each year. As the birds eat up the grass, move the houses or move the hoppers so that the birds will range farther on new ground. If it isn't possible to move on to new ground don't let the birds out until the ground is dry. Cultivate and crop the land each year so as to purify the soil as much as possible.

Feeding Directions:

...When the chicks are six weeks old feed Ful-0-Pep Growing Mash and keep it constantly in front of them. Provide enough hopper space so that the small chicks as well as the large ones can get all they want to eat. Use Ful-0-Pep Coarse Chick Feed instead of Fine Chick Feed and gradually increase the amount so that they are eating more of the Coarse Chick Feed than Growing Mash when they are five months old. If the pullets are to grow to full size and have the frame necessary to lay lots of large eggs, they need the materials contained in the Growing Mash. They cannot make the proper growth and development on grain alone.

The amount of Ful.O-Pep Growing Mash the birds should eat will vary with the age and size of the bird and the season of the year. If you want them to mature early, feed heavily on Ful-O-Pep Growing Mash. If you want to retard laying, feed very heavily on Ful-O.Pep Coarse Chick Feed. Late hatched birds should be brought along steadily and repidly. It is usunlly wise to hold back the early hatched birds and not let them lay until they six or seven months of ago Early hatched birds should be fed all the Ful-O-Pep Coarse Chick Feed they will eat after they weigh 1 1-2 to 2 pounds. If the pullets begin to shoot their combs, indicating they are getting ready to key too young, restrict the Mash feed and make them range more, but do not so restrict the feeds that the birds will be stunted. Always keep bright shiny grit and plenty of iresh water available.

When six months old begin feeding half Ful-O-Pep Growing Mash and half Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash, and Gradually change to all Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash. Feed daily one quart of Ful-O-Pep Scratch Grains to 12 pullets or 14 pounds to 100 pullets.

After the Birds have matured, follow the Ful-O-Pep Way of feeding hens and watch the eggs roll out. Ful-0-Pep Growing Mash is such an astonishing growth producer that it frequently starts pullets to laying at four to five months of age. Where it is the intention to keep the pullets for permanent egg preduction, we recommend that they should not be allowed to begin to laying until six months old. This will result in greater annual egg production. A six months old pullet will have firmer, sounder bones, will be in better flesh and will go through the winter without going into fall molt or having other interruptions to lower egg production.
