SMALL COUNTIES ENTITLED TO OWN JUDICIAL OFFICERS

It should be possible for the coming Legislature to work out some means of relief for those small counties which are paired with larger ones in districts, particularly judicial, with the almost inevitable result that they remain unrepresented in the responsible judicial personnel of the courts.
That result will be inevitable as long as human nature remains what it is. In a county such as Wake, for instance, which is coupled with Franklin, the offices in natural order go to citizens of the county having the preponderant mass of voters. Franklin County may protest forever that this is unfair, and the point will have to be conceded, but it will be the highly exceptional case that a Franklin County man can win one of these offices against opposition by a Wake County man. At the moment our eye falls on the result of the primary for the solicitor of the Tenth Judicial District. What chance had Hall living in Person, against Umstead, resident of Durham, when Umstead had over 5,000 home voters to appeal to, and Hall less than 1,500 in his county? Why should not Durham County be, as Wake should be, its own judicial district, and the small counties of Person, Granville, Alamance, Orange and Chatham be grouped together? Why is it necessary for more than one county to be in a district, it should be composed of counties of approximately the same size.
The alternative remedy of an agreement for rotation is in every way impractical and against public policy. In fact, such an agreement attempted to be enforced by statute probably would be unconstitutional. In practice, it would result in the premature retirement of men pre-eminently qualified, at the very moment they were capable of being of most public service. Yet with a large county exercising a monopoly in these posts, the effect is necessarily bad upon the morale, as respecting the judiciary, of the smaller counties.—Raleigh Times, June 8th.
It will be seen from the above article that the Raleigh Times agrees with the Franklin Times that this judicial district is unfair. Wake county is big enough and has business enough in its courts to be made a district within itself. Franklin county will gladly step out and thereby assist in doing so.

The larger poultry growers of Alamance County will ship 40 cases of first quality eggs each week, leaving the local market to be supplied by the smaller producers.

It's time to plan for that community picnic and some shady place, preferably near a body of water, should be selected.

Better go fishing than use time suckering corn. It doesn't pay, find leading North Carolina farmers.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with Worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

HINSDALE ASSAULTS NEWSPAPER REPORTER

Raleigh Attorney Incensed at Article Written by N. and O. Representative

John W. Hinsdale, local attorney, last night assaulted Wade H. Lucas, reporter for the News and Observer in the lobby of the newspaper office, striking him in the face without warning.
Hinsdale was incensed over an article in the News and Observer Wednesday morning. The portion of it to which he took offense read:
"Louisburg folks were telling the story today that Mr. King at the meeting Monday twitted Mr. Hinsdale with drinking during the primary four years ago, when the latter ran against Mr. Evans. This story was corroborated by Editor Johnson and a number of Louisburg lawyers. It was said that Mr. Hinsdale made no reply."
Coming into the city room, Hinsdale inquired for Lucas, whom he did not know. On Lucas being pointed out to him, he asked the young man to come into the hall saying that he wanted to see him. The reporter acceded to the request. Hinsdale asked him if he wrote the Louisburg article. When the reporter replied in the affirmative, Hinsdale struck him in the face.
Hinsdale was offered an opportunity to make a statement, but said that he has had the satisfaction he wanted and desired no statement or correction made. He declared the article was insulting, and when asked if it were false, replied in the affirmative, repeating his statement that he had all the satisfaction he wanted.—News and Observer.

Many of Mr. Hinsdale's friends in Franklin county feel that he made a big mistake in his attack upon Mr. Lucas. The people are entitled to all the information centering around any public act or circumstance and when any man attempts to muzzle the press with fear or otherwise and keep the news withheld from the public he is not only committing political suicide but is bringing reproach upon himself. Mr. Lucas report was very generous to Mr. Hinsdale and Mr. Hinsdale should have appreciated this generosity.

Our sales the first five months of this year have been around 25 per cent more than the same five months of last year. THERE MUST BE A REASON. It is not because money is more plentiful, BUT because the buying public is trying to buy same goods for less money, or more goods for same money. We are selling for strictly cash and people are realizing more and more the advantage of trading at this store. Don't forget that when you pay cash, you pay less, and you pay nobody's bills but yours. Come to see us when in town. We keep free ice water for the thirsty.
