OUR RALEIGH LETTER

By M. L. Shipman

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—One of the heaviest oratorical campaigns the State of North Carolina has ever experienced, according to the older heads, has been concluded and the battle of ballots tomorrow will decide which of the contending parties is to sit at the head of the table in both the State and the Country. In both camps of the major parties the fight has been fast and furious for weeks. Attacks and counter attacks have characterized the progress of events and many who were friends before the unpleasantness gained headway are not even on speaking terms today. Bitter partisanship carried to the extreme has not only severed personalities of a lifetime, it has divided families and churches, provoked bloodshed, murder and general confusion. Intolerance has held sway in its most aggravating form and neither party, nor any political group may truthfully be charged with having had a monopoly on it. Personalities were substituted for issues and billingsgate for argument, in both the Smith and anti-Smith performances, while the Republicans smiled gleefully as they stood on the sidelines.

Senator F. M. Simmons has been the major object of attack from the Smith adherents who early realized the force of his opposition to the New Yorker for the presidency. The Senator contented himself with stating his position until attacks upon his political integrity became so violent he could stand it no longer, according to friends in harmony with his views. The extent of his opposition to the head of the Democratic ticket will be seen in the returns of Tuesday's election in the State. Arranged against him has been practically every Democratic leader of prominence in North Carolina. Men who would have never been heard of beyond the limits of their precincts in the absence of his friendship have been loudest in abuse of the man who paved the way for their political advancement, is a suggestion offered by those who are still willing to trust him. However, dire predictions touching the Senator's activities in the present campaign are rampant and when he offers for re-nomination two years hence the influence of former friends is likely to be sadly missing. Standing for principle rather than party is fine in theory but not in practice during a political campaign. Henry Clay may have been right, but he never became President.

In the opinion of the late Zebulon Baird Vance, "Democracy is immortal." Taking this as its tenet the Democratic party of North Carolina should be able to pull itself together despite the recent unpleasantness and present a united front to the enemy again in 1930. This is the view conservative leaders are minded to express even before the force of the battle has expended itself.

Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Texas, and president of the Southern Baptist Convention, accompanied by Dr. Arch Oree, of Atlanta, acting executive secretary of the Home Mission Board, spent a day here during the week in conference with several hundred Baptist leaders of North Carolina touching the serious situation which now confronts the denomination as a result of the million dollar defalcation of Clifton S. Carnes, former treasurer of the Board. The meetings were held in the First Baptist church and the representatives present accepted the suggestion of Doctor Truett to join with the Baptists of other Southern states in one great movement to save the honor of the denomination by raising the $953,000 needed to replace the amount of the shortage. North Carolina Baptists are to raise $95,000 as their part of the amount. In two most enlightening inspirational addresses Doctor Truett outlined "The Outlook for Baptists Around the World," and "The Present World Call to Baptists." Sunday, November 11, Armistice Day, has been designated as Honor Day within the bounds of the Southern Baptist Convention and all members of the denomination are asked and expected to rally to the colors.

The cases charging Dr. Albert Anderson, Superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane at Raleigh, with malfeasance in office and embezzlement, and James Adams, farm superintendent of the institution, with embezzlement have been postponed by agreement of counsel on both sides and after consultation with the Governor, who called the special term of court for the trial of these specimens have been subpoenaed in the case and a large array of counsel is to represent Doctor Anderson. Solicitor Brassfield will be assisted by Walter Siler, Assistant Attorney General. The reason assigned for requesting a continuance was the need of more time to prepare the case. Both sides say they will be ready by November 12.

State officials have been telling of North Carolina's resources over radio station WLAC, Nashville, Tenn., during the past week. Commissioner of Agriculture Wm. A. Graham, led the way with an address on "North Carolina's Agricultural Progress since 1915," but did not confine his talk to agriculture alone. Chas. Ross, general counsel for the State Highway Commission, told his radio audience of "North Carolina Highway as an Investment." Dr. A. T. Allen, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, spoke on "Educational Progress" in the State and Dr. Chas. O'h. Laughinghouse, State Health Officer, talked on "Health, the State's Greatest Asset." W. S. Lee, vice-president of the Duke Power Company, gave his views on what he regards as the proper water power policy for North Carolina.

Members of the Advisory Budget Commission, consisting of A. H. Graham, chairman of the House Finance Committee; Z. V. Turlington, chairman of the House Appropriation Committee; Walter H. Woodson, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and R. S. McCain and A. M. Dixon, appointees of the Governor, were in session here two days during the week considering budget proposals of the various State departments. The Governor as director of the budget, P. H. Williams, as assistant director, and Henry Burke, expert of the budget, sat with the commission in an advisory capacity. Requests so far submitted include the State Board of Health which asks for $465,290 for the first year of the new biennium as against $60,000 for the last year of the present biennium; State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, $50,525 from $36,000; Pardon Commissioner, $6,800; Secretary of State $32,350 (which would include the expenses of the General Assembly); State Auditor, $62,350; Department of Labor and Printing, $34,500; Governor's office, $18,500; Attorney General, $15,625; for the first year of the next biennium and $16,625 for the second year on account, it is said, of the necessity of printing biennial reports. The State Department of Agriculture is asking for a slight increase in appropriations for the gas and oil testing work. The Board will this week consider request from the State's educational and charitable institutions, following which will begin the preparation of the report for submission to the General Assembly next January.

Chairman Frank Page, of the State Highway Commission, announces his decision to retire at the end of the present year, but may continue as part time commissioner if present plans of his associates on the Commission meet the approval of the General Assembly. Mr. Page was first named Highway Commissioner by Governor Bickett in 1919 and reappointed two years later by Governor Morrison for a term of six years. At

GREAT BARGAINS FOR NOVEMBER

On account of the warm weather business has been a little quiet. Frankly speaking we need money to pay our bills so we are going to sell New Fall and Winter Goods less than we ourselves paid for them, in order to get out of debt. Al Smith says, "sell your goods and pay your bills." Herbert Hoover says, "sell your goods, forget profit and pay your bills." So we have decided to take their advice and sell goods and forget the profit.
