BUNN SCHOOL NEWS

Mr. Bowen took the Seniors to Raleigh last Wednesday, March 25. We observed the Legislature in session after we left there we went to see the Ford show that was being given in Raleigh. We ate lunch at the Y. M. C. A. Then we went to the Palace theatre to see "The Birth of a Nation". This was very interesting for it dealt with scenes from the Civil War and the Reconstruction period just after the war. Our History class had recently studied the same phase of History. After the show we went to the Hall of History to see the new picture "The Baptism of Virginia Dare". The entire class enjoyed visiting these places of interest.

 Miss Johnson and her Home Economics girls went on a sight-seeing trip to Raleigh the following Friday.

Commencement Program

The Senior class exercise will be given Thursday night, April 16, 1931, 8:00 p. m. in the high school Auditorium.
 On Friday morning, April 17, at 1:00 a. m. the graduating exercise will be held.
 Friday night, April 17, 8:00 p. m. the Senior class play, "The Winning of Joy", will be presented. The admission will be 15 and 25 cents.

Basketball Banquet

The basketball boys delightfully entertained the basketball girls at an informal banquet Wednesday evening, March the twenty-fifth, from eight until ten o'clock.

Many interesting games were played for amusement, while contests were given to test the skill of each person. The refreshments were delicious. The entertainment, as a whole, was enjoyed by each individual present.

Among those present were: Teachers—Misses Jackson, Fuller, Cline, and Mr. Smith; Basketball members—Misses Roberta Brantley, Myrtle Strickland, Maxine Poole, Wilma Phillips, Othello Mullen, Lucille Wilder, Ruby Mae White, Laurine White, Pauline Johnson, and Ruth Mullen; Messrs. Milton Poole, Jerry Hagwood, Proctor Alford, M. L. Hagwood, Burt Jones, Horace Cheaves, Wayne Winstead, Bruce White, Dillard Privette, Glyn Dickerson, Raymond Land, Mildard Mitchell, and Kenneth Brantley.

"Forward to Success"

In this rushing world of today, when the time from sunrise to sunset seems only a dream, we must equip ourselves sufficiently to meet the ever-increasing moves of life. We must ask ourselves as individuals, "Where do I stand in this world of affairs?" We may think that our individual life, compared with the millions in the world, does not amount to much but each soul goes to enrichen this democracy of ours. Without an education, we will not get far in the way of wealth and social learning.

There is no time of life in which we set our habits, ideals, and standards more firmly than during the latter part of graded school and during the high school days. It is during this time that we decide to do either of two things: Prepare to go forward in education or drop out and become a back-slitter. The axiom, "Experience is a good teacher", can be applied to the problem of dropping out of school. When the minds of boys and girls are young, they cannot realize what an education will mean to them in future life. They become tired of the school work, or probably are not passing, and because they feel like they will have a better time out of school they drop out. It might seem better at the time being but later on they regret it more and more every day. Take, for example, a boy that drops out somewhere in the seventh, eighth, or ninth grades. He does not seem to wish he was back in school until he hears school friends talking about taking part in contests and having enjoyable times at banquets, etc. Not being able to participate in these things seems to throw one backwards. Then, the high school graduate goes out in life to college or whatever kind of enterprise he might undertake. His customs and ideas broaden while the one who dropped out of school still possesses the low mind. The person who went to school develops his talents and makes himself useful. Probably there comes to the one who dropped out a desire to broaden his talent or talents but just don't have the education, and are too old and settled to go back to school. Onward he goes through life, never gaining new ideas, until it grows monotonous.

In these hard times we need to have more boys and girls going to school. If the country is in an economic depression, there is no need for the youth of today to gradually form an ignorant nation of the future, our country is based on true morals. Education is the sign of a true mind. We are proud of our schools and of the trained intelligence they give us the opportunity to acquire. But what we are for most is the moral influence it has to gradually build a strong nation. If the average of character in the individual citizen is sufficiently high, there is literally no height of triumph unattainable in this vast experiment of government by, of, and for a free people.

Marguerite Harris.
